NEARLY FORTY MILLIONS VOTE FOR HITLER

EASY SUCCESS IN ELECTION

VOTERS WAIT FOR HOURS IN QUEUES

BERLIN SCENES

IF FIGURES INDICATE ANYTHING, HERR HITLER SCORED A COMPLETE TRIUMPH IN TO-DAY'S CLEVERLY STAGE-MANAGED GENERAL ELECTION.

Ninety per cent. of the voters who went to the polls recorded support for the Hitler programme. In many cases the queues at the polling-booths were so long that the voters had to wait for hours.

Storm troop brass-bands dashed from booth to booth in motor-lorries entertaining the crowds, and all restaurants and beer-houses did a wonderful business, most of the voters celebrating the occasion.

WHOLE COUNTRY CELEBRATES

A whole host of Germans living outside German territory came to Germany to vote, but the ex-Kaiser remained at Doorn, though his second son, Prince Eitel Friedrich, was the first voter at Potsdam, followed by the Crown Prince and other ex-royalties.

SUPPORT OBVIOUS.

At eight o'clock this evening it was already evident that over ninety per cent. of the electorate had voted practically solidly for the Government.

Out of 225,900 which had been counted up to that stage in the Reichstag election 217,100 went to the Nazis and 8,800 were invalid. Out of 250,700 referendum votes, 240,000 said Yes, 7,600 said No and 3,100 were invalid.

HUGE VOTE.

By nine o'clock it was already obvious that Hitler was being backed by over thirty million Germans, as compared with 17,000,000 during the last Reichstag election.

The most striking feature was that the twelve millions, who voted Socialist or Communist on March 5, have apparently gone Nazi, justifying Hitler's boast that he has annihilated Marxism and Bolshevism in Germany.

TOTAL GROWS.

At 11 p.m. the votes counted totalled 25,377,901 in the Reichstag election, distributed as follows:

For the Nazis 23,583,575
Invalid 1,794,326

In the Plenitude vote, of 25,780,241 counted, 24,205,998 said Yes, 1,157,036 said No, and 417,208 were invalid.

30,000,000 MARK PASSED.

At midnight, the pro-Nazi voting had passed the 30,000,000 mark.

The figures were:

Total votes: 35,054,408
For Hitler: 32,870,387

GERMANY AND THE PEACE CAUSE

First Comment on the Election

Berlin, Nov. 12.
The first press comment on the election says that the choice for the world is military force or reconstruction.
German policy has decided definitely for the latter. It is now the business of others to act, although the basis must be equal rights.
He who wishes to serve the cause of peace must not talk of sanctions, or revenge, or of the non-return of the Saar to Germany.—Reuter.

LITVINOFF UPSET

WASHINGTON HITCH

THE PRESIDENT'S ATTITUDE

New York, Nov. 12.
American recognition of the Soviet Government and the opening of diplomatic relations is apparently not to be the smooth sailing imagined.

President Roosevelt has slowed negotiations up by introducing matters which M. Litvinoff did not expect to be raised at this stage.

It now seems clear that the Soviet will have to submit to an intensive examination of all outstanding differences with the United States before President Roosevelt will authorize recognition.

TALKS PROLONGED.

This has been indicated by the prolongation of the discussions with M. Litvinoff after everything seemed to be on the verge of settlement, and the White House correspondent of the New York Herald-Tribune reports that the delay is the result of the President's insistence upon a detailed understanding on all important issues.

Another paper declares that the Soviet's total claims for reparations on account of the American intervention at Archangel and in Siberia in 1919 exceed the combined sum of the American debt and private claims against Russia.

LITVINOFF SURPRISED.

M. Litvinoff, who is consulting Moscow on the points which have been raised in the later stages of the discussions, is reported to be very surprised by the turn of events.—Reuter.

$50,000,000,000 CLAIM.

The Soviet claim for alleged damages resulting from the allied expedition into Siberia may be one of the major considerations in the Russo-American diplomatic conversations.

Russia still insists that the damage amounted to sixty thousand million dollars. It is expected that M. Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs, will make the most of this claim in his talks with President Roosevelt.

LONDON-HONGKONG AIR SERVICE

INAUGURATION PROBABLE AT END OF NEXT YEAR

(Telegraph Special.)

Exclusive information obtained by the Telegraph from authoritative sources in London points to the probable provision, during the latter part of next year, of a weekly aerial service between Hongkong and London catering for both passengers and mail, under conditions permitting of the journey being accomplished in ten or eleven days.

So far as can be estimated at present, the fare for the trip will be about £175. This will include hotel accommodation at stopping-places, as well as tips, etc.—"everything excepting beer and baccy," to quote the words of one informant.

Within two years of the inauguration of the service, which will, most likely, be linked up with the Imperial Airways route from Singapore to London, the time will probably be cut down to eight or nine days, with a corresponding reduction in the fare.

NEGOTIATIONS NOW IN HAND

This information, together with further details of the probable plan to be followed, was secured by Mr. Alfred Hicks, editor of the Telegraph, as the result of enquiries made at the Air Ministry and in other authoritative quarters, just before he returned from Home leave to Hongkong.

To indicate Hongkong's proposed link in the Imperial chain, it is of interest to note that in July of this year the Imperial Airways, Ltd., after prolonged negotiations, secured the right to cross India, and in September the service was extended to Rangoon.

The next step will be to carry the service on to Singapore, where Imperial Airways hope to establish a station in January next.

AUSTRALIA SERVICES.

From Singapore, the service will be extended to Australia. Tenders for this link have already been called for by the Australian Government, which will take over this section, one of the conditions being that the service must be controlled by a British concern with Australian domicile. These tenders have to be in by January 31st. This service will be from Singapore to Brisbane, and then on to Coolangubra, for Sydney, Melbourne and Canberra.

Adjudication on the tenders will take about a month, after which the successful tenderers will have to provide the machines and equip the ground stations. The opening of the Australian service, therefore, cannot be expected before midsummer next, at the earliest. Imperial Airways and Q.A.N.T.A.S. (Queensland and Northern Territories Air Services) will send in a joint tender for the service.

IMPERIAL AIRWAYS KEEN.

Imperial Airways is keenly interested in linking up its main service at Singapore with Hongkong, Shanghai and possibly Japan. To put this service into operation will involve the conclusion of arrangements for crossing the territory of two foreign countries—Siam and Indo-China—and possibly China as well.

The Siam Government is interested in the project, and the Far East Aviation Company, of Hongkong, is interested in the proposed inclusion of Hongkong in the chain.

Imperial Airways is at the moment actively concerned in the venture, so much so that the provision of a feeder service to include Hongkong is at the moment engaging its serious attention.

SIAMESE CO OPERATION.

Siam has at present a most efficient national aviation company which, it is believed, is quite willing to co-operate in an extension of its service to Hongkong and China. Imperial Airways will most likely proceed on the lines of inviting the Siam Government to form a joint company with them, and Siam's goodwill and co-operation seem assured. So far as Indo-China is concerned, it is not presumed that there will be any difficulty in getting British rights to fly over that territory.

There should, it is pointed out, be no difficulty in getting a British-controlled company to serve Hongkong, although some

WARSHIP SINKING RUMOURS

DENIAL FROM MOSCOW

RUSSO-JAPANESE SENSATION

Sensational stories have been published in newspapers in Japan and elsewhere concerning armed clashes between the Soviet and Japan.

One report alleges that during the Japanese aerial invasion of Russian territory on November 3, six of the Japanese machines were shot down by Soviet troops.

Another incident is alleged to have occurred in Russian waters, near Kamchatka, and here the story goes, two Japanese warships were sunk!

It will be recalled that the Tokyo War Office denied that any aeroplanes belonging to the Japanese Army had ever crossed the Siberian border.

TASS COMMENT.

The official Tass Agency in Moscow (says Reuter) yesterday issued a press announcement declaring that both stories, the shooting down of Japanese planes and the sinking of Japanese ships were "an absolute invention."

Similar comment is made in Moscow on reports in the Osaka Asahi, quoting a statement by a person who "travelled via Siberia." The Asahi story declared that "a great military demonstration" will shortly take place in the Soviet Far East, in the vicinity of the Sea of Japan; bombers, with loads of bombs, will fly out into the open sea, and mechanized chemical warfare detachments will be concentrated at a number of points.

FANTASTIC ABSURDITY.

This report, states Ivestia, represents anti-Soviet gossip, fantastic absurdity, circulated by the Japanese newspaper at the order of Japanese militarists who need such insinuations in order to cover up their "work" of preparation for an attack on the U.S.S.R.

STOP PRESS

Hongkong's innings closed this morning for 240 in the Interper match, Dunkley and Finch, each hitting a boundary. Dunkley was then clean bowled by Isaacs.

SCULPTOR DEAD

NOTED SCOTTISH ARTIST

MR. JOHN TWEED.

London, Nov. 12.
John Tweed, the eminent Scottish sculptor, died to-day, at the age of 64.

He rose rapidly into prominence soon after his return to England after receiving art training at the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris.

He took a studio in Chelsea, and produced sculptured works which attracted much attention. Among those who called on him when in England were Cecil Rhodes and Dr. Jameson.

On one occasion Rhodes spoke in a semi-veiled vein of his probable last resting place. By the turn of events, Tweed became associated with his passing, for he was selected to execute the Rhodes memorial statue erected at Bulawayo.

Meanwhile he was engaged on a number of large-scale memorials to eminent men. But he also produced a work of an entirely different character. This was a beautiful nude figure of a crouching woman—Latona, the mother of Jupiter of Apollo and a sufferer under Juno's jealousy. Tweed sent the piece to the Royal Academy, but it was given such a poor position that it was almost hidden. He thereupon dispatched a cast of it to the Paris Salon. There it met with an enthusiastic reception and Rodin spoke of it in very high terms.

The Paris authorities made Tweed an associate of the Societe Nationale des Beaux Arts and invited him to send them the original marble. But he decided that he could not part with it and for years the work remained in this state veiled and only uncovered at the request of sympathetic visitors.

Among Tweed's works are the national memorial to Lord Kitchener on the Horse Guards Parade, a statue of Sir John Moore at Shorncliffe, a bust of Joseph Chamberlain in Westminster Abbey and statues of Queen Victoria at Aden and Madras, of Alfred Beit at Salisbury, Rhodesia, of Lord Clive in London and Calcutta and of Lord Chesham at Aylesbury. In 1930 he was engaged on a statue of Sir Charles Coghlan, late Premier of Southern Rhodesia, to stand at Bulawayo with his figure of Rhodes.—Reuter and Special.

COURT MARTIAL ADJOURNED

CORPL. DOUGHTY IMPROVING

An improvement is reported in the condition of Cpl. John Doughty, one of the accused in the Examination Paper Disclosure court martial, who was taken ill on Thursday evening. It was feared that Doughty had developed pneumonia but he is now stated to be suffering from an attack of fever.

On account of Doughty's sudden illness the Court adjourned on Friday morning until 10 a.m. to-day, when a further adjournment, until further notice, was made. It is probable that the Court will assemble formally to-morrow morning and be then dissolved.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

Palatable Peach Pudding Is Easily Prepared

IT'S SUBSTANTIAL ADDITION TO LUNCHEON;
DESSERT SHOULD BE WHOLESOME AND FILLING

PEACH-AND-TAPIOCA PUDDING ARRANGED LIKE THIS SHOULD TEMPT ANY APPETITE

Trying to serve the same old dishes in a new way is a weighty problem which often confronts the average home-maker. Sticking to the good old simple recipes is all well enough. But unless you vary them sometimes, making them look as well as taste a little different, you'll find your family passing up the dessert course occasionally. And, after all, this last course is by no means an unimportant one.

Dessert May Be Substantial. Nearly everyone needs a bit of sweet. Desserts provide just that. Luncheons are not the hearty meals they used to be. Most of us are content with a bowl of soup, a salad and perhaps a roll. But you say that is not enough to keep a person, particularly a school child, satisfied until the dinner hour. Very well, then, let the dessert be wholesome and filling.

For the mother who has to serve a daily luncheon to school children as well as older members of her family, there just isn't anything nicer for dessert than a pudding. Easy to digest, palatable and certainly simple to prepare, pudding recipes are not to be overlooked.

Tapioca pudding makes an ideal luncheon dessert. By changing and dressing it up a little, you can induce your family to eat all you've made and beg for more. Peaches are in season right now. Why not make the most of them while they last? Here's the way to make a grand peach tapioca pudding:

One-third cup of tapioca, 1-2 cup of sugar, 1-4 teaspoon of salt, 1 quart of milk, scalded, 1 egg yolk, slightly beaten, 1 teaspoonful of flavouring and 1 egg white, stiffly beaten.

Add tapioca, sugar and salt to milk and cook in a double boiler for 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear. Stir it often.

Stir in Peaches

Pour a little of the mixture over the egg yolk, stirring constantly. Put it all back into the double boiler and cook until thickened. Remove from the fire and add the flavouring. Fold in the beaten egg white and place in the ice box to chill.

When you are ready to serve the pudding, place it all in one of your prettiest bowls, garnish with slices of fresh peaches and set the bowl right on the table to be served there.

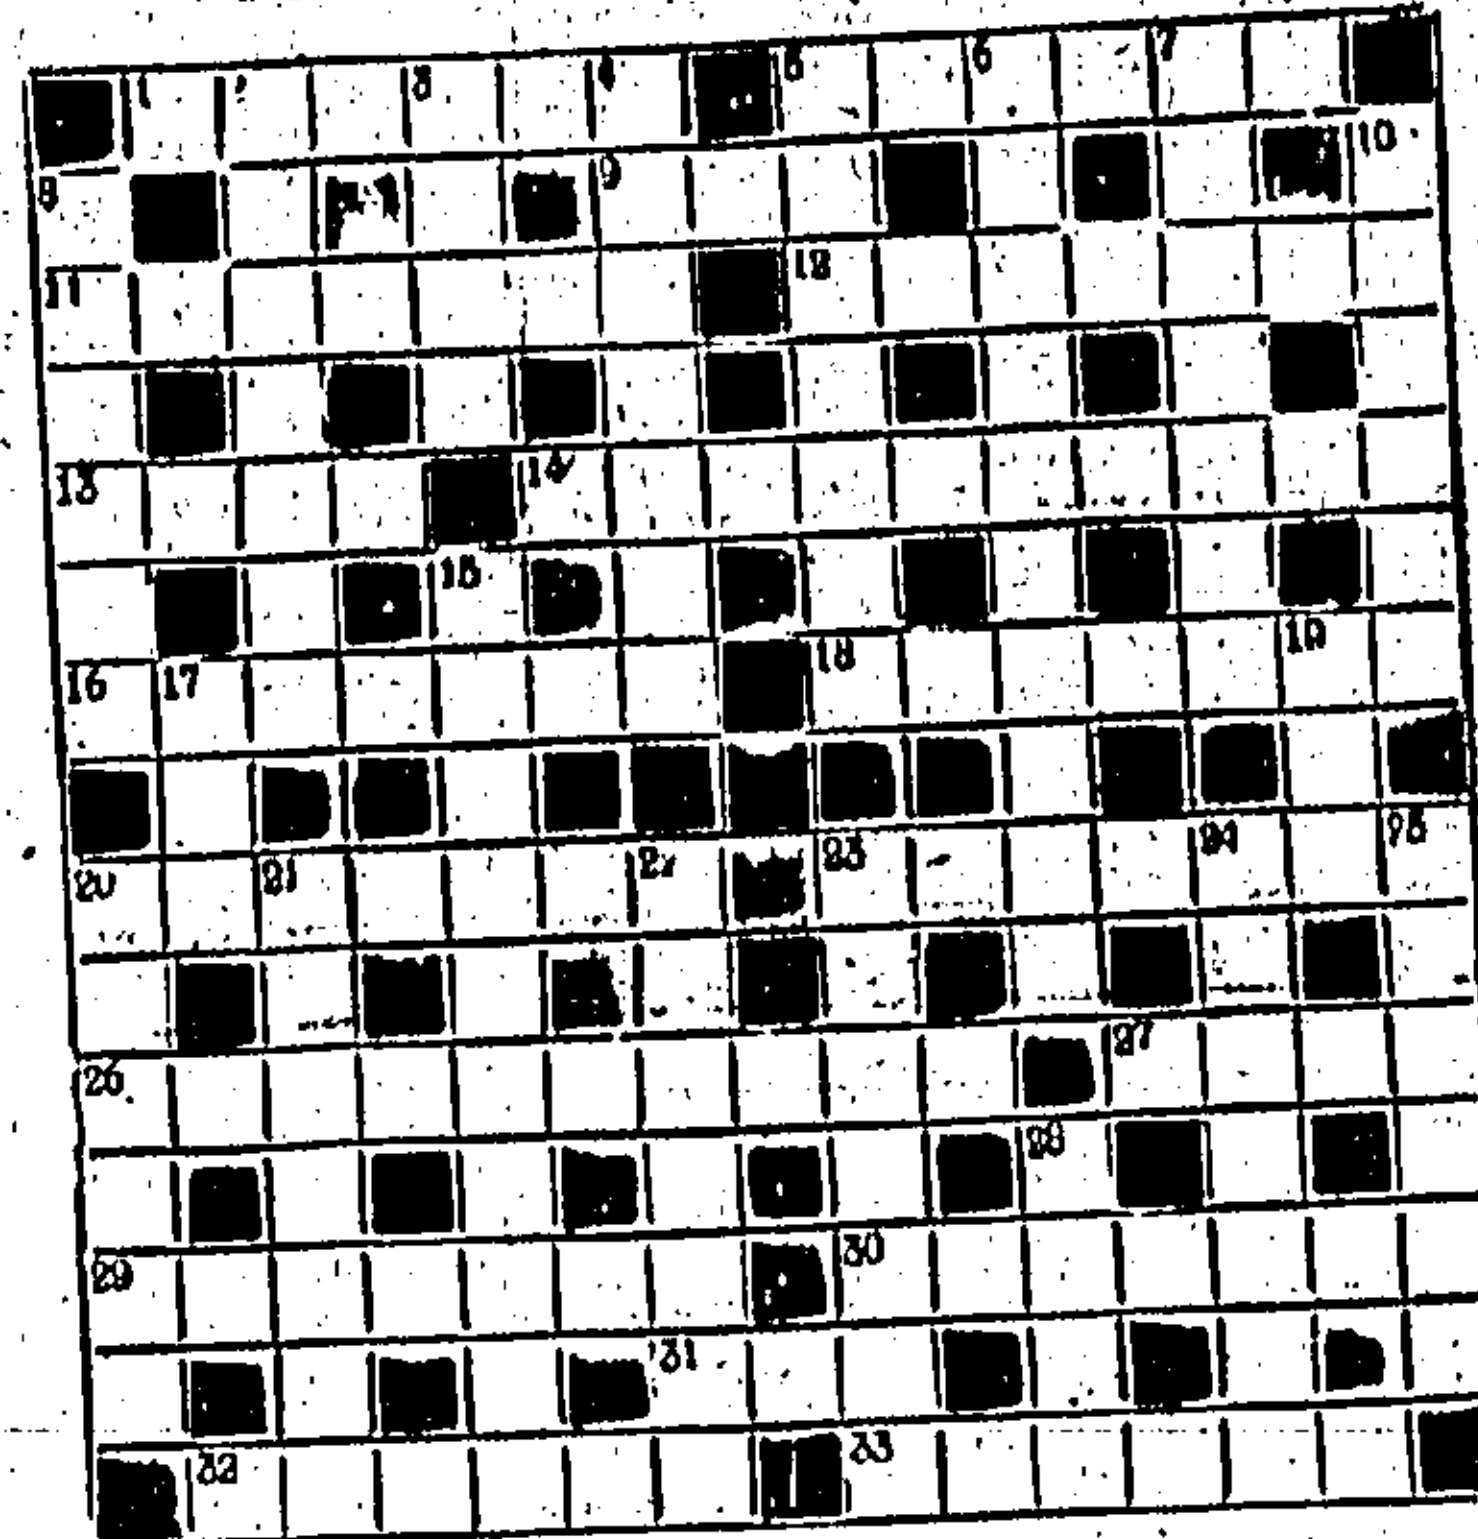

To give a more decided peach flavour to the dessert, stir a cup of finely diced peaches into the pudding after it starts to chill. This recipe serves six.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Janet Gaynor has never shown her talents to better advantage than in her newest starring vehicle, "Paddy, The Next Best Thing", in which she is co-starring with Warner Baxter at the King's Theatre.

Cast as a lively little Irish lass whose sole fault is her ability to tell shilly lies, a quality that eventually embroils her in all sorts of entanglements, she performs in her usual charming manner. Warner Baxter, as the son of the Irish coastal town in which "Paddy" takes place, does an excellent piece of acting in a typically romantic Warner Baxter role.

The others of the cast, including Margaret Lindsay, who will be remembered as the "Titanic" girl in "Cavalcade" and Walter Connolly, from the New York stage, all do their utmost to make "Paddy" an enjoyable screen work.

"Night After Night"

George Raft, who skyrocketed to film fame through supporting roles in "Scarface", "Dancers in the Dark", and "Madame Racketeer", is playing the featured role in "Night After Night", coming on Thursday to the Queen's Theatre, with Constance Cummings, Wynne Gibson, Mae West and Alison Skipworth. The picture is from Louis Bromfield's novel, "Single Night."

Raft, born in that hard-boiled fighting region of New York City where the "Forties" meet Tenth Avenue, boxed in the featherweight division while in his middle teens. He also played baseball. As soon as dancing became his hobby he turned to it for a living, and became a favourite at all the big New York night clubs.

Something of the life he led and people he knew is incorporated in the story of "Night After Night", directed by Archie Mayo and founded upon a Bromfield story that is a slice of life from the heart of the "big town." The role played is that of proprietor of a popular little night club and former dancer pugilist and ball player!

"The Shadow"

One of the outstanding features of "The Shadow", at the King's Theatre on Wednesday, is Viola Compton's brilliant comedy characterization of Mrs. Bascombe. Her performance is even more of a triumph than it appears, as she was very far from feeling in a mood for humour when these scenes were shot. Her only son had just been operated upon and was lying dangerously ill in hospital while Viola Compton was registering laughs for the benefit of camera and "mike".

"It was naturally a very worrying time for me," said Miss Compton, "but there is an old saying 'Keeping smiling' in which I am a firm believer. Anyway, I was compelled to keep smiling for my part. Everyone at the studio was very kind and sympathetic, and I am glad to say that my son is now well on the road to recovery."

Bravo, Miss Compton!

"The Eagle and The Hawk"

Paramount's thrilling story of the drama, excitement and adventure of war aviation, "The Eagle and The Hawk", opened yesterday at the Queen's Theatre and kept a highly enthusiastic audience literally on the edge of its seats from fade-in to fade-out.

Packed with even more aerial thrills than were seen in "Wings" and "Hell's Angels", the film reveals the tragedy and romance and philosophy in the lives of the intrepid aviators who soared through crimson-clouded skies during the War. The power and strength of the story are equalled only by its star-filled cast—Frederic March, Cary Grant, Carole Lombard and Jack Oakie.

John Monk Saunders, who created "Wings", wrote the story. And what a story it is! Moving with lightning-like rapidity, it builds thrill upon thrill and reaches one of the most unusual climaxes that has written films to any picture. You'll be talking for days about the death-tempting air scenes—boiling chandeliers, nose-dives, spirals, crack-ups, flaming balloons, tail-spins, slides, loops! They're almost too realistic.

Handsome and debonair "Frederic March, chosen the best actor of 1932, gives another of his powerfully dramatic portrayals, and Cary Grant gives a no less inspiring performance. Carole Lombard does complete justice to her romantic role, and Jack Oakie, put his comedy lines across in hilarious fashion. Stuart Walker did a brilliant directorial job.

Many a cake falls before it gets in the oven.

IF I HAD MY LIFE OVER AGAIN

talking to son, but in the spirit of real comradeship.

If I had married later, say at thirty-five, and been rewarded by a son, he would not yet be fifteen. Then I should feel acutely the gap in our years, sensing that, in comparison with himself, my young son regarded me as an old man. For which reason, if for no other, I should always be opposed to marrying later than twenty-six.

And, of course, there is the decisive consideration that, once having reached twenty-five, the longer a bachelor delays marriage the more likely is he to become self-opinionated, if not actually selfish.

I have had a liberal share of hardship. I do not think it has done me any harm. My friends tremble to think what I should be like without those constant hard knocks which, I fancy, have left me measurably tolerant to others. Because I believe hardship does give a man a sense of human fellowship, and does help him to a kinder understanding of human weakness and frailty, I should ask God, in that second chance which I am imagining, not to decree me too smooth a path through life.

Only if I am to suffer, let me have the courage to bear my misfortunes uncomplainingly, along with the smiling disposition to make light of the rebuffs which in this uncertain world come to most men and women.

HONGKONG AS AN AIR PORT

Information in regard to the development of civil aviation in Hongkong which we are able to publish to-day, coupled with other activities of which we have already taken note, suggests that the time is rapidly approaching when our Director of Air Services will be something more than a mere figure-head of a practically non-existent department. The prospect is that in the not distant future there will be a series of services radiating from Hongkong which will place this Colony in a prominent position amongst the air ports of the world. In some senses, the most attractive feature of the situation is the probable early linking-up of Hongkong with the Empire airway chain. This, as is explained elsewhere in this issue, will bring Hongkong within ten or eleven hours' journey of London. The advantages to commerce which this will mean, in the provision of regular, rapid communication with the Old Country and with intermediate regions, are too obvious to require emphasis. So far as passenger transport is concerned, it is, of course, hardly to be expected that there will be any rush in the way of bookings for the full extent of the route. None the less, circumstances might conceivably arise in which the ability to get to London in considerably less than a fortnight would justify the taking of the trip, the more so since equally rapid return facilities would be available. A further point to be stressed is that under the projected plans Hongkong would be linked with the Empire service to Australia as well as to the Old Country. Here, again, the new facilities would be of the utmost value. Side by side with these aspects of the question we have to take note also of the developments now under way for linking Hongkong aerially with China and the Philippines. They are checked for the moment, but the spirit of enterprise is abroad, and, happily, the Hongkong Government is disposed to render assistance of a practical nature so as to facilitate the aerial progress of the Colony. Solutions will doubtless soon be found. Hongkong may have been slow in starting in the sphere of aviation, but it is now rapidly making up leeway. The outlook to-day is decidedly rosy. Persistence, together with common-sense methods in dealing with the obstacles which have arisen and may arise, should be productive of early and beneficial results.

NOTES OF THE DAY
A SPOILED EFFECT

If there is a certain scepticism concerning the sincerity of Germany's sudden leaning towards reconciliation on the disarmament issue, the doubters may be forgiven in view of the more pugnacious side of Herr Hitler's character, which flashed out again in his broadcast speech on Friday evening. His repeated denunciations of war and its futility together with fervent protestations of Germany's peaceable intentions, take a great deal of digesting, coming as they do on top of the astonishing war doctrines taught throughout the Reich. Herr Hitler has already ready half spoiled the effect of his expression of willingness to talk things over by his later assertion that Germany must have what she wants or she will not be seen in the councils of the nations again.

IRREDUCIBLE MINIMUM

Presumably Germany's irreducible minimum will be announced this week and final judgment will be reserved until the details are available. In the meantime, a readjustment of outlook in Britain, France and elsewhere might serve to assist Europe in finding a solution to its present problems. Hitler has been responsible for many excesses and his manner has been anything but conducive to confidence. But half the excitement and criticism has undoubtedly arisen from the fact that Hitler is Germany's leader and that France will always fear Germany. If the surface situation is analysed calmly, it is difficult to find in anything fundamentally more threatening to peace than was noticeable during the rise of Fascism in Italy, eleven or twelve years ago. Signor Mussolini was much the same sort of sabre-rutter in his day; yet no real harm came of it; and it was probably intended largely for internal consumption to stir the people to development of a spirit of nationalism which certainly can be violently overdone but which is an important step in revitalising a nation.

EUROPE'S FEARS

The main difference between Hitler and Mussolini is that Hitler would find it far more difficult to find the resources for making war. Italy has always been well-armed and the efficiency of her forces has rapidly improved. Yet Europe is not apprehensive of danger from this quarter—and if she ever has been, events have disproved the fear. But for the fact that Herr Hitler has openly permitted the cultivation of a horrible philosophy, that war is good in itself, that women's duty is to bring babies into the world to fight for their country, that the letting of blood is essential to the spiritual well-being of the National God, no case could be made out against justice of the German claims. But you cannot scare every neighbouring country with announcements of the wrath to come and then expect them to acquiesce in arrangements to that end. For that is how it seems to the chancelleries.

THOROUGH MIX-UP

Two points stand out in the situation. On the one side, the European Powers other than Germany are inclined to over-stress the seriousness of the rise of the Nazi Reich and have been encouraged in their attitude by Herr Hitler's own escapades. Franco sounds the alarm and it echoes through Europe. On the other side, Germany is so full of her own grievances, so many of them legitimate, that she sees everything in false perspective and blunders in almost every movement. Stresemann and Brüning kept Germany on an even keel, but their restraining influence is gone, and we have Herr Hitler, earnest enough, but lacking in diplomacy. A solution of the problems thus created will require the destruction of prejudices on both sides. And of that there is no sign.

GERMAN ELECTION

Hitler's triumph in yesterday's election was as complete as it could possibly have been, though it shows rather the completeness of the Nazi domination than completeness of popular support. It is just possible that they coincide; the circumstances are such that no accurate estimate can possibly be formed. Over 30,000,000 recorded their votes in favour of Herr Hitler and it would be folly to doubt that the great proportion acted in sincere conviction. Less than four million dared to express protest by rendering "invalid" votes. The number who voted pro-Nazi as wise policy cannot be assessed. The one thing certain is that few people dared to stay away from the booths.

IF I HAD MY LIFE OVER AGAIN

By BERNARD FALK

IN the quieter moments of existence, when we lean towards meditation, the man, or woman, who has reached fifty, and even beyond, must often feel tempted to review the dead years, and so doing fall to wondering whether he, or she, had wished it all to be changed. To believe that we are the conscious architects of our fortune, and not the sorry playthings of Fate, makes little difference to the poignancy with which the thought comes here. There must follow, in the more emotional of us, not merely an acquisition of the soul, but a close survey of the many mixed—perhaps contradictory—material influences that from birth to birthday have shaped our passage. Given the will, and the means, how much that has happened to us would we care to alter?

In full sincerity, I say that to seek an answer to the riddle of a second chance in life is to encourage no frivolous mental exercise, but to undergo a solemn, significant, and impressive ordeal, from which mind and soul should emerge refreshed, and profited. We shall know, possibly for the first time, the landmarks in our years which we would not modify; while those occasions which have brought us great joy and happiness will take on a new reverence, and glow with more comforting heat.

What I recommend to others I apply to myself. As though I were a spectator at the play of my own life, I bring the years which I have lived again before me, and, with the main episodes duly impressed on my mind, I seek to compare the actual with the hypothetical, arguing, with some show of convincing reason, the changes for which, permitted a second choice, I should now elect.

I was born poor. I would want to be born poor; not that I am of the martyr type, with an ache and an instinct for suffering, but because I believe poverty, at the outset, to be a magnificent discipline, teaching us humanity, and what is as fine a virtue, humility. To start from the lowest rung in life, and then work one's way slowly upward, is, surely, to be rewarded with more enduring satisfaction than can ever come from walking on velvet from one's birth.

If life is to be regarded as a fierce struggle, then those who, unaided, emerge from the conflict successfully have more cause for self-congratulation than such of their fellows to whom the necessity of the stern fight to survive is denied. Yet this qualification should be added: poverty, like riches, must be rightly used. There are self-made men whom early adversity turns hard. In their case poverty works as a curse. It does not keep them mellowed, which is its appropriate course, but like cancer which is perverse life, inwardly destroys them. If I were poor again I would seek to be made large, and stout, of heart.

I went to a great school but I did not go up to Oxford, or Cambridge. Give me my years over, and, on my knees, I would pray God to send me to Oxford. It is my one, everlasting regret that never was I secured the advantage which a young man should find in that hallowed centre of culture. There is a stamp, a polish, and an assurance to be had at The Great University, comparable with no mental refinement obtainable elsewhere. It is a rare gift to be that honourable creation, "Nature's gentleman," but if I could be such a one, I would wish also to be the other, heir of the hallmarks which the cultured society of Oxford inscribes on its heirs. Culture, manners, bearing and mental refinement will not, in themselves, lead a man to worldly success. There must still be the dominant qualities which raise the deserving above the rest. Let unto the two—the inborn will and ability to get on, with the grafted confidence and nobly proud demeanour with which Oxford endows its best sons—and with how much greater fortitude, resolution and assurance should one face life!

I became a journalist, finding it a precarious, but most exciting, and thrilling, life. If I could not be a newspaper man again, I would wish for some career with equal bustle, stir, and novelty, and with equal share of the unexpected. To be a busy stockbroker might be an appropriate second choice. He has plenty of thrills. Daily he sees fortunes won and lost. In a short season he can become rich himself, and in the varying emotions wrought by the growth, or loss, of wealth obtains an unrivalled insight into human nature.

Neither a newspaper man, nor a stockbroker, I would beg to be put into the film business. There, I imagine, I should find enough excitement and surprise to compensate for the missed whirl of Fleet-street.

I married when I was twenty-six. Too young, or too old? I do not think so. On mature reflection I would not change the year. There are men who declare that early marriage proves the best or happiest, but surely to marry before twenty-six is to risk not knowing one's own mind?

I have also heard many people argue in favour of late marriage, pointing out, for one thing, as was done at the recent meeting of the British Association, that a father of a ripe age is likelier than a young parent to beget a child of mental brilliance. This theory of the older the father, the brighter the child, may be substantiated by scientific data, but I refuse to be impressed. Is the child's mind, alone, to be studied? Are his health and physique negligible quantities? Will any scientist urge that the child of an elderly father who may be forty-five, or fifty, stands as much chance of being physically robust as the child of an average parent of from twenty-five to thirty-five years of age?

The young wife and the elderly husband raise a problem which alone should make learned men hesitate before propagating changes in normal human behaviour. I am not interested in the bearing of this marriage age on eugenics. What does concern me is the feeling that I should always want to marry sufficiently young to see my children grow up, and benefit by their companionship. My son is in his twenty-fourth year. He is of an age to be specially interesting to me. I can discuss my ideas with him and be assured of a sympathetic and intelligent hearing. He, in turn, can bring to me his own views, and, where necessary, his own worries, and we can go over them, not simply as father and son, but as friends.

The Very Idea!

CRUELTY TO HUMANS

By Eddie Kelly, Inspector

JUST lately we've been reading nothing in the Correspondence Columns of local newspapers but about man's inhumanity to animals.

Why doesn't the S.P.C.A. put a stop to all this, somebody asks, and next day about a dozen take up the refrain.

But what about the other side of the question? We have an S.P.C.A. to look after animals, but what Society guards humans? Have you ever stopped to think how cruel animals sometimes are to humans?

We can recall, quite vividly, the stir there was in the newspapers about thirty years ago when a young lady named Miss Muffet was cruelly attacked by a spider.

When the police arrived on the scene Miss Muffet was in hysterics, and the ground was covered with curds and whey. The police were able to trace the assailant by the footprints in the ground; which corresponded with those of the spider in question.

But was any action taken against the spider? He was able to prove that he spun his web on a respectable pillar of the church, and had contributed largely to charity. So the police released him.

During our long association with the leading newspapers of the world we have only heard of one instance where an animal was punished for its crime, and that was ourself who ordered the punishment.

The offender was a tough old fowl-house gangster, who one morning noticed that the sun rose at 6 a.m. Forgetting that it had risen before and would probably rise again, he proceeded to tell the world about it.

At orderly room that day he was sentenced to death, and it cured him, but he was a tough customer in more ways than one.

HER TROUBLES

Mrs. Whaletooth was one of those far too good wives. She nagged old Whaletooth continually for his own good, especially about his slovenly habits. Even when he was working, she could look decent, she said. She brushed, cleaned and mended his clothes for him continually.

But it was very irritating him. He grew deadly sick of it and that feeling drove him to a love affair with the other girl.

When he learnt that she was leaving for Shanghai, he elected to go with her, merely taking time to draw his cash from the bank.

"Tell the Missus," he instructed us defiantly, "that I'm through with her nagging. I've got off with Margie to Shanghai. I can do as she likes."

Who broke the news to Mrs. Whaletooth yesterday? She was overcome.

"Oh, my heavens!" she wailed. "He's disgraced me—I'll never be able to show my face again! I'm going all the way to Shanghai, that old suit that wants a bit on it, and the shirt I asked him to change this morning! He—did think about appearances!"

ARMISTICE DAY IN LONDON

Prince of Wales As the King's Deputy

London, Nov. 11. The signing of the Armistice on November 11, 1918, was celebrated with customary solemnity throughout the world and the British Empire, to-day.

The two minutes' Silence, which is a universal feature of the ceremony, was most complete in London, where the gray November day intensified the quietness when all road and pedestrian traffic came to a standstill.

The Cenotaph was the rallying point for a vast reverent concourse. The ceremony was most impressive. His Majesty the King, who had previously announced that he would be present, did not attend.

Court circles to-day emphasised that the King's health is excellent, but it was considered inadvisable for him to expose himself to cold winds.

His Majesty was represented at the Cenotaph by the Prince of Wales, with whom the Duke of Gloucester, Prince George and Prince Arthur of Connaught attended.

The Duke of York represented the King at the Armistice Service in Edinburgh.

The King's wreath was laid at the base of the Whitehall Cenotaph by the Prince of Wales, who also laid a wreath on his own behalf. Wreaths were also placed in position by other members of the Royal family and by representatives of His Majesty's Governments in the United Kingdom, the Dominions, India, the Colonies and Protectorates, and on behalf of the Defence Services, Merchant Navy and Fishing Fleets.

Representative detachments of Army, Navy, and Air Force ex-Service men and women led by the bands of the Brigade of Guards, marched to the Cenotaph, around which they formed a hollow square.

The silence, which, as usual, was impressively observed by the immense crowd densely massed in Whitehall and the neighbouring streets, began on the first stroke of eleven o'clock by Big Ben, and was followed by the sounding of the Last Post by trumpeters.

A brief service, conducted by the Bishop of London, was then held, the singing being led by the choir of the Chapel Royal, supplemented by the Westminster Abbey choir. The service was ended by the sounding of the Reveille and the singing of the National Anthem.

During the ceremony Her Majesty the Queen occupied a window in the Home Office, which overlooked the Cenotaph. Later began the pilgrimage of many thousands of people to the Cenotaph, where wreaths were laid.

Flanders Poppies. The memory of those who died in the Great War was also honoured everywhere by the wearing of Flanders poppies made by ex-servicemen.

The chief ceremony was at the Cenotaph in Whitehall, but in the Cathedrals and churches, at War Memorials of cities and villages, and wherever there is a British Colony throughout the world, similar tribute was paid.

During the day, 40,000,000 poppies were on sale in Britain, and it is hoped that this year all previous records will be broken and at least 600,000,000 realised. The Field of Remembrance at Westminster, which was planted last night, was again planted with crosses of poppies.—Reuter and British Wireless.

Legion Festival. London, Nov. 12. The Prince of Wales, as Patron of the British Legion, participated in the Legion Armistice festival at the Albert Hall, and received a tremendous welcome from thousands of ex-Service men, and their wives.

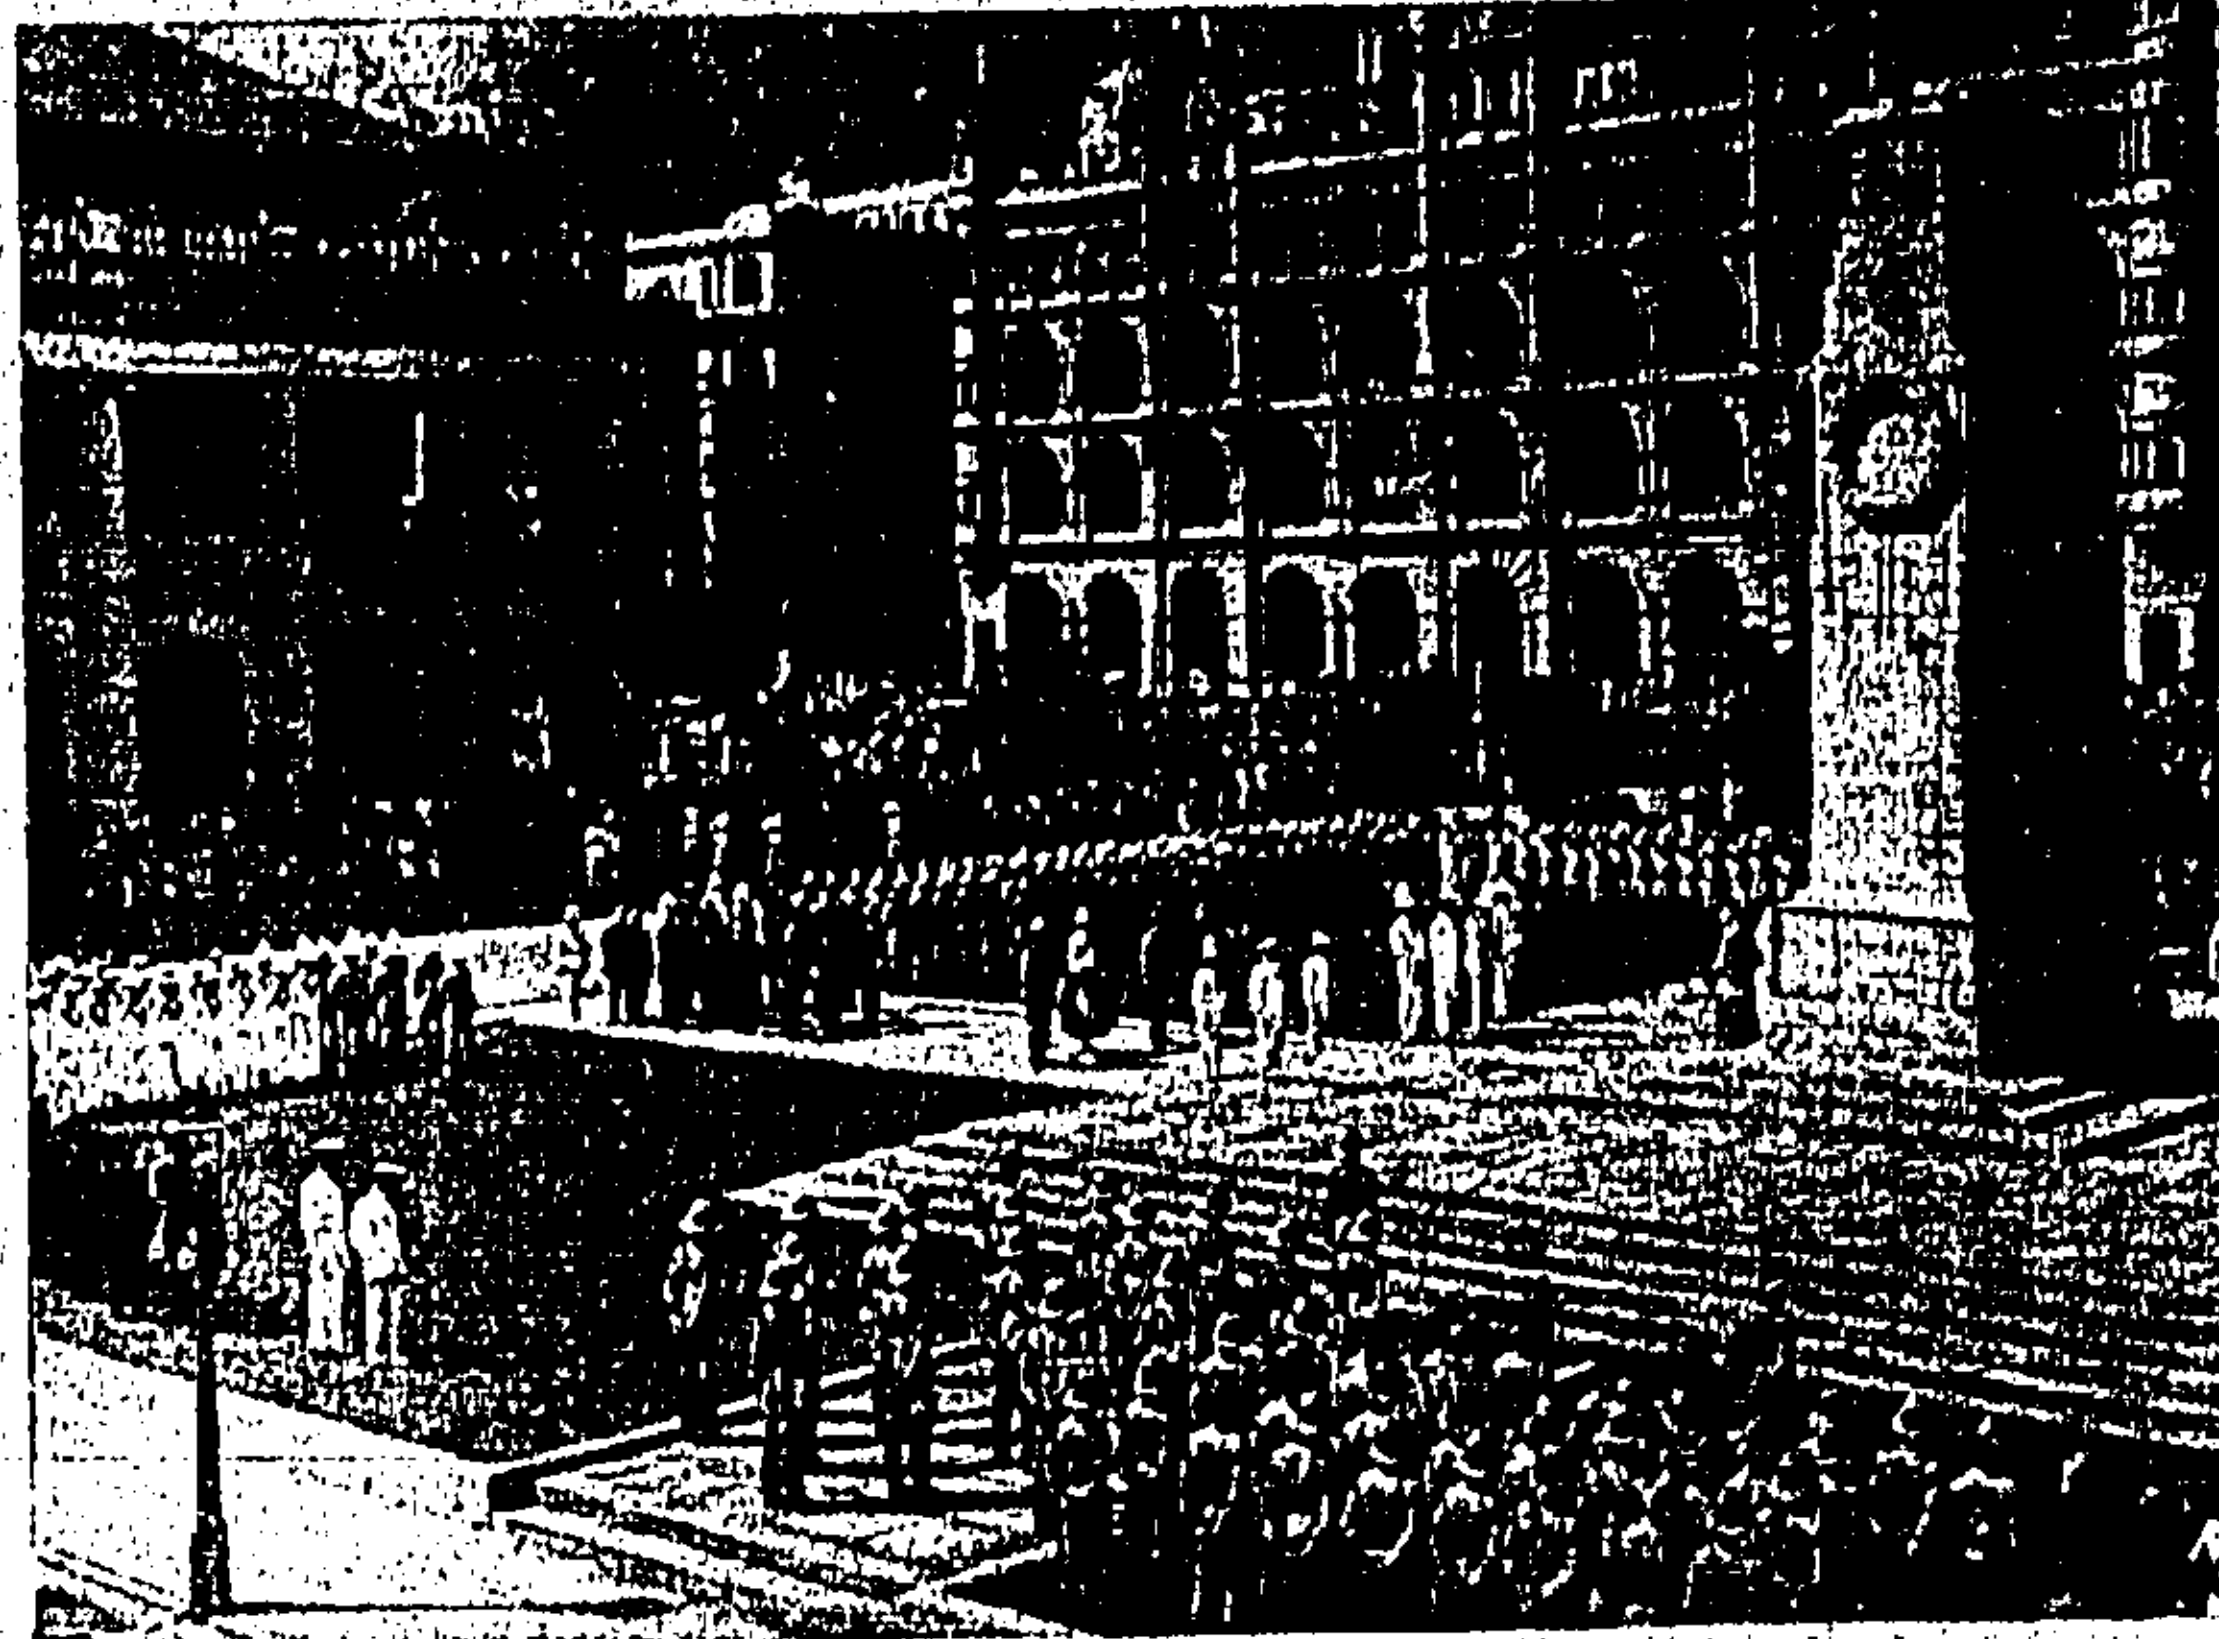

Detachments attending the festival represented most parts of the British Empire.

His Royal Highness, during the course of his address, quoted a few lines of Laurence Binyon's poem "To the Fallen"—"They shall not grow old as we that are left grow old."

No less than 1,104,896 scarlet poppies were dropped from the roof of the Albert Hall in memory of the Empire's dead while the hymn "O Valiant Hearts" was sung.—Reuter.

Disarmament Appeal. Geneva, Nov. 11. The President of the Disarmament Conference, Mr. Arthur Henderson, to-day made an impassioned appeal to the Conference Bureau to get on with its work.

"At this fifteenth anniversary of the Armistice see the work well taken in hand. This is the most critical stage in the history of the Disarmament Conference," he declared.—Reuter.

SIGNOR GRANDI FOR EAST

Rome, Nov. 7.

The changes in the Italian Cabinet made by Premier Benito Mussolini are being followed by shifts and transfers in the Italian diplomatic service. Of particular interest in the report that Signor Dino Grandi, former Foreign Minister and now Ambassador to London, will be sent out to the Far East on a special mission.

Commenting on the cabinet changes, the Tribuna writes that "a new phase is being entered—the unified co-ordination of the armed forces in the administrative, financial and technical domains, just as with all other institutions of the regime which must be organically and spiritually co-ordinated."

Premier Mussolini now personally holds the five principal portfolios in the Government.

VIENNA CINEMAS TO CLOSE

AMUSEMENT TAX PROTEST

Vienna, Nov. 7.

As a protest against what they term the intolerable burden of the amusement tax the cinema owners at a meeting to-day announced that all picture palaces will close on November 24, the employees already having received notice.

All attempts to induce the Social Democratic administration council to moderate the unbearable burden of taxation have so far been fruitless.

LOANS TO COTTON FARMERS

FOR CROPS WITHHELD FROM MARKET

Washington, Nov. 12.

The Government has announced that $37,000,000 will be loaned to the farmers on cotton held from the market at a ratio of four cents a pound. This is the latest step in crop reduction for farm relief.—Reuter.

U.S. "BUY NOW" CAMPAIGN

NOT PROGRESSING VERY WELL

Parma, Idaho, Nov. 6.

In a speech to-day, Senator William E. Borah said that the "Buy Now" campaign of the recovery programme was not progressing at all, that on the contrary it was receding. He added that "the brazen programme of exploitation through high prices" should be stopped.

Senator Borah declared that he had gone on record for the restoration and the enforcement of anti-trust laws.

His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to re-appoint Dr. Wong Tze-chuen to be a Member of the Midwives Board for a further term of three years, with effect from October 1, 1933.

BOARD DISSOLVED

REPORTED FRICTION WITH FARM ADMINISTRATION

Washington, Nov. 12.

The Farm Administration has dissolved its Food Industry Advisory Board, which comprised an unofficial group representing distributors and processors.

While it is officially explained that the Board had been dissolved by mutual agreement, and no important differences exist, it is reported that some members of the Board do not sympathise with the Administration's delays regarding plans for Codes and Agreements, of which there are over 500 awaiting action.—Reuter.

NO CURRENCY DUEL

President Regards Bonds As Good Investment

New York, Nov. 11.

The United States Treasury is most concerned regarding the further fall in the dollar, according to Washington correspondents. On the other hand, President Roosevelt is philosophic and is not alarmed at the daily swings of the market. It is reported that he regards government bonds as a good investment.

Wall Street reports state that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has resumed the selling of dollars in exchange for foreign gold. This is taken to mean that the Corporation desires further and immediate depreciation of the dollar.

A currency duel between Great Britain and the United States is not at present imminent, according to the Washington correspondent of the New York Times. Quoting an authoritative source, the correspondent states that Britain will remain passive for at least as long as the commodity prices are rising and the swinging movements of the dollar war against making trade commitments.

The British economist, Sir William Beveridge, has urged a substantial stabilisation of the dollar in relation to gold as a remedy for the economic ills of the United States.

Speaking at the Pilgrim's Dinner, Sir William recommended the formation of an impartial committee to examine the whole of United States banking system in order to make investments safer.

He also proposed the free use of Federal credit to lower the interest on all kinds of debts.—Reuter.

RICKSHA PULLER GIVES WARNING OF RAID

"Three months' hard labour. You are lucky not to get six," retorted Mr. Hamilton in the Central Police Court on Saturday, when sentencing Siu Fat, 44, ricksha puller, on a charge of obstructing the Police. Defendant pleaded he was waiting for his fare.

Detective-Sub-Inspector Baker said that at 12.30 a.m. he was raiding a sly-brothel in the Wan-chai area. During the course of the raids he proceeded to 85, Spring Garden Lane. While going up the stairs to the second floor, he heard a voice giving warning of his approach. He saw the defendant knocking at the door, repeating the warning. He found the floor was a sly-brothel.

Li Sam, who admitted being the keeper of the floor, was fined $100 or two months.

In prosecuting Ho Ho, a woman, for keeping a sly-brothel at 101, Jaffee Road, second floor, S. I. Baker said the place had been raided eight times. It had iron grille doors and this was very dangerous in case of fire. At least three Europeans would be burned while the keeper and the girls would be safe away. He could not compel the landlord to take down the iron grille, and he had made application to the Fire Brigade before, but they would not have anything to do with it. A fine of $100, or two months, was imposed.

contribution from the Hongkong Government would be necessary.

POST OFFICE GUARANTEE.

Another desirable condition, it is felt, would be for the Hongkong Post Office to give its mails exclusively to any British Company operating the service (even if other concerns also operate a service), so long as a regular weekly service is provided.

The estimate of ten or eleven days as the likely duration of the flight from Hongkong to London is based on day flying only. In course of time, however, night flying might be likely along part of the route, notably from Cairo to Bagdad, in which event the time occupied in the flight would be correspondingly cut down. On the day flying basis, there would be numerous stops, with an average of three or four flights a day.

NO DELAY NECESSARY.

Once the necessary arrangements for flying over foreign territory have been made, there need be no delay in starting the service, as, to begin with, a few small machines would be quite adequate to cope with the traffic.

Imperial Airways now have the matter of negotiations in hand, and as settled policy, it is understood, is a willingness to co-operate with the Far East Aviation Company, or any other British concern which is prepared to pull its weight and assist in putting the plan on a practical basis.

BY END OF NEXT YEAR.

Once the link with Hongkong is forged, it should be possible eventually to connect up with the Chinese national services and so establish a continuous service from London and Australia to the west of China, and, in due course, to Japan as well.

Plans are now well in train for the inauguration of the service, which, unless unforeseen obstacles are encountered, should be in operation by the end of 1934.

YESTERDAY'S REMARKABLE FOOTBALL MATCH

R. ABBIT CRITICISES THE BARRACKERS

DISPLAY OF IGNORANCE BY PUBLIC STAND SPECTATORS

SHANGHAI LACK A FAST BOWLER

HONGKONG'S USEFUL SCORE ON AN EASY PACED WICKET

(By R. ABBIT.)

ON Saturday last the weather was perfect and the wicket looked to be very much the same. In point of fact it turned out to be excellent but it was a shade slower than one would have expected.

Owen Hughes was successful with the toss and elected to bat, an advantage that may be estimated at anywhere between fifty and a hundred runs.

Donald Leach is singularly unfortunate as I believe this is the fifth time running that he has lost the toss. The game started a little after the fixed hour and time was not taken until a quarter past one.

A SHAKY START.

Before time, however, there were a good many anxious moments for the spectators and we have to thank Toddy Fincher and Garthwaite for stopping what looked very much like the beginning of a riot.

Hayward filled the vacancy in our first pair left by Duckitt's omission, and he seemed to have lost none of his old style and shots when he suddenly picked a beauty from Leach and was bowled. Fincher too had several narrow escapes of a similar fate but his luck was in.

Scoring then slowed down but no further wicket fell until Leach went on and quickly got Pearce L.b.w. and later defeated Williams though the latter had played some nice shots and seemed to be settling down.

Three were down for forty-two and things looked very bad when Garthwaite came to the rescue. He has steadily improved his batting form.

A GOOD STAND.

It was at this point that resolute batting gave the game a better turn and as no further wicket fell before lunch Hongkong at least had not the worst of the position. Careful play after lunch improved the position, and forty-two runs in all were added.

It is of interest to note how sustained the excellence of the Shanghai bowlers was. It was plausible, but the first time Garthwaite had a go he was out!

But the wicket was not followed by another at once. Owen Hughes was settling down when he was taken ill and retired for a rest. He looked pretty white but came round after a bit.

Minu had been promoted in the batting order and to the delight of the crowd came off. When he had made a very quick twenty-two Sinclair just cut his hands under a low one at cover and the umpire cried correctly gave it out.

CONSOLIDATION.

Owen Hughes now returned and in a stand that realized over sixty put the home team in a good position. Fincher all along had been batting most steadily and the score steadily mounted save at a hundred and fifty when the Shanghai bowlers for about eight overs sent down some excellent stuff—to which Fincher and Owen Hughes put straight defensive bats.

It was imperative not to lose another wicket then. Yet some morose in the public stand elected to show their ignorance of the game by an attempt at barracking. I have not heard this before in Hongkong and I hope I shall not again.

A CURIOUS WICKET.

Just before two hundred was up, when everyone was expecting Fincher to get his century, a full toss from Mander went pretty high and into the sun. Fincher missed it and was bowled.

Shortly after a curious incident arose—I have taken the trouble to ascertain the facts from all parties concerned. Wilson beat Owen Hughes with one that Mayhew took and swept off the balls. It seems that the general appeal had been for a catch at the wicket and was addressed to the bowler's umpire. He considered the ball had hit Owen Hughes' leg and gave him 'not out' for l.b.w.

But before this when Mayhew had taken off the balls the square umpire had thought the appeal was to him for stumped. He put up his finger—and then took it down again when he found the appeal was to the other umpire.

But each does not miss much, and after they had all decided Owen Hughes was not caught or l.b.w. he mildly suggested a spot of stumping and the batsman went.

Curiously enough the umpire was in no doubt and spectators in the pavilion thought his foot had been lifted, no less than six people watching from the Club Annex windows swore with the pitch were very surprised to see the stumping given. But that is cricket all over.

A SLOW FINISH.

Pereira had a gallant clump and the score was two hundred and thirty-two at five o'clock when stumps were drawn. It is definitely a moot point whether the batsmen should not have gone for the bowling about 4 p.m.—say when Fincher was out—in an attempt to collect a few quickly and then let Shanghai have twenty minutes batting. But anyway the side did well.

The bowling was very steady but they suffer from the lack of a fast bowler—and to be honest I have never seen Shanghai throw in so badly. Their ground fielding was good.

THIS MORNING.

By the time these lines appear in print we shall know if Owen Hughes will declare this morning (he was not allowed to on Saturday night by the declaration law) or will bat on in the hopes of a useful twenty or so from our last pair. Anyway he will probably not have the roller on the wicket a full ten minutes.

INERTIA

POOR FOOTBALL AT SOOKUNPOO

FORWARDS FORGET TO SHOOT

A DISAPPOINTING CHARITY GAME

(By "Veritas").

There was nothing very entertaining about the Armistice Day match at Sookunpo and the three or four hundred spectators must have left the ground completely disillusioned.

With both the Services and the Rest suffering from a bad attack of inertia, the exchanges left one with the impression that both sides had signed an Armistice, the chief terms of which were never to try very hard to score goals.

Approach work was permissible, but shooting, or any other action likely to place the goal in jeopardy was strictly not on the cards.

The Services won by the odd goal in five. The only astonishing thing was that they didn't finish three or four goals to the good.

Certainly if one considers their territorial advantages they were worth such a margin, yet further reflection forces one to acknowledge that they made very few serious attempts to beat Wong Wing.

The same criticism applies to the Rest's attacking play. Promising great things on the move, they went to pieces in front of goal.

Cast Iron Halves

An enforced re-arrangement of the Rest forward line did nothing to help things. And Duncan, the only reserve to turn up with his toes had to be brought in for Tam Kong-pak, who failed to make an appearance.

This meant Duncan going to inside left and Ernest Strange at inside right. Both, patently out of position, could contribute little in the way of progressively constructive football, although Strange did score a neat goal.

But the Services always held the upper hand thanks to a cast iron half back line which dominated.

Only Blake, the young Kowloon left winger, making his first appearance in representative football could make any impression and he drew the best out of Perkins, and was often much too good for Allan.

Cork and McGuire were brilliant. Cork held the inside trio in a vice-like grip; McGuire refused to con-

RECREIO OVERRUN

Wong Mee Shun Scores Five Goals

Although they won by six goals to one, South China gave a rare demonstration of how not to shoot when they met the Recreio yesterday.

With the Recreio weakened by the absence of Gan and Gutierrez, and Delgado injured in the second half, South China did what they liked. For three parts of the game they aimed round Marques, who had plenty of opportunity to show how good a custodian he is. Apart from the futility of the Chinese in front of goal, he saved the Recreio from having a dozen goals scored against them.

HARD FEELINGS.

Hard feelings between Bowen and Wong Mee-shun did nothing to improve the game which, at the best of times, was a poor imitation of first division football.

The Chinese led by the odd goal in three at the interval. Wong Mee-shun making twice for the victors and Santos replying for the Recreio. Wong helped himself to three further goals after the change-over, and Pau Ka-ping completed the scoring.

The standard of football in the closing stages deteriorated to a state bordering on the farcical.

INDOMITABLE WILL POWER DISPLAY

SHOCK FOR THE ATHLETIC

(By "Veritas").

The story of how the Lincolns yesterday retained their 100 per cent. league record after defeat had stared them in the face, deserves to go down in the annals of local football as among the finest performances even seen.

You may find, after weighing in the balance the exchanges and other features of the game, that the Lincolns were lucky to win. But even this conclusion will be qualified by the admission that their second half recovery was one of the brightest incidents in local football for many years.

The Chinese Athletic were, at half time, virtual winners. They were two goals to the good; they were playing exceptionally fine football and up to the half way stage were conclusively the better team.

For the first 35 minutes yesterday the Athletic played football good enough to beat South China at their best.

Great Fighters

The Lincolns' second half recovery was due wholly to their greatness as fighters. More than once in the past have they proved the old adage that a game is never lost until it is won, but never have they so brilliantly demonstrated it as against the Athletic.

In the first half the Lincolns played that type of football which just asked for defeat. Concentrating on the man, instead of the ball, they continually found themselves beaten by the speed and skilful movements of the Athletic forward line.

During this period, Betts, who took Cork's place at centre-half, was practically worse than useless. His tackling revolved itself into a series of leaps into the air, followed by a slide. The Athletic forwards, half a yard quicker on the ball, were never worried by such tactics.

A Little Excuse

It was practically all Athletic in the initial half. There was some excuse for the Lincolns. They had to try and settle down with the half back line somewhat disorganised by the absence of Cork, with Blakey adapting himself to the outside left position left vacant by Hoquaard who was injured on Saturday, and with Harding a strange partner to McGuinness on the right wing. In addition they faced a high and powerful sun.

But these factors cannot deprive the Athletic the acknowledgment due to them. They played amazingly fine football in the opening stages. Combining well with bewildering speed, they raised siege after siege, and only the masterly work of Heath in goal saved the Lincolns from crossing over three or four goals in arrears.

As I pointed out on Saturday, with things going well, the Athletic can be as dangerous as any team in local football.

In the first half they were co-ordinated, clever, aggressive, tenacious and lively. Inspired by an early goal, they took command of the game, was for 35 minutes called the tune.

But those who fondly thought it was all over for the Lincolns had a rude awakening. Putting everything they possessed into the game, the Lincolns started a recovery which left the Athletic defenders stunned.

Exciting Incidents

A goal by Ridley in the first three minutes of the second half started things. The equaliser by Higgins (a beautiful goal this) ten minutes later made the position more than interesting. The assumption of the lead came again by the Athletic sent the Chinese spectators into deliriums of delight. Another equaliser by Betts shortly afterwards, again heightened enthusiasm, and a great goal by Ridley in the last minute was the final ingredient which went to provide that type of football fare so beloved by the fans.

The reason why the Lincolns were able to make such a recovery was that they possessed the wisdom to change their game. They found less interest in the opposing player, and concentrated their energies on getting the ball.

This meant a general speeding up, a greater share of the ball with added opportunities of scoring. They were bold, sometimes very aggressive; certainly unmerciful. They wanted the ball and they went the quickest way about getting it.

It completely upset the Athletic rear line, who, (pardon the reference), as I mentioned on Saturday, are not seen at their best under pressure.

Brilliant Heath

The Lincolns owed a big debt to Heath. He made three inspired saves in the first half and prevented the Athletic from crossing over with a winning lead.

Edminson and Turner improved as the game progressed. A little bit shaky in the opening stages, with Turner prone to miskick, they slowly settled down and in the second half were practically invulnerable.

After being overrun, the inter-mediate also managed to get into their stride. Not until the Lincolns had scored their first equalising goal did Betts realise expectations at centre-half. But in the last quarter of an hour he did the work of three, and in the bargain showed how a penalty should be taken.

Robson was never impressive. He appeared to work on the theory that, give Fung King-yu sufficient rope and he would hang himself. But Fung proved that he could take all that amount of rope and more and still remain a very effective factor in the forward line.

Master Tactician

Ridley, of course, again adopted the role of master tactician. When he possessed the ball he became a magnet and just draws the whole of a defence to him willy-nilly. And that last goal of his. What a peach! He scored it from his favourite position and was a goal from the time the ball left his foot.

Higgins was a tireless worker. He just harassed the defence until it collapsed. There is nothing stylish about Higgins. You rarely see him flashing out classy passes to the wings. But you can always rely on him to be there at the moment when the ball is returned.

clude an inch to Tang Kwong-sun, and Perkins, although opposed to the spiritless forward on the field, more than held his own.

Incompatible Leung

The Rest intermediates were not to be compared. Leung Wing-chui played his poorest game of the season. He was ruthless in tackling and removed most of the sting from the Hoquaard-Ridley wing, but his passing was atrocious and about as incompatible with his customary display as anything one could wish for.

Channing could never anticipate the movements between Langmead, Ridley and Smith, who therefore had an easy passage up to the penalty area. Truly the Policeman's lot was not a happy one.

Apart from the impotency of the Services forwards before goal, the men to save the Rest from a very heavy defeat were Hill and Syd. Strange, and in a lesser degree Wong Wing.

Strange thoroughly enjoyed himself, and, to adopt social circles slang, "Gatcrashed" his way into almost every situation, invariably emerging triumphant. For sheer defensive play, Strange was the best player on the field.

Hill made quite a successful appearance. Hoquaard never worried him, and with Ridley over-indulging in individualism, the Kowloon player found plenty of time to recover any lost ground. More often than not Ridley defeated his own ends by allowing himself to be crowded out after giving perfect openings for first time shots.

Strange toyed with Snooks, who was a complete failure. Snooks was spoon fed by Perkins, Smith and Langmead. He frittered away his chances as though he had been selected for that express purpose.

Atrocious in The Extreme

Smith too, could make little headway until late in the second half when he put in a couple of neat shots.

The finishing work of the Rest forwards had nothing on that of the Services. It was atrocious in the extreme. The ball certainly did not run kindly for Howe; but the same excuse cannot be advanced for the insides, or Tang on the right wing.

Attempts to walk the ball into the net had to fail against such a lively half back line and resourceful defence. But Allan and Morrison had their task very much lightened by the tactics of the opposing forwards, and Heath was rarely troubled.

The honours go to Blake, who gave the Rest direct in no uncertain terms to those who had expressed the opinion that his form did not warrant inclusion.

With the experience of a season in first division football behind him, Blake should develop into one of the Colony's best left wingers. At the present he lacks polish, but he has determination in abundance, is extraordinarily fast, using his long legs to their fullest advantage, and can get the ball into the middle from any angle.

Deserves Encouragement

The fact that he held his own with the redoubtable Perkins is an eloquent testimony of his display. He is worthy of the right kind of encouragement by the Powers That Be.

Ridley opened the Services account in the first half, and there was no addition to the score before the interval. Desultory exchanges continued until well in the second half when Smith put the Services further ahead, and within a minute had added another, benefitting from Langmead's play.

A final effort by the Rest to save the game lived things up. Strange warmed his way through the defence and shot so hard that Heath could only partially save and Blake rushed in to finish off.

Almost immediately afterwards, Strange again obtained possession, and working through from right to left, he broke past Allan and beat Heath all the day with a very deceptive shot.

With the slightest bit of luck the Rest would have equalised in the last minute.

HERE

DONE

PROGRAMME FOR DECEMBER 2

ALTERNATIVE BOUNDS

The first programme of the Hongkong Boxing Association's 1933-34 season will take place on December 2 in the Lee Theatre if the building is obtainable.

The contests will probably be one of 15 rounds, two of eight rounds, two of six rounds, and two of three. If this arrangement is impracticable, there may be one bout of six rounds, and three of four rounds.

Some of the Navy's leading boxers will be available this winter, including the following.

SEAMAN BARRY.

Seaman Barry, rated as England's third light weight, fights at 140 lbs. From 1931-32 he held the Light-weight Championship of the Royal Navy and Royal Marines and only five months ago he added the Junior Welterweight Championship of China to his laurels at the expense of Raul Talan.

"Knock Out" Talan as he is styled, had previously beaten Jack Creighton, but he himself could only last two rounds against the whirlwind tactics of Seaman Barry. Going on form, there should be a great future for Barry in the ring, for in 1928 he drew with Seaman Watson, the present contender for the world's title. In the same year he divided honours with Don Volante who has ranked high in the lightweight list. Barry issues a challenge to all fighters up to 140 lbs. for any side stake.

SEAMAN FRAGGOTT.

Seaman Fraggott, winner of 160 fights out of 170 appearances in the ring, turns the scale at 145 lbs. and has a brilliant record of performances against men of the highest grade. He was Welterweight Champion of the West of England in 1932 and met Sexton whose amazing loss of form in his last championship fight was a direct contradiction of his real abilities.

Fraggott put up a game fight against Harry Mason and did creditably in his bouts with Stoker Reynolds, Hood, Dick Burt, and Dixie Brown the South African knock-out fighter.

Seaman Fraggott is anxious to meet any man up to 160 lbs. for any side stake.

TIM FOLEY.

Tim Foley, who weighs 130 lbs. and is present Heavyweight Champion of the Colony has had 130 fights and during the last five years has only twice been defeated.

He fought a great fight at home with Pettifer and lost to the King's Cross giant by the narrowest of margins. Foley owes much to Don McCorkindale with whom he was once engaged as a sparring partner and his determined and aggressive style are a reflection of the methods taught in the South African's camp.

In the All-England open tournament staged at Crystal Palace two years ago Foley was stamped as a class fighter by his achievement in reaching the final. In the same year he held the Heavyweight Championship of West of England and still holds supremacy in the same class in the Royal Navy and Royal Marines.

SEAMAN TAYLOR.

Seaman Taylor, who weighs in at 145 lbs. has missed titles by fractions and is due to gain distinction in his next appearances in the ring. He was in the final of the Royal Navy and Royal Marines welterweight championship last year and weight champion last year and fought 12 months previously fought a drawn bout with the holder of the South American title. When the Station American title. When the Station Champion was serving with the Mediterranean Fleet, Taylor met him and lost very narrowly.

He will fight any boy up to 155 lbs. SEAMAN HALLTHAM.

Seaman Halltham is another fighter of merit who is desirous of meeting an opponent up to 170 lbs. His record is not yet available and he has not yet fought in the Colony but he has a reputation for clean hard hitting, and will be worth watching.

JASPER CLARK CUP

The results of the Jasper Cup, played at Fanning, yesterday were as follows:—

O. E. C. Martin 75-76=150
F. D. Hunter 79-76=154
A. E. Lissaman 82-80=162
I. Newton 84-80=164

K. S. Robertson 89-82=105
L. R. Andrews 89-84=107
Lissaman and Newton had the best scores for morning and afternoon rounds for which the winner and runner up were not eligible.

BATSMEN IN FORM

An undefeated ninth wicket partnership by Lieut. Eaden (47) and Lieut.-Commandr. Stephenson (29) which realised 71 runs, enabled the Royal Navy to gain victory by four runs over the Volunteers in an all-day match yesterday.

Taking first use of the wicket, the Volunteers totalled 163 for the loss of eight wickets when they declared. Beck, the Interport fast bowler, knocking up a valuable half-century, (44), Browning and Stewart (20 each) also hauled towards the 50.

The Navy replied in shaky manner and at the fall of the eighth wicket had only 94 runs on the board. Eaden and Stephenson got together and some bright cricket was witnessed.

C.B.A. BEAT CHINA LIGHT.

Dismissing Shields, Mitchell and Crofton with successive deliveries, N. Whitley gained a "hat-trick," bowling for the Central British Association in their friendly fixture against the China Light and Power Recreation Club at King's Park yesterday afternoon. The C.B.A. won by 31 runs in a low scoring match.

Scores are as follows:

CENTURY BY MAJ. BONAVIA.

A delightful knock for 103 by Major Bonavia, the Shanghai cricketer, was greatly responsible for a score of 161 runs (for seven wickets, declared) by the Royal Army Medical Corps in their friendly match against the Civil Service Cricket Club at the Happy Valley on Saturday afternoon. W.H. Edmonds claimed three wickets for 36.

The Civil Servants replied with 105 runs for eight wickets. Strange 36 and J.E. McGowan (31) being top scorers. Cpl. Catlin bowled well for the Medicals, capturing six wickets for 47.

H.M.S. BERWICK BEAT R.A.S.C.

H.M.S. Berwick entertained the Royal Army Service Corps at King's Park on Saturday and won by four wickets. Batting first, the soldiers could only total 92, against splendid bowling by Richards (four for 25). Whitley withstood the attack and hit 80.

H.M.S. Berwick had replied with 124 for the loss of six wickets, when stumps were drawn. Larkin (47 not out), Williamson (32) and Johnson (27) flogged the Corps bowlers, the only successful one of whom, Whitley, took four wickets for 51.

MORE

IN HOME FOOTBALL

(By "The Pilgrim")

While Arsenal and Spurs continue on their magnificent way and Portsmouth and Stoke gradually decline, the form of the First Division clubs at last begins to show some sort of permanency.

There were shocks however, in the lower divisions where Chesterfield lost a great chance of beating the record run of victories by losing to the lovely placed Walsall, at Chesterfield of all grounds!

Coy Rotherham gleaned another valuable point at Accrington and after 13 matches have still to win a match at home.

Despite a decisive win by three goals to nil against the Tynders at White Hart Lane, the Spurs-Newcastle engagement was not spectacular. I suspect that the London newcomers are beginning to feel their responsibilities at the head of the League with Arsenal and Huddersfield waiting to fill their shoes.

ON THE UP GRADE.

The Ilighbury men are definitely on the up-grade after an anxious period during which Mr. Herbert Chapman had to call to his aid all the wiles and guiles of football technique to prevent a shambles.

Of all the veterans directing the attacks of class teams, perhaps Huddersfield's "Smithy" stands out. He played a great part in defeating the club's Wednesday visitors.

Harvey's return to the field enabled Blackburn Rovers to register their first away win of the season, Leicester being the unfortunate.

Higgs, perhaps the most consistent goalkeeper who has been seen of recent years in the International sphere, excelled himself at Portsmouth and it was due to his brilliant keep- ing and the support of the backs that Pompey turned a hopeless goal against them by the Bruins in the early part of the game.

REVIVAL REVERSE.

Bury's promised revival suffered a severe setback at No. 10 Ingham Forest, where the home team ran wild with a 7-2 thrashing which sent them up several steps in the League ladder.

Bolton and Blackpool, the two relegated teams of the Senior division and both challengers to the Grimsby leaders, met at Burnden Park, the home team sustaining their second defeat of the season and enabling Blackpool to draw level with them.

The temperamental Walsall again became many neckties and hopes when they smashed Chesterfield hopes at Salter Lane by scoring twice with out reply.

After 82 minutes, the match between Rochdale and York had to be called off owing to bad light. York were winning by a 2-0 goal in 7-2 thrashing which sent them up several steps in the League ladder.

Ladies' 80 Metres (Final):—1, Ko Lai-oh; 2, Lo Yuet-ho; 3, Chu Kau-sun. Time: 15.2/5 secs.

Ladies' High Jump:—1, Ko Lai-oh; 2, Lo Yuet-ho; 3, Yeung Wa-lan. Height: 1.30 metres.

Ladies' Javelin Throwing (Final):—1, Lo Yuet-ho; 2, Yeung Wa-lan; 3, Ko Lai-oh.

Ladies' 200 Metres (Final):—1, Yeung Wa-lan; 2, Ko Lai-oh; 3, Lo Yuet-ho. Time: 32 secs.

Members' 200 Metres Handicap:—1, Mok Wa-kwan; 2, Chung Chan-lam; 3, Hui Tse-chun.

Members' Obstacle Race:—1, Mok Wa-kwan; 2, Leung Lai-sang.

Senior members' 100 metres:—1, Yuen Chow-kuen; 2, Leung Yung-hung. Time: 11.2 secs. (record).

Junior 100 metres:—1, Hung Chi-chui; 2, Suen Wa-luk.

Small boys 100 metres:—1, Leung Kam-sik; 2, Lau Man-chiu.

HOCKEY

Y.M.C.A. DEFEAT THE K.I.T.C.

C.B.A. SCORE SIX

At King's Park on Saturday the Y.M.C.A. defeated the Kowloon Indians Tennis Club in a fast friendly encounter by 6 goals to 1.

Brown and Baldwin scored for the "Y" in the first half, without reply from the Indians.

In the second half the Indians played a much better game and Noronha scored a goal.

C.B.A. WIN EASILY.

Playing a friendly game in place of their Mamak fixture, the Central British Association defeated the 9th Battery, R.A., at King's Park by six clear goals on Saturday.

The Battery held the C.B.A. in the first half when only one goal was scored through Francis.

In the second half the winners broke through to score five more goals, through Johnson (3), T. Whitley and Halford.

H. Q. LINCOLNS BEATEN.

In a friendly hockey game at Shamshuipo on Saturday the details of the Argyls defeated Headquarters Wing, Lincoln, by 4 goals to 1.

McGaw (2), Boyd and Kelly scored for the Argyls and Trowl replied for the Lincolns.

MAMAK MATCH.

At Sookpoo on Friday the 12th Battery, R.A., secured two points against the Royal Army Medical Corps in a Mamak Tournament encounter, winning by 3 goals to 1.

Lt. Flowerdew (1) and Gunner Williams (2) scored for the Battery and Sergeant Lane netted for the Medical Corps.

LADIES' CONTEST

St. Andrew's Defeat H.K. Ladies

The St. Andrew's Club Ladies gained a very creditable victory over the Hongkong Ladies Hockey Club, champions in the Cael Clark Cup competition, by five goals to two on the Marina ground on Saturday afternoon. M. Woolley, the Saints' skipper, played a great game at centre-forward and netted all five goals, four of which were registered in rapid succession in the second half.

Hongkong led at the interval by two goals to one scored by J. Dalziel and J. Churchill.

Hongkong were without the services of B.M. Pope, who is indisposed, and did not seem quite at home on the fast sand ground. The teams were:

Hongkong Ladies:—M. Bird; C. Robertson, R. Helbling, M. Wallace, H. K. Lowe, E. Bell, J. Dalziel, E. Bonnar, J. Churchill and E. Seib. St. Andrew's Ladies:—M. Chubb, G. White, E. Landolt, M. Churn, J. Yung, J. Woolley, I. Gittins, I. Rogers, M. Woolley, K. Grose and F. Wong.

Y.M. Men Beat Ladies.

At King's Park on Saturday afternoon the Y.M.C.A. men's team defeated the Ladies' team by 5 goals to 2.

Fowler (2), Smith (2) and C. Palmer scored for the men, while Mrs. Rean netted the ladies' solitary goal. J. Weller, the ladies' goalkeeper brought off several fine saves and S. Dalziel played excellently at centre half.

It was his tenacity which allowed him to score a brilliant goal.

Baldry played better on the left wing than he has done for two years on the right. He got his centres over first time, and although not always finding their mark, they kept the Athletic backs on the move.

McGuinness did not get into his stride, but Harding in the second half was a decided success. He discovered a neat trick to round up Tang-fai and Mak Suk-hon and he put his whole heart in his work.

Whole Hearted

This, in fact, was the essence of the Lincoln's second half renaissance. Their indomitable will power and perseverance triumphed over all other disadvantages.

The chief impression left by the Athletic was the smartness of the inside forwards, Au Kim-tung, Au Ping-ming and Ho Ka-keung easily carried off the honours. They were well supported by Fung King-yau and Li Hung-cheng. Never at any stage could this forward line be lightly treated. They demanded close attention and the highest respect.

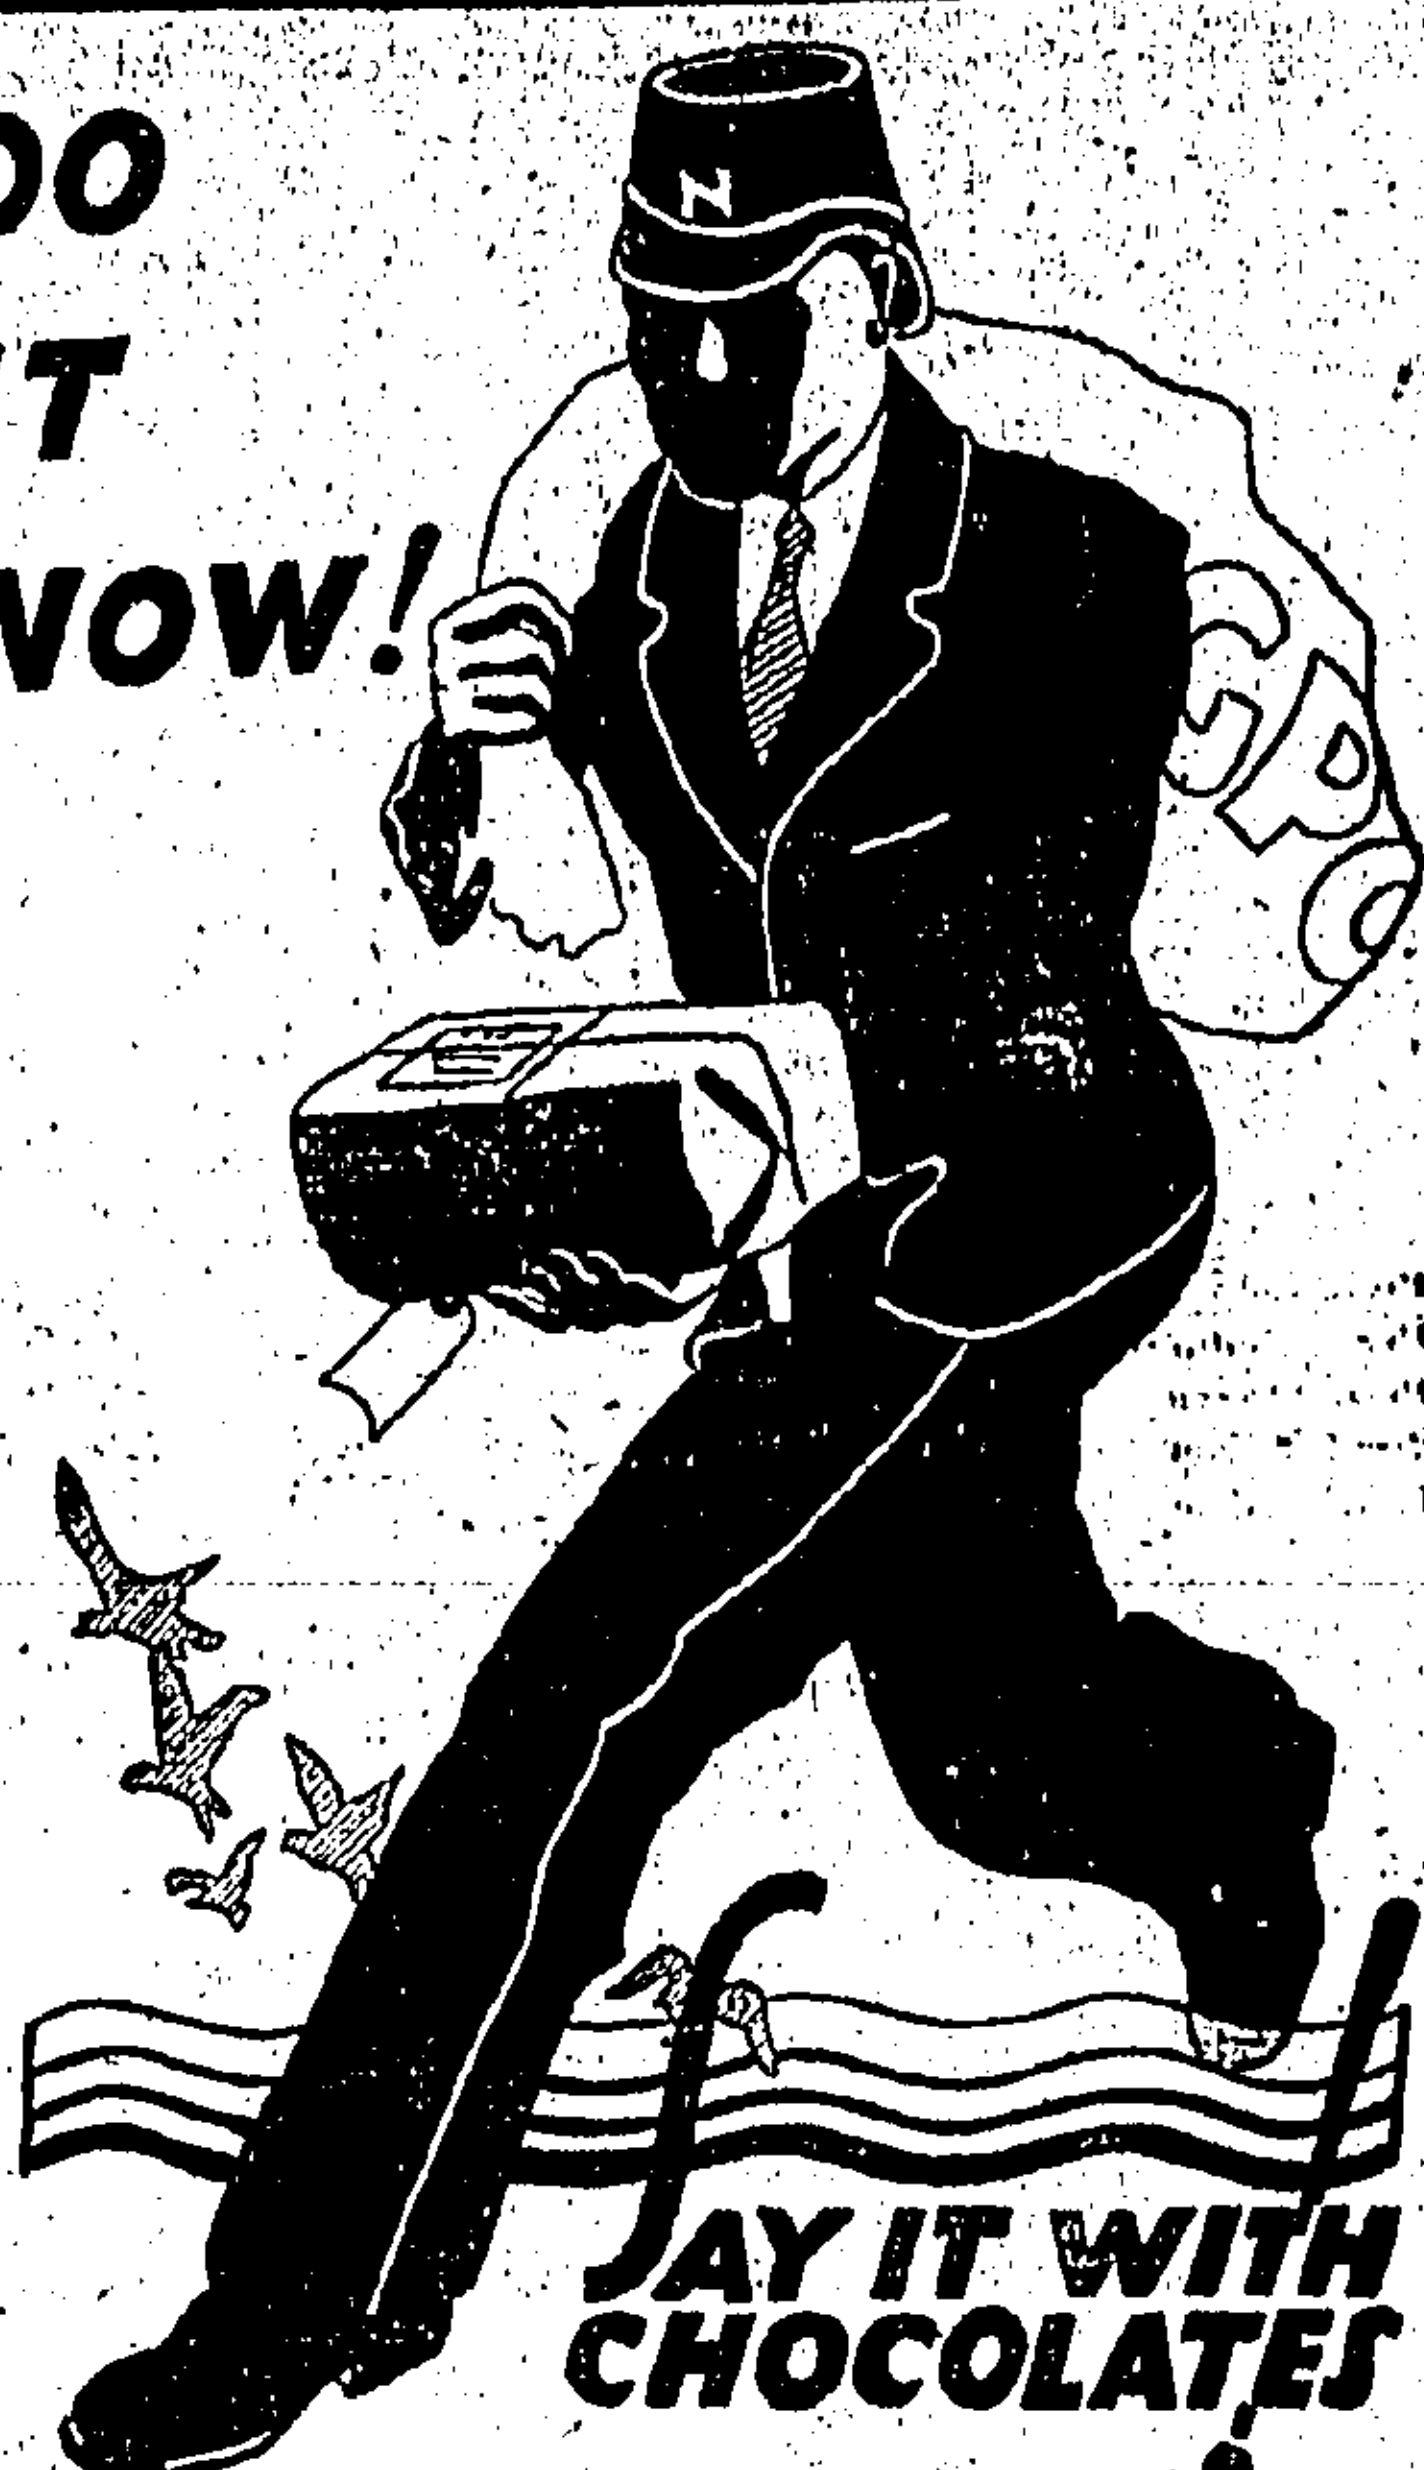

After a fine start, the half backs fell away, Ho Ching-yung and Ip Tang-fai on the wings lost control, and Li Kwok-chui played a lone game in the middle practically right through the second half.

The backs had periods of inspiration and depression. Higgs, worried them, and in being forced to concentrate on him, continually lost sight of the dangers of Ridley in possession.

Li Kwok-chui cannot be blamed for any of the goals, and a dozen times stood between the Lincolns and goals.

The game was played at a rare pace. Interest never waned, and there were flashes of extremely good football in both teams.

Today's Contract Problem
Here's a hand in which South holds 100 honors, and the correct bidding will indicate the fact. But what should the final contract be, and why?

Solution to Previous Contract Problem.

The following hand is a good indication of the championship play that often is called upon to fulfill a dangerous contract.
In a rubber bridge game, neither side vulnerable, Mrs. Green Fenley, Jr., of Cincinnati, received the hand with the 150 aces. Here's how she bid and played it.

The Bidding

South West North East
Pass Pass 1 no trump 2 spades
Double Pass Pass 3 hearts
Pass Pass 3 no trump Pass

South's double of two spades shows that is the suit with which he would have responded if East had not bid it before him. Mrs. Fenley's bid of three no trump was rather optimistic.

The Play

East opened the king of hearts and continued hearts, North refusing to win until the third round. Two small spades were discarded from dummy.

A small club was won in dummy with the king and a club returned, in the hope of breaking the club suit. But East showed out, discarding a spade.

Declarer won the trick with the ace. A small diamond was led and won in dummy with the queen and the king of diamonds returned. East dropped the jack. Declarer then led the queen of clubs and East let go another spade.

East practically was now marked with the king and xx of spades and two good hearts, so the declarer returned the nine of diamonds to his ace and East dropped the ten of spades. The eight of hearts then was played, throwing East in the lead with the nine.

East cashed the good three of hearts, but was forced to lead from the king-jack of spades into the declarer's ace-queen, and three no trump was made.

CHANG HSUEH-LIANG LUNCHEONS WITH THE PREMIER

London, Nov. 11.
Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang and his wife lunched with the Premier, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald at the Chequers, to-day.

The private function, which was entirely informal, was inspired by the friendship formed between the Premier's son, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald and Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang during the former's visit to Manchuria in 1928.—Reuter.

GLOUCESTER LOUNGE.

NEW RENDEZVOUS OPENED ON SATURDAY

Hongkong flocked to its latest social rendezvous on Saturday morning, the occasion being the opening of the new modernistic lounge in the Gloucester Building.

Seating accommodation, more than liberal for every-day requirements, was taxed to its utmost capacity, and people once seated in the comfortable lounge chairs, were loath to give way for subsequent arrivals.

Centrally situated, and with unequalled facilities and services, there seems no reason why, in the future, the latest addition to the Colony's meeting places should not retain the popularity it gained on its opening day.

Much credit is due to the management, not only for providing this more easily accessible lounge in the Gloucester, but for the smooth manner with which arrangements on the opening day were carried out.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

The Secret!

By Blosser

THE WHOLE MYSTERY OF THE PHANTOM LOCOMOTIVE IS QUICKLY SOLVED, AS CULLER UNFOLDS HIS STORY!

THE ROAD I WORK FOR HAS INVENTED A NEW TYPE OF GLEAMING ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVE, WHICH GENERATES ITS OWN JUICE, AND TO CARRY OUT THE TESTS, MR. KINGSTON RENTED THIS OLD LOOP LINE AND CEMENT PLANT!

MR. KINGSTON?

YOU NEEDN'T WORRY ABOUT US TELLING ANY SECRETS, MR. CULLER—WE SCARED THOSE BANDITS AWAY, SO I THINK IT'S NO MORE THAN FAIR THAT YOU TELL US WHAT'S COMING OFF OUT HERE!

ALL RIGHT—IF YOU'RE SO PERSISTENT—BUT REMEMBER ONE THING—IF IT EVER GETS OUT THAT I TOLD ANYONE THIS, I'LL LOSE MY JOB WITH THE RAILROAD—

WELL, MEBBE HE HAS A GOOD REASON NOT TO SAY ANYTHING... MR. CULLER WOULDN'T BE MIXED UP IN ANYTHING CROOKED!

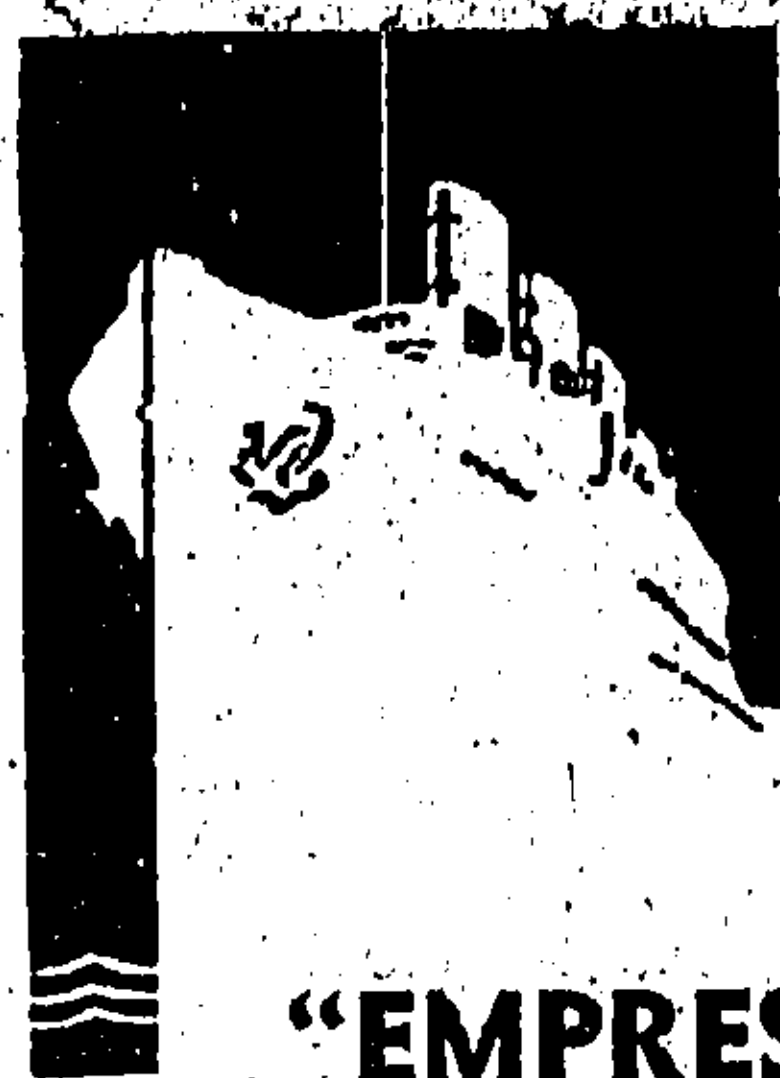

AW... HE COULD AT LEAST TELL US ABOUT RUNNING THAT LOCOMOTIVE OUT HERE ON THIS OLD LOOP LINE...

YOU'RE RIGHT, RED—I'M GOING TO FIND OUT!

YEAH

LISTEN... IF THIS THING WAS ON THE UP-AN-UP THIS CULLER WOULD SHILL THE WORKS! INSTEAD HE KEEPS HIS MOUTH SHUT!

you. He'd know if you were there, anyway.
"Oh, yes! He knew!"
"There you are! And you're telling me I oughtn't to have followed him! Or, again, he might have had a bust up with you. It was just a toss up, and I chose to follow him—and if I'd chosen two seconds later I'd have missed him, for he was off like a flash."
"Which way did he go?" asked Napoleon.
"This way," replied Guy. "The way we're going now. He kept to the beach for a bit, then swerved up through some sort of cliff path, and then ran along the cliff. And then, all at once, he tripped and fell."
"Did you catch him then?"
"I reached him. He'd crumpled up like a pricked gas balloon and honestly I thought the fellow was dead for a few moments, and got an awful scare. I don't mind admitting it. I've never had such a night in all my life. By the way, how's your hand?"
"Lovely. Go on! You reached him? Yes?"
"And I bent down over him. He did look a miserable object! I took his arm and shook it, and prodded him. And then, bing, he was up again, and nearly made me jump a hundred yards! 'You devil, you devil!' he shouted. 'Murderer! But you shan't murder me!'
"You ought to have heard him, Napoleon. He had a foreign accent, and his voice was absolutely terror-stricken. The words went up my spine all right, though they don't sound anything when I say them."
"They don't sound so bad," murmured Napoleon.
"He was off again the next moment, and I was off after him. I'd sort of got caught in the silly business by then, and there didn't seem anything else to do. Hallo—what's that?"
"What's what?" jerked Napoleon.

PECTEX

for Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Hoarseness
The Ideal Old-time Remedy in New Form.

60 cents per bottle

LINSEED-LEMON-HOT-WATER-CAMPHOR-SQUILLS-LIQUORICE.

PECTEX is based on the knowledge and experience of the wise old people. No Alkaloidal or Poisonous Opiates of any description whatever are in Pectex. You cannot cure a cough by smothering it.

PECTEX causes the inflammation to subside by renewing the blood circulation in the affected membrane. The choking, rattling phlegm liquefies and is made as harmless as the natural saliva of the mouth and throat.

PECTEX can be taken as an Elixir and slipped drop by drop. Can be taken by the tea or tablespoonful diluted with water according to the age of the sufferer.

PECTEX, after a very few doses, makes the throat tickling (that means neither you or others can sleep comfortably) disappear completely. Pectex makes the voice return to its normal tone note. It is an ideal cough balsam and a cough specific.

ST. DUNSTAN'S

WONDERFUL WORK FOR BLINDED EX-SOLDIERS

Wars end, wounds heal, but blindness remains—and increases. There are two thousand blinded soldiers now; there were twenty-seven now cases this year. All Great War men. How long drawn is the agony of the War.

But St. Dunstan's has a plan to conquer blindness, and the plan is succeeding.

This is the optimistic, cheerful note of the Eighteenth Annual Report of St. Dunstan's, which has just been published and may be had from the Secretary at St. Dunstan's Headquarters, Regent's Park, London.

Spiritually, St. Dunstan's is an example of fortitude in misfortune—of triumph over despair. Materially, St. Dunstan's is the Empire's organisation for the Empire's blinded soldiers, sailors and airmen.

Help goes out from St. Dunstan's to the two thousand families all over the Empire. Help with their work, by finding employment and markets for professional men and craftsmen; help with their pensions, in legal or other difficulties; financial assistance in cases of need, and a wonderfully organised medical service and Convalescent Home at Brighton.

The plan of St. Dunstan's does not stop at work. Play, too, is organised and encouraged. Illustrations in the annual report show the men rowing, walking, enjoying field sports, and a variety of outdoor and indoor games.

No blinded soldier must lack the comfort which St. Dunstan's can bring him, and none does, as the Report shows. He cannot see, but St. Dunstan's will see for him, and the flaming torch which is the

CUBA SLAUGHTER

HEAVY CASUALTIES IN DISORDERS

Havana, Nov. 12. Over 200 persons have been killed since the revolt of November 8 and hundreds have been wounded or are in prisons and hospitals.

Hospitals are crowded over capacity, but as far as can be ascertained there have been no British casualties.

Although the revolt has been virtually quelled, the public is still inflamed and shooting continues throughout the city, snipers having installed themselves on the house-tops.

An earlier report that the city was returning to normal was a little premature. Nearly 1,000 rebels have already surrendered, however, and are in prison awaiting court-martial. —Reuter.

badge of St. Dunstan's, is fitting symbol of the light it has shed upon these darkened lives.

But the war against war-blindness will not end for forty years—until the last blinded soldier has passed away. To ensure life-long care of every blinded soldier requires, as the Report points out, the building up of a Fund while the memory of the War is still in the public mind. In ten years' time the War will have been over for a quarter of a century.

St. Dunstan's appeals inevitably to the emotions—for who would not wish to help a blinded soldier if he could. And as inevitably to reason, for two thousand happy blinded soldiers are an asset and an example to all. The Report convinces the reader that support for St. Dunstan's is support for a worthy cause and one well managed.

LESSON SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

The Golden Text was: "The earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God" (Romans 8:19).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "There was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews: The same came to Jesus by night, and said unto him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him. Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God... That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit" (John 3:1-3, 6).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Earth has little light or joy for mortals before Life is spiritually learned. Every agony of mortal error, helps error to destroy error, and so aids in the apprehension of immortal Truth. This is the new birth going on hourly, by which men may enter- tain angels, the true ideas of God, the spiritual sense of being" (p.548).

CATHEDRAL ALTAR MAN'S SUDDEN MENTAL DERANGEMENT

There was a distressing scene in St. Barnabas' Roman Catholic Cathedral, Nottingham, shortly before the celebration of High Mass recently. A young Irishman left his seat, rushed up to the sanctuary, and disarranged the altar. Albert Billson, a vergor, who went to prevent him was knocked down in front of the altar, and members of the congregation went to grapple with the man, who made a terrific fight. With one member of the congregation he rolled under the choir stalls. Police were called and the man, who was stated to have become mentally deranged, was strapped to a stretcher and taken to a Poor Law Institution.

GERMANY AND THE PEACE CAUSE

First Comment on the Election

Berlin, Nov. 12.
The first press comment on the election says that the choice for the world is military force or reconstruction.
German policy has decided definitely for the latter. It is now the business of others to act, although the basis must be equal rights.
He who wishes to serve the cause of peace must not talk of sanctions, or revenge, or of the non-return of the Saar to Germany.—Reuter.

GERMANY'S AVOWAL

WHOLE COUNTRY GOES TO POLL

FAVOUR HITLER POSITIVISM

Berlin, Nov. 13.
The German people have confirmed before the world its solemn avowal of the policy and its full support for the Nazi Party, according to a Government spokesman commenting on the election result.
The country's verdict was an overwhelming victory for Hitler. Even the prisoners in the concentration camps appear to have turned Nazi and an amnesty for political prisoners is a considered probable for their splendid demonstration of faith in Hitler.
The final results for the city of Berlin show that 1,135,233 voted Nazi as compared with 338,687 in the Reichstag election in March.

"FLAG DAY"

In order to celebrate the victory in the Minister of Propaganda, Herr Goebbels, has instructed the entire population of Germany to bedeck their houses with flags to-day.
The only untoward incident occurred at Dortmund, where a Communist distributing handbills was shot dead by the police when he was attempting to escape.
Hitler's plans for the future are likely to be quickly revealed.

CHANGES LIKELY.

It is understood that the Government has already planned extensive constitutional changes.
One of the first steps likely to be taken is the abolition of the Federal States and the division of Germany into departments along the lines of France for administrative purposes.
All powers and authority will thus be centralised and Prussian domination of the Federal States system ended.

OFFICIAL FIGURES.

Official provisional final figures of the election and plebiscite are as follows:
For the Reichstag:
Total votes 42,975,000
For Hitler 39,625,047
Invalid 3,349,953
In the Plebiscite:
Total votes 43,489,046
Yes 40,588,804
No 2,100,181

INEVITABLE RESULT.

London, Nov. 13.
The double referendum in Germany has produced the almost inevitable result, states The Times in a leading article.
It was not to be expected, says the journal, that there would be many absentees from this grand parade of the nation. Abstention would have been too perilous.
But it should also be recognised that uninfluenced open voting would always have given any German Government a substantial vote in favour of the positive side of Hitler's policy in claiming complete equality for Germany.
The Times concludes: Hitler has standardised Germany. Henceforth it will be with a National Socialist Germany that foreign nations will have to deal.—Reuter.

VISITORS SENT BACK FOR 103

MINU HAS BRIGHT SPELL AFTER LUNCH

COMMANDING LEAD

HONGKONG ESTABLISHED THEMSELVES IN A DOMINATING POSITION IN THE INTER-PORT CRICKET MATCH AGAINST SHANGHAI THIS AFTERNOON.

Successes of the morning were followed up by a brilliant spell of bowling by A. R. Minu, securing the dismissal of the Shanghai team for an addition of 49 runs and a total of 103.

Hongkong were thus able to enter upon their second innings with a lead of 137 runs, giving them a grip of the game that they should not lose.

Only Donald Leach showed any ability to play the Hongkong bowlers. Booth was associated with him in a partnership that produced 30 odd runs, but after Booth had gone, the match developed into a procession with Leach living things up by an occasional boundary hit. He batted brilliantly in the circumstances and was not out at the close of the innings. Pereira and Minu bowled splendidly.

HONGKONG BRILLIANT IN FIELD

Almost on the stroke of 11 a.m., Dunkley (2 not out) and E. R. Fincher (17 not out) resumed Hongkong's innings, the former facing Isaacs, who was bowling from the Supreme Court end. On the second ball sent down to him, Dunkley nicked it to the fine leg boundary for a four. He was nearly caught at "silly leg" off the next ball, but it fell just wide.

"Torry" Wilson's first over sent down to Fincher was a maiden.
DUNKLEY BOWLED.
After Isaacs had sent down another maiden over to Dunkley, Fincher took the score to 240 by a drive to extra cover for a four, reached in 271 minutes. Fincher incidentally also reached his 20.
Hongkong's innings closed at 240, Isaacs bowling Dunkley in the next over. Each batsman had added only four to his own score, Dunkley having six and Fincher 21.
They had put on 16 runs for the last wicket.

Hongkong took 273 minutes for their 240 runs.

SHANGHAI'S INNINGS.
Shanghai's innings commenced at 11.24 a.m. Donald Leach sending out Stokes and Simpson to open. The former faced Beck from the Naval Yard end, and was bowled by the first ball sent down to him. 0-1-0.

"Pat" Madar went out first legged down, and took a single to open his account. Simpson also took a single off Beck in the same over.
Contrary to expectations, Garthwaite was given the ball at the other end, and sent down a maiden over to Simpson.

Beck was bowling very fast, and came off the pitch at a good speed. Madar had an uncomfortable over, but kept his wicket intact.

GARTHWAITE BUMPS.
Garthwaite was just short of a good length, but he bumped up awkwardly, and the batsmen found it difficult to score off him. With one of his short ones, he hit Madar on the shoulder.
The 10 was hoisted after Simpson had put Garthwaite to the Chater Road railings for a four.

Further disaster befell Shanghai in the very next ball. He tried to turn a straight one to leg, and was given marching orders for obstruction. He had scored eight out of a total of 10, reached (Continued on Page 11.)

Owen Hughes, the Hongkong skipper, narrowly escaped being run out.

LITVINOFF UPSET

WASHINGTON HITCH

THE PRESIDENT'S ATTITUDE

New York, Nov. 12.
American recognition of the Soviet Government and the opening of diplomatic relations is apparently not to be the smooth sailing imagined.
President Roosevelt has slowed negotiations up by introducing matters which M. Litvinoff did not expect to be raised at this stage.

It now seems clear that the Soviet will have to submit to an intensive examination of all outstanding differences with the United States before President Roosevelt will authorize recognition.

TALKS PROLONGED.

This has been indicated by the prolongation of the discussions with M. Litvinoff after everything seemed to be on the verge of settlement, and the White House correspondent of the New York Herald-Tribune reports that the delay is the result of the President's insistence upon a detailed understanding on all important issues.

Another paper declares that the Soviet's total claims for reparations on account of the American intervention at Archangel and in Siberia in 1919 exceed the combined sum of the American debt and private claims against Russia.

LITVINOFF SURPRISED.

M. Litvinoff, who is consulting Moscow on the points which have been raised in the later stages of the discussions, is reported to be very surprised by the turn of events.—Reuter.

BANK SENSATION

SHAREHOLDERS CLAIM FOR LOSSES

New York, Nov. 13.
A group of shareholders in the Chase Bank have filed an action in the New York Supreme Court against Mr. Albert Wiggins, the former chairman of the Bank.

The action also embraces 135 Directors of the Chase National Bank in addition to Mr. Wiggins, and it is filed with the object of recovering the $100,000,000 losses of the bank owing to alleged "negligence, waste and misconduct."

Mr. Wiggins is charged with using the bank's position to his own gain "illegally regardless of the interests of the stockholders."
It is assumed that the action is the sequel to the evidence recently given at the Senate Committee's investigation into the affairs of the Chase Bank, following which Mr. Wiggins voluntarily surrendered his annual pension of $100,000.—Reuter.

NEW JAPANESE AIR BASE

BIG PROJECT ON THE BONINS

Shanghai, Nov. 13.
A report from Japanese sources states that the Japanese War Office is planning to construct an air base on the Bonin Island at an estimated expenditure of Y6,000,000.—Central News Agency.

With a bullet wound in the right leg, Fung Tam (80) was admitted to the Kowloon Hospital yesterday, after arrival on the Canton train. He was shot at the village of Sheung Hang Kung, but the precise circumstances have not been disclosed.

WARSHIP SINKING RUMOURS

DENIAL FROM MOSCOW

RUSSO-JAPANESE SENSATION

Sensational stories have been published in newspapers in Japan and elsewhere concerning armed clashes between the Soviet and Japan.

One report alleges that during the Japanese aerial invasion of Russian territory on November 3, six of the Japanese machines were shot down by Soviet troops.

Another incident is alleged to have occurred in Russian waters near Kamchatka, and here the story goes, two Japanese warships were sunk!

It will be recalled that the Tokyo War Office denied that any aeroplanes, belonging to the Japanese Army had ever crossed the Siberian border.

TASS COMMENT.

The official Tass Agency in Moscow (says Reuter) yesterday issued a press announcement declaring that both stories, the shooting down of Japanese planes and the sinking of Japanese ships were "an absolute invention."
Similar comment is made in Moscow on reports in the Osaka Asahi, quoting a statement by a person who "travelled via Siberia."
The Asahi story declared that "a great military demonstration" will shortly take place in the Soviet Far East, in the vicinity of the Sea of Japan; bombers with loads of bombs, will fly out into the open sea, and mechanised chemical warfare detachments will be concentrated at a number of points.

FANTASTIC ABSURDITY.

This report, states Izvestia, represents anti-Soviet gossip, fantastic absurdity, circulated by the Japanese newspaper at the order of Japanese militarists who need such insinuations in order to cover up their "work" of preparation for an attack on the U.S.S.R.

SINO-RUSSIAN TREATY

SCULPTOR DEAD

NOTED SCOTTISH ARTIST

MR. JOHN TWEED

London, Nov. 12.
John Tweed, the eminent Scottish sculptor, died to-day, at the age of 64.

He rose rapidly into prominence soon after his return to England after receiving art training at the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris. He took a studio in Chelsea, and produced sculptured works which attracted much attention. Among those who called on him when in England were Cecil Rhodes and Dr. Jameson.

On one occasion Rhodes spoke in semi-serious vein of his probable last resting place. By the turn of events, Tweed became associated with his passing, for he was selected to execute the Rhodes memorial statue erected at Bulawayo.

Meanwhile he was engaged on a number of large-scale memorials to eminent men. But he also produced a work of an entirely different character. This was a beautiful nude figure of a crouching woman—Latona, the mother by Jupiter of Apollo and a sufferer under Juno's jealousy. I viewed sent the piece to the Royal Academy, but it was given such a poor position that it was almost hidden. He thereupon dispatched a cast of it to the Paris Salon. There it met with an enthusiastic reception and Rodin spoke of it in very high terms.

The Paris authorities made Tweed an associate of the Societe Nationale des Beaux Arts and invited him to send them the original marble. But he decided that he could not part with it and for years the work remained in his studio veiled and only uncovered at the request of sympathetic visitors.

Among Tweed's works are the national memorial to Lord Kitchener on the Horse Guards Parade, a statue of Sir John Moore at Shorncliffe, a bust of Joseph Chamberlain in Westminster Abbey and statues of Queen Victoria at Aden and Madras, of Alfred Beit at Salisbury, Rhodesia, of Lord Clive in London and of Lord Chesham at Aylesbury. In 1930 he was engaged on a statue of Sir Charles Coghlan, late Premier of Southern Rhodesia, to stand at Bulawayo with his figure of Rhodes.—Reuter and Special.

CORPL. DOUGHTY IMPROVING

An improvement is reported in the condition of Cpl. John Doughty, one of the accused, in the Examination Paper Disclosure court martial, who was taken ill on Thursday evening. It was feared that Doughty had developed pneumonia but he is now stated to be suffering from an attack of fever.
On account of Doughty's sudden illness the Court adjourned on Friday morning until 10 a.m. to-day, when a further adjournment until further notice was made.
It is probable that the Court will assemble formally to-morrow morning and be then dissolved.

Palatable Peach Pudding Is Easily Prepared

IT'S SUBSTANTIAL ADDITION TO LUNCHEON;
DESSERT SHOULD BE WHOLESOME AND FILLING

PEACH-AND-TAPIOCA PUDDING ARRANGED LIKE THIS SHOULD TEMPT ANY APPETITE

Trying to serve the same old dishes in a new way is a weighty problem which often confronts the average home-maker.

Sticking to the good old simple recipes is all well enough. But unless you vary them sometimes, making them look as well as taste a little different, you'll find your family passing up the dessert course occasionally. And, after all, this last course is by no means an unimportant one.

Dessert May Be Substantial
Nearly everyone needs a bit of sweet. Desserts provide just that.
Luncheons are not the hearty meals they used to be. Most of us are content with a bowl of soup, a salad and perhaps a roll. But you say that is not enough to keep a person, particularly a school child, satisfied—until the dinner hour. Very well then, let the dessert be wholesome and filling.

For the mother who has to serve a daily luncheon to school children as well as older members of her family, there just isn't anything nicer for dessert than a pudding.
Easy to digest, palatable and certainly simple to prepare, pudding recipes are not to be overlooked.

Tapioca pudding makes an ideal luncheon dessert. By changing and dressing it up a little, you can induce your family to eat all you've made and beg for more.

Peaches are in season right now.
Why not make the most of them while they last? Here's the way to make a grand peach tapioca pudding.

One-third cup of tapioca, 1-2 cup of sugar, 1-4 teaspoon of salt, 1 quart of milk, scalded, 1 egg yolk, slightly beaten, 1 teaspoonful of flavouring and 1 egg white, stiffly beaten.

Add tapioca, sugar and salt to milk and cook in a double boiler for 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear. Stir it often.

Stir in Peaches
Pour a little of the mixture over the egg yolk, stirring constantly.
Put it all back into the double boiler and cook until thickened.
Remove from the fire and add the flavouring. Fold in the beaten egg white and place in the ice box to chill.

When you are ready to serve the pudding, place it all in one of your prettiest bowls, garnish with slices of fresh peaches and set the bowl right on the table to be served there.

To give a more decided peach flavour to the dessert, stir a cup of finely sliced peaches into the pudding after it starts to chill. This recipe serves six.

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

A Summer Mystery BY J. JEFFERSON FARJEON

CHAPTER XXIV

"Guy's Story."

"Excuse me, but is your name Guy Haines?" asked Napoleon, politely.

"Well, I'll be blown!" replied that individual. "What—how on earth did you get here?"

"The amazement is mutual," murmured Napoleon. "How on earth did you get here?"

"That's a bit of a story," muttered Guy, glancing uneasily towards the forest. "I don't know if there's time to tell it. I suppose you know who it was barged into you like that?"

"I haven't an idea," answered Napoleon, "excepting that it was someone with a very pointed head. But did you see that little episode, Guy? If so, why didn't you stop him?"

"I was trying to stop him, dolt," retorted Guy. "I was chasing him when you and that bobby came lumbering along. It was Luigi!"

"What, that miserable little Italian?" exclaimed Napoleon. "Yes, that miserable little Italian," nodded Guy. "Look here, Nappy—"

"Napoleon, please. 'Nappy' is strictly reserved."

"Oh, shut up! This isn't the time for assing about! Look here, Napoleon Bonaparte, what the dickens is happening? Why is Luigi haunting this forest, and why is a policeman chasing him? And why are you here?"

"And once more, why are you?" interposed Napoleon. "After we all came back from the boat, we found you still missing—"

"What? Have you really been to the boat, then?"

"Oh, Lord, Guy, don't you know anything?" groaned Napoleon. "Yes, we went to the boat, and a whole heap of things happened—"

"Dead men and lunatics and telephone wires cut and goodness knows what else besides—and when we counted up six absentees, we thought it time to do a little hunting. So Sefton fetched the police, and a hunting we did go. You and Luigi were two of the six, so now there are only four left. I think I've done my whack. Did you leave the hotel to chase Luigi?"

"No, I didn't," answered Guy, again glancing towards the forest, and then turning and staring towards the north. "I left the hotel to chase you—"

"No?"

"Yes. You're not a bad fellow, Napoleon; but you're a prize ass, and no mistake. I never meant you to take that silly bet seriously, and you've given me a proper scare."

"Glad to hear it," responded Napoleon. "I've had some proper scares, too. I say, I think I'll sit down again for a jiffy. You know, I banged my head a bit."

Guy looked at him anxiously. "I say, old chap, are you bad?" he asked.

"No. But a couple of minutes will just set me on my feet again."

"Then I'm jolly glad I turned back, and let the bobby finish the chase," said Guy, helping his companion down to a grassy mound. "That better? Good. Yes, I saw you go down, though I didn't know who you were. In the excitement, and it suddenly occurred to me that I'd better come back and have a look. Good thing I did, eh? I—I wish you felt better, though. I—fact is—I want some help."

"And once more his eyes roved northwards."

"Then I'm your man," answered Napoleon, "as soon as my head stops buzzing—and it's buzzing less and less every moment. What about telling your story while the buzz dwindles? You say you left the hotel to find me, oh? What—over made you do that?"

"A vision of your dead body floating in on the tide," responded Guy. "And of myself going through the rest of my life feeling like an unhung murderer. I went to your room to tell you not to be a blithering ass about that bet, and I found you'd gone. So I went after you, and a beastly time I had of it—though it's just as well I did go, as you'll see in a minute. I searched all over the place, and went down to the beach, and even poked about in caves—"

"You surprise me," murmured Napoleon.

"But it was no go. Nothing doing. So at last I returned to the hotel, thinking that you'd probably thought better of it and returned, too. But your room was still empty, and then I got the wind up properly."

"Jolly nice of you," said Napoleon. "Go on. What did you do next? Ring the fire alarm?"

"No—I went to Sefton's room. He was out, too. Really, I thought everybody was going loony! Anyway, I couldn't get you off my mind, so out I went again, and searched another part of the beach, and I was just about to return and give the whole thing up when—"

"When an extraordinary thing happened. I say," he broke off, anxiously. "How are you feeling? If you think you could move, I could tell you the rest while we're walking."

Napoleon tapped his head. "The bee seems to be going," he reported. "In fact, I think it's gone. But where do you want us to walk to?"

Guy pointed northwards, towards the path along which Napoleon and the constable had been travelling when the cry had drawn them to the wood.

"Over in that direction," said Guy. "And the quicker we start, the better. You know, I'm not much good at this game. . . . Shall I help you up?"

"Not necessary," answered Napoleon. "Observe, I am up. Lead the way, old chap, and jaw as we go. What was this extraordinary thing that happened?"

"Why, this," replied Guy, as they began their journey. "Jolly dark, isn't it? I wonder when it will start getting light? I've had enough night to last me a lifetime. What do you think? As I stood on the beach, I saw a black thing come towards me across the water, and it was a boat."

"Hallo, there's old Napoleon!" thought, and felt jolly pleased. But then I saw only one person was in the boat, and that puzzled me. You see, I knew that Sefton was out, too, and thought you'd taken him along with you."

"That's right—I did," nodded Napoleon. "I think I can guess who was in that boat!"

"You can? Well I'm guessing, he's a lunatic! He was rowing as fast as he could, as though his life depended upon it, and when I found out it wasn't you I thought I wouldn't show myself till I did know who it was. So I kept out of the way, in the shadows, and watched him beach his boat. Out he jumped, a tall fellow—"

"With a beard?"

"Yes, with a beard. But do you mean to say you've met him?"

"Well, I wouldn't say we've been introduced, exactly," replied Napoleon, "but we have sort of bumped into each other. That boat he beached was our boat, Guy—that is, the boat Sefton and I rowed out to the wreck in. We found him on the wreck, and he stole our boat behind our backs, leaving us there with a dead man for company."

"My hat!" murmured Guy, pausing. "Do you mean that? I thought you were rotting just now when you spoke about dead men and lunatics."

"Yes, I mean it."

"And—is the dead chap on board now?"

"Yes."

"Who? But, look here, how did you get off?"

"We were rescued by a party from the hotel, including your sister, by the way, who's been worrying herself stiff about you. Why didn't you leave a note or something? Some people don't deserve to have sisters, and that's a fact."

"Perhaps you'd like her?"

"I jolly well would—though not precisely as a sister. However, this isn't business. What did that lunatic do when he beached the boat?"

"Yes, he's a lunatic, all right," nodded Guy, proceeding with his story. "He was muttering to himself, though I couldn't hear what he was muttering. Then he began creeping about the beach as though he was scared of something. He didn't seem to have any plan of action—was something like a ship that had lost its rudder. If you know what I mean. At last he lived towards the road, and I thought I'd seen the last of him, and I was even thinking of going off in that boat, Napoleon, to try and find you."

"Why didn't you, darling?" enquired Napoleon. "It's lovely on the water."

"Shut up! Because—that ass came bounding back again, and then started bounding along the beach. Something had frightened him."

"I wonder whether that was the hotel rescue party?" mused Napoleon. "They'd have got to the beach at about that time, and they used the same boat. Dear old Daisy! She must have got giddy, going backwards and forwards."

"Who's Daisy?"

"The boat, Nelly, proceed. What did you do then?"

"Why?"

"Can't say, old chap. He was acting so queerly, I thought it might be as well."

"It might also have been as well to have found out what had frightened him?" suggested Napoleon. "Then you'd have bumped into your sister and Co."

"Well, I didn't, anyhow," retorted Guy, "and in cases like this you don't always do the right thing. I tell you, my mind was all tied up in knots, with all this business. It was getting on my nerves. And then there was another vague idea I had. This chap had come from the wreck, hadn't he? At least, I concluded he had, and now you tell me I was right. I thought that if I caught him up I might get some news of WORLD'S GREATEST TECHNICAL PLANT the Hoover Dam in South California can be called, indeed. The construction which will take ten years is calculated to amount to 337 million Dollars. Our picture shows the latest overhead view of the dam, looking upstream.

Successor to the Victoria Nursing Home and maintaining the link with the great queen's diamond jubilee, the Victoria Nursing Home, an impressive eight storey structure on the Great Western Road, built for the Shanghai Municipal Council to the plans of the Public Works Department, was declared open recently. The group above, taken in the first floor lounge after the opening speech of the chairman of the Council (Mr. A. D. Bell), contains the following:—Seated, left to right: Dr. A. C. Bryson, Dr. E. L. Marsh, Miss E. Rice (Matron, Country Hospital), Mr. A. D. Bell (Chairman S.M.C.), Miss M. Johnston, (Matron, Victoria Nurses' Home), Miss C. E. Jones, Asst. Matron, Country Hospital). Standing, left to right: Messrs. F. W. Massey, J. R. Jones, W. P. Lamb, T. Funnell, E. B. Macnaghten, Dr. W. K. Dunscombe, Dr. E. J. Bowen, Messrs. R. A. Hamburger, C. Harper and E. F. Harris.

CHANGE OF QUEENS.—In Manchester, England, a new Railway Queen has been elected. Our photo shows the last year's Queen handing her insignia to the new proclaimed Queen of this year.

Jack Sharkey, former heavyweight champion, struck another snag in his come-back campaign when he lost a 16-round decision in Philadelphia to Tommy Loughran, one-time light heavyweight king. Loughran (right) grabs the long right arm with which he succeeded in keeping his heavier rival at bay.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Janet Gaynor has never shown her talents to better advantage than in her newest starring vehicle, "Paddy, The Next Best Thing", in which she is co-starred with Warner Baxter at the King's Theatre.

Cast as a lively little Irish lass whose sole fault is her ability to tell white lies, a quality that eventually enravels her in all sorts of entanglements, she performs in her usual charming manner. Warner Baxter, as the son of the Irish coastal town in which "Paddy" takes place does an excellent piece of acting in a typically romantic Warner Baxter role.

The others of the cast, including Margaret Lindsay, who will be remembered as the "Titanic" girl in "Cavalcade" and Walter Connolly, from the New York stage, all do their utmost to make "Paddy" an enjoyable screen work.

"Night After Night"

George Raft, who skyrocketed to film fame through supporting roles in "Scarface", "Panacea in the Dark," and "Madame Racketeer," is playing the featured role in "Night After Night," coming on Thursday to the Queen's Theatre, with Constance Cummings, Wynne Gibson, Mae West and Alison Skipworth. The picture is from Lewis Bromfield's novel, "Single Night."

Raft, born in that hard-boiled fighting region of New York City where the "Forties" meet Tenth Avenue, boxed in the featherweight division while in his middle teens. He also played baseball. As soon as dancing became his hobby he turned to it for a living, and became a favourite at all the big New York night clubs.

Something of the life he led and people he knew is incorporated in the story of "Night After Night," directed by Archie Mayo and founded upon a Broadway story that is a slice of life from the heart of the "big town." The role played is that of proprietor of a popular little night club and former dancer, pianist and ball player!

"The Shadow"

One of the outstanding features of "The Shadow", at the King's Theatre on Wednesday, is Viola Compton's brilliant comedy characterization of Mrs. Bascombe. Her performance is even more of a triumph than it appears, as she was very far from feeling in a mood for humour when these scenes were shot. Her only son had just been operated upon and was lying dangerously ill in hospital while Viola Compton was registering laughs for the benefit of camera and "mike".

"It was naturally a very worrying time for me", said Miss Compton, "but there is an old saying, 'Keeping smiling' in which I am a firm believer. Anyway, I was compelled to keep smiling for my part! Everyone at the studio was very kind and sympathetic, and I am glad to say that my son is now well on the road to recovery!"

Bravo, Miss Compton!

"The Eagle and The Hawk"

Paramount's thrilling story of the drama, excitement and adventure of war aviation, "The Eagle and The Hawk," is being shown at the Queen's Theatre and kept a highly enthusiastic audience literally on the edge of its seats from fade-in to fade-out.

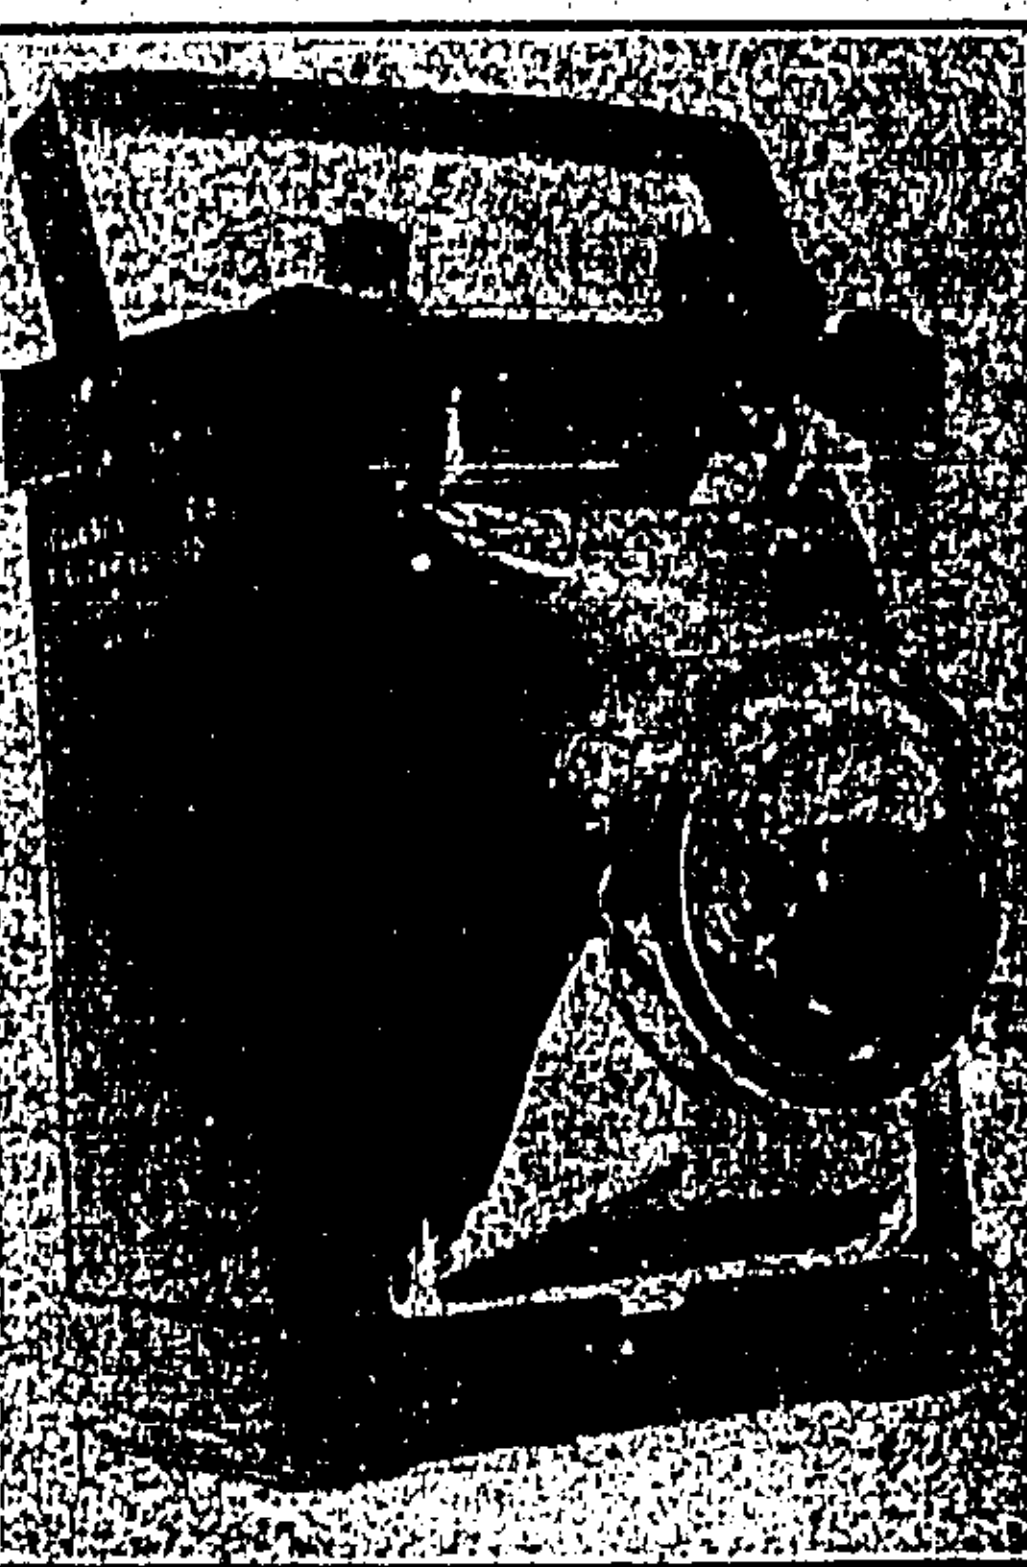

Packed with even more aerial thrills than were seen in "Wings" and "Hell's Angels," the film reveals the tragedy and romance and philosophy in the lives of the intrepid aviators who soared through crimson-cloved skies during the War. The power and strength of the story are equalled only by its star-filled cast—Frederic March, Cary Grant, Carole Lombard and Jack Oakie.

John Monk Saunders, who created "Wings," wrote the story. And what a story it is! Moving with lightning-like rapidity, it builds thrill upon thrill and reaches one of the most unusual climaxes that has written films to any picture. You'll be talking for days about the death-tempting air scenes—boiling chandelies, nose-dives, spirals, crack-ups, flaring balloons, tail-spins, acrobatics, loops! They're almost too realistic to believe!

Handsome and debonaire "Frederic March, chosen the best actor of 1932, gives another of his powerfully dramatic portrayals, and Cary Grant gives a no less inspiring performance. Carole Lombard does complete justice to her romantic role, and Jack Oakie puts his comedy lines across in hilarious fashion. Stuart Walker did a brilliant directorial job.

Many a cake falls before it gets in the oven.

talking to son, but in the spirit of real comradeship.

If I had married later, say at thirty-five, and been rewarded by a son, he would not yet be fifteen. Then I should feel acutely the gap in our years, sensing that, in comparison with himself, my young son regarded me as an old man. For which reason, if for no other, I should always be opposed to marriage later than twenty-six.

And, of course, there is the decisive consideration that, once having reached twenty-five, the longer a bachelor delays marriage the more likely is he to become self-opinionated, if not actually selfish.

I have had a liberal share of hardship. I do not think it has done me any harm. My friends tremble to think what I should be like without those constant hard knocks which, I fancy, have left me measurably tolerant to others. Because I believe hardship does give a man a sense of human fellowship, and does help him to a kinder understanding of human weakness and frailty, I should ask God, in that second chance which I am imagining, not to decree me too smooth a path through life.

Only if I am to suffer, let me have the courage to bear my misfortunes uncomplainingly, along with the smiling disposition to make light of the rebuffs which in this uncertain world come to most men and women.

HONGKONG AS AN AIR PORT

Information in regard to the development of civil aviation in Hongkong which we are able to publish to-day, coupled with other activities of which we have already taken note, suggests that the time is rapidly approaching when our Director of Air Services will be something more than a mere figure-head of a practically non-existent department. The prospect is that in the not distant future there will be a series of services radiating from Hongkong which will place this Colony in a prominent position amongst the air ports of the world. In some senses, the most attractive feature of the situation is the probable early linking-up of Hongkong with the Empire airway chain. This, as is explained elsewhere in this issue, will bring Hongkong within ten or eleven days' journey of London. The advantages to commerce which this will mean, in the provision of regular, rapid communication with the Old Country and with intermediate regions, are too obvious to require emphasis. So far, as passenger transport is concerned, it is of course, hardly to be expected that there will be any rush in the way of bookings for the full extent of the route. None the less, circumstances might conceivably arise in which the ability to get to London in considerably less than a fortnight would justify the taking of the trip, the more so since equal rapid return facilities would be available. A further point to be stressed is that under the projected plans Hongkong would be linked with the Empire service to Australia as well as to the Old Country. Here, again, the new facilities would be of the utmost value. Side by side with these aspects of the question we have to take note also of the developments now under way for linking Hongkong aerially with China and the Philippines. They are checked for the moment, but the spirit of enterprise is abroad, and, happily, the Hongkong Government is disposed to render assistance of a practical nature so as to facilitate the aerial progress of the Colony. Solutions will doubtless soon be found. Hongkong may have been slow in starting in the sphere of aviation, but it is now rapidly making up leeway. The outlook to-day is decidedly rosy. Persistence, together with common-sense methods in dealing with the obstacles which have arisen and may arise, should be productive of early and beneficial results.

NOTES OF THE DAY

A SPOILED EFFECT

If there is a certain scepticism concerning the sincerity of Germany's sudden leaning towards reconciliation on the disarmament issue, the doubters may be forgiven in view of the more pugnacious side of Herr Hitler's character, which flashed out again in his broadcast speech on Friday evening. His repeated denunciations of war and its futility together with fervent protestations of Germany's peaceable intentions, take a great deal of digesting, coming as they do on top of the astonishing war doctrines taught throughout the Reich. Herr Hitler has already half spoiled the effect of his expression of willingness to talk things over by his later assertion that Germany must have what she wants or she will not be seen in the councils of the nations again.

IRRÉDUCIBLE MINIMUM

Presumably Germany's 'irreducible minimum' will be announced this week and final judgment will be reserved until the details are available. In the meantime, a readjustment of outlook in Britain, France and elsewhere might serve to assist Europe in finding a solution to its present problems. Hitler has been responsible for many excesses and his manner has been anything but conducive to confidence. But half the excitement and criticism has undoubtedly arisen from the fact that Hitler is Germany's leader and that France will always fear Germany. If the surface situation is analysed calmly, it is difficult to find in it anything fundamentally more threatening to peace than was noticeable during the rise of Fascism in Italy, eleven or twelve years ago. Signor Mussolini was much the same sort of sabre-rattler, in his day; yet no real harm came of it; and it was probably intended largely for internal consumption to stir the people to development of a spirit of nationalism which certainly can be violently overdone but which is an important step in revitalising a nation.

EUROPE'S FEARS

The main difference between Hitler and Mussolini is that Hitler would find it far more difficult to find the resources for making war. Italy has always been well-armed and the efficiency of her forces has rapidly improved. Yet Europe is not apprehensive of danger from this quarter—and if she ever has been, events have disproved the fears. But for the fact that Herr Hitler has openly permitted the cultivation of a horrible philosophy, that war is good in itself, that women's duty is to bring babies into the world to fight for their country, that the letting of blood is essential to the spiritual well-being of the National God, no case could be made out against the justice of the German claims. But you cannot scare every neighbouring country with announcements of the wrath to come and then expect them to acquiesce in arrangements to that end. For that is how it seems to the chancelleries.

THOROUGH MIX-UP

Two points stand out in the situation. On the one side, the European Powers other than Germany are inclined to over-stress the seriousness of the rise of the Nazi Reich and have been encouraged in their attitude by Herr Hitler's own escapades. France sounds the alarm and it echoes through Europe. On the other side, Germany is so full of her own grievances, so many of them legitimate, that she sees everything in false perspective and blunders in almost every movement. Stresemann and Brüning lost Germany on an even keel, but their restraining influence is gone, and we have Herr Hitler, earnest enough, but lacking in diplomacy. A solution of the problems thus created will require the destruction of prejudices on both sides. And of that there is no sign.

GERMAN ELECTION

Hitler's triumph in yesterday's election was as complete as it could possibly have been, though it shows rather the completeness of the Nazi domination than completeness of popular support. It is just possible that they coincide; the circumstances are such that no accurate estimate can possibly be formed. Over 39,000,000 recorded their votes in favour of Herr Hitler and it would be folly to doubt that the great proportion acted in sincere conviction. Less than four million dared to express protest by rendering "invalid" votes. The number who voted pro-Nazi as wise policy cannot be assessed. The one thing certain is that few people dared to stay away from the booths.

IF I HAD MY LIFE OVER AGAIN

By BERNARD FALK

IN the quieter moments of existence, when we lean towards meditation, the man, or woman, who has reached fifty, and even beyond, must often feel tempted to review the dead years, and, so doing, fall to wondering whether he, or she, had wished it all to be changed. To believe that we are the conscious architects of our fortune, and not the sorry playthings of Fate, makes little difference to the poignancy with which the thought comes here. There must follow, in the more emotional of us, not merely an inquisition of the soul, but a close survey of the many mixed—perhaps contradictory—material influences that from birthday to birthday have shaped our passage. Given the will, and the means, now much that has happened to us would we care to alter?

In full sincerity, I say that to seek an answer to the riddle of a second chance in life is to encourage no frivolous mental exercise, but to undergo a solemn, significant, and impressive ordeal, from which mind and soul should emerge refreshed, and profited. We shall know, possibly for the first time, the landmarks in our years which we would not modify; while those occasions which have brought us great joy and happiness will take on a few reverences, and glow with more comforting heat.

What I recommend to others I apply to myself. As though I were a spectator at the play of my own life, I bring the years which I have lived again before me, and, with the main episodes duly impressed on my mind, I seek to compare the actual with the hypothetical, arguing, with some show of convincing reason, the changes for which, permitted a second choice, I should now elect.

I was born poor. I would want to be born poor; not that I am of the martyr type, with an ache and an instinct for suffering, but because I believe poverty, at the outset, to be a magnificent discipline, teaching us humanity, and what is as fine a virtue, humility. To start from the lowest rung in life, and then work one's way slowly upward, is, surely, to be rewarded with a more enduring satisfaction than can ever come from walking on velvet from one's birth.

If life is to be regarded as a fierce struggle, then those who, unaided, emerge from the conflict successfully have more cause for self-congratulation than such of their fellows to whom the necessity of the stern fight to survive is denied. Yet this qualification should be added: poverty, like riches, must be rightly used. There are self-made men whom early adversity turns hard. In their case poverty works as a curse. It does not keep them mellowed, which is its appropriate course, but, like cancer which it pervades, it, inwardly, destroys them. If I were poor again I would seek to be made arge, and stout, of heart.

I went to a great school but I did not go up to Oxford, or Cambridge. Give me my years over, and, on my knees, I would pray God to send me to Oxford. It is my one, everlasting regret that never was I secured the advantage which a young man should find in that hallowed centre of culture. There is a stamp, a polish, and an assurance to be had at The Great University, comparable with no mental refinements obtainable elsewhere. It is a rare gift to be that honourable creation, "Nature's gentleman," but if I could be such a one, I would wish also to be the other, bearer of the hallmark which the cultured society of Oxford inscribes on its heirs.

Culture, manners, bearing and mental refinement will not, in themselves, lead a man to worldly success. There must still be the dominant qualities which raise the deserving above the ruck. Let unite the two—the inborn will and ability to get on, with the grafted confidence and nobly proud demeanour with which Oxford endows its best sons—and with how much greater fortitude, resolution and assurance should one face life!

I became a journalist, finding it a precarious, but most exciting, and thrilling life. If I could not be a newspaper man again, I would wish for some career with equal bustle, stir, and novelty, and with equal share of the unexpected. To be a busy stockbroker might be an appropriate second choice. He has plenty of thrills. Daily he sees fortunes won and lost. In a short season he can become rich himself, and in the varying emotions exacted by the growth, or loss, of wealth obtains an unrivalled insight into human nature.

Neither a newspaper man, nor a stockbroker, I would beg to be put into the film business. There, I imagine, I should find enough excitement and surprise to compensate for the missed whirl of Fleet Street.

I married when I was twenty-six. Too young, or too old? I do not think so. On mature reflection I would not change the year. There are men who declare that early marriage proves the best or happiest, but surely to marry before twenty-six is to risk not knowing one's own mind?

I have also heard many people argue in favour of late marriage, pointing out, for one thing, as was done at the recent meeting of the British Association, that a father of a ripe age is likelier than a young parent to beget a child of mental brilliance. This theory of the older the father, the brighter the child, may be substantiated by scientific data, but I refuse to be impressed. Is the child's mind, alone, to be studied? Are his health and physique negligible quantities? Will any scientist urge that the child of an elderly father who may be forty-five, or fifty, stands as much chance of being physically robust as the child of an average parent of from twenty-five to thirty-five years of age?

The young wife and the elderly husband raise a problem which alone should make learned men hesitate before propagating changes in normal human behaviour.

I am not interested in the bearing of the marriage age on eugenics. What does concern me is the feeling that I should always want to marry sufficiently young to see my children grow up, and benefit by their companionship. My son is in his twenty-fourth year. He is of an age to be specially interesting to me. I can discuss my ideas with him and be assured of a sympathetic and intelligent hearing. He, in turn, can bring to me his own views, and, where necessary, his own worries, and we can go over them, not simply as father (Continued on Page 5.)

The Very Idea!

By Eddie Kelly, Inspector

JUST lately we've been reading nothing in the Correspondence Columns of local newspapers but about man's inhumanity to animals.

Why doesn't the S.P.C.A. put a stop to all this, somebody asks, and next day about a dozen take up the refrain.

But what about the other side of the question? We have an S.P.C.A. to look after animals, but what Society guards humans? Have you ever stopped to think how cruel animals sometimes are to humans?

We can recall, quite vividly, the stir there was in the newspapers about thirty years ago when a young lady named Miss Muffet was cruelly attacked by a spider.

When the police arrived on the scene Miss Muffet was in hysterics, and the ground was covered with curds and whey. The police were able to trace the assailant by the footprints in the ground, which corresponded with those of the spider in question.

But was any action taken against the spider? He was able to prove that he spun his web on a respectable pillar of the church, and had contributed largely to charity. So the police released him.

During our long association with the leading newspapers of the world we have only heard of one instance where an animal was punished for its crime, and it was we ourselves who ordered the punishment.

The offender was a tough old fowl-house gangster, who one morning noticed that the sun rose at 6 a.m. Forgetting that it had risen before and would probably rise again, he proceeded to tell the world about it.

At orderly room that day he was sentenced to death, and it cured him, but he was a tough customer in more ways than one.

HER TROUBLES

Mrs. Whaletooth was one of those far too good wives.

She nagged old Whaletooth continually for his own good, especially about his slovenly habits. Even when he was working, he could look decent, she said. She brushed, cleaned and mended his clothes for him continually.

But it was very irritating to him. He grew deadly sick of it; and that feeling drove him to the love affair with the other girl.

When he learnt that she was leaving for Shanghai, he started to go with her, merely taking time to draw his cash from the bank.

"Tell the Missus," he instructed us defiantly, "that I'm through—I'm sick of her nagging! I've gone off with Maggie to Shanghai; she can do as she likes."

"Vq broke the news to Mrs. Whaletooth yesterday. She was overcome.

"Oh, my heavens!" she wailed. "He's disgraced me—I'll never be able to show my face again! Him going all the way to Shanghai in that old suit that wants a button on it, and the shirt I asked him to change this morning! He, never, did think about appearances!"

LONDON-HONGKONG AIR SERVICE

INAUGURATION PROBABLE AT END OF NEXT YEAR

(Telegraph Special.)

Exclusive information obtained by the Telegraph from authoritative sources in London points to the probable provision, during the latter part of next year, of a weekly aerial service between Hongkong and London catering for both passengers and mail, under conditions permitting of the journey being accomplished in ten or eleven days.

So far as can be estimated at present, the fare for the trip will be about £175. This will include hotel accommodation at stopping-places, as well as tips, etc.—"everything excepting beer and baccy," to quote the words of one informant.

Within two years of the inauguration of the service, which will, most likely, be linked up with the Imperial Airways route from Singapore to London, the time will probably be cut down to eight or nine days, with a corresponding reduction in the fare.

NEGOTIATIONS NOW IN HAND

This information, together with further details of the probable plan to be followed, was secured by Mr. Alfred Hicks, editor of the Telegraph, as the result of enquiries made at the Air Ministry and in other authoritative quarters just before he returned from home leave to Hongkong.

To indicate Hongkong's proposed link in the Imperial chain, it is of interest to note that in July of this year the Imperial Airways, Ltd., after prolonged negotiations, secured the right to cross India, and in September the service was extended to Bangkok. The next step will be to carry the service on to Singapore, where Imperial Airways hope to establish a station in January next.

AUSTRALIA SERVICES.

From Singapore, the service will be extended to Australia. Tenders for this link have already been called for by the Australian Government, which will take over this section, one of the conditions being that the service must be controlled by a British concern with Australian domicile. These tenders have to be in by January 31st. This service will be from Singapore to Brisbane and then on to Coomundarra, for Sydney, Melbourne and Canberra.

Adjudication on the tenders will take about a month; after which the successful tenderers will have to provide the machines and equip the ground stations. The opening of the Australian service, therefore, cannot be expected before midsummer next, at the earliest. Imperial Airways and Q.A.N.T.A.S. (Queensland and Northern Territories Air Services) will send in a joint tender for the service.

IMPERIAL AIRWAYS KEEN.

Imperial Airways is keenly interested in linking up its main service at Singapore with Hongkong, Shanghai and possibly Japan. To put this service into operation will involve the conclusion of arrangements for crossing the territory of two foreign powers. So far as Indo-China is concerned, it is not presumed that there will be any difficulty in getting British rights to fly over this territory.

There should, it is pointed out, be no difficulty in getting a British-controlled company to serve Hongkong, although some countries—Siam and Indo-China—possibly China as well. The Siam Government is interested in the project, and the Far East Aviation Company, of Hongkong, is interested in the proposed inclusion of Hongkong in the chain.

Imperial Airways is at the moment actively concerned in the venture, so much so that the provision of a feeder service to include Hongkong is at the moment engaging its serious attention.

SIAMESE CO OPERATION.

Siam has at present a most efficient national aviation company which, it is believed, is quite willing to co-operate in an extension of its service to Hongkong and China. Imperial Airways will most likely proceed on the lines of inviting the Siamese Government to form a joint company with them, and Siam's good will and co-operation seem as contribution from the Hongkong Government would be necessary.

POST OFFICE GUARANTEE.

Another desirable condition, it is felt, would be for the Hongkong

Post Office to give its mails exclusive delivery to any British Company operating the service (even if other concerns also operate service), so long as a regular weekly service is provided. The estimate of ten or eleven days as the likely duration of the flight from Hongkong to London, is based on day flying only. In course of time, however, night flying might be likely along part of the route, notably from Cairo to Baghdad, in which event the time occupied in the flight would be correspondingly cut down. On the day flying basis, there would be numerous stops, with an average of three or four flights a day.

Once the necessary arrangements for flying over foreign territory have been made, there need be no delay in starting the service, as, to begin with, a few small machines would be quite adequate to cope with the traffic. Imperial Airways now have the matter of negotiations in hand, and its settled policy, it is understood, is a willingness to co-operate with the Far East Aviation Company, or any other British concern which is prepared to pull its weight and assist in putting the plan on a practical basis.

BY END OF NEXT YEAR. Once the link with Hongkong is forged, it should be possible eventually to connect up with the Chinese national services and so establish a continuous service from London and Australia to the whole of China, and, in due course, to Japan as well.

Plans are now well in train for the inauguration of the service, which, unless unforeseen obstacles are encountered, should be in operation by the end of 1934.

BIG MOTOR PLANT FOR CHINA

MONEY FROM BOXER INDEMNITY FUNDS

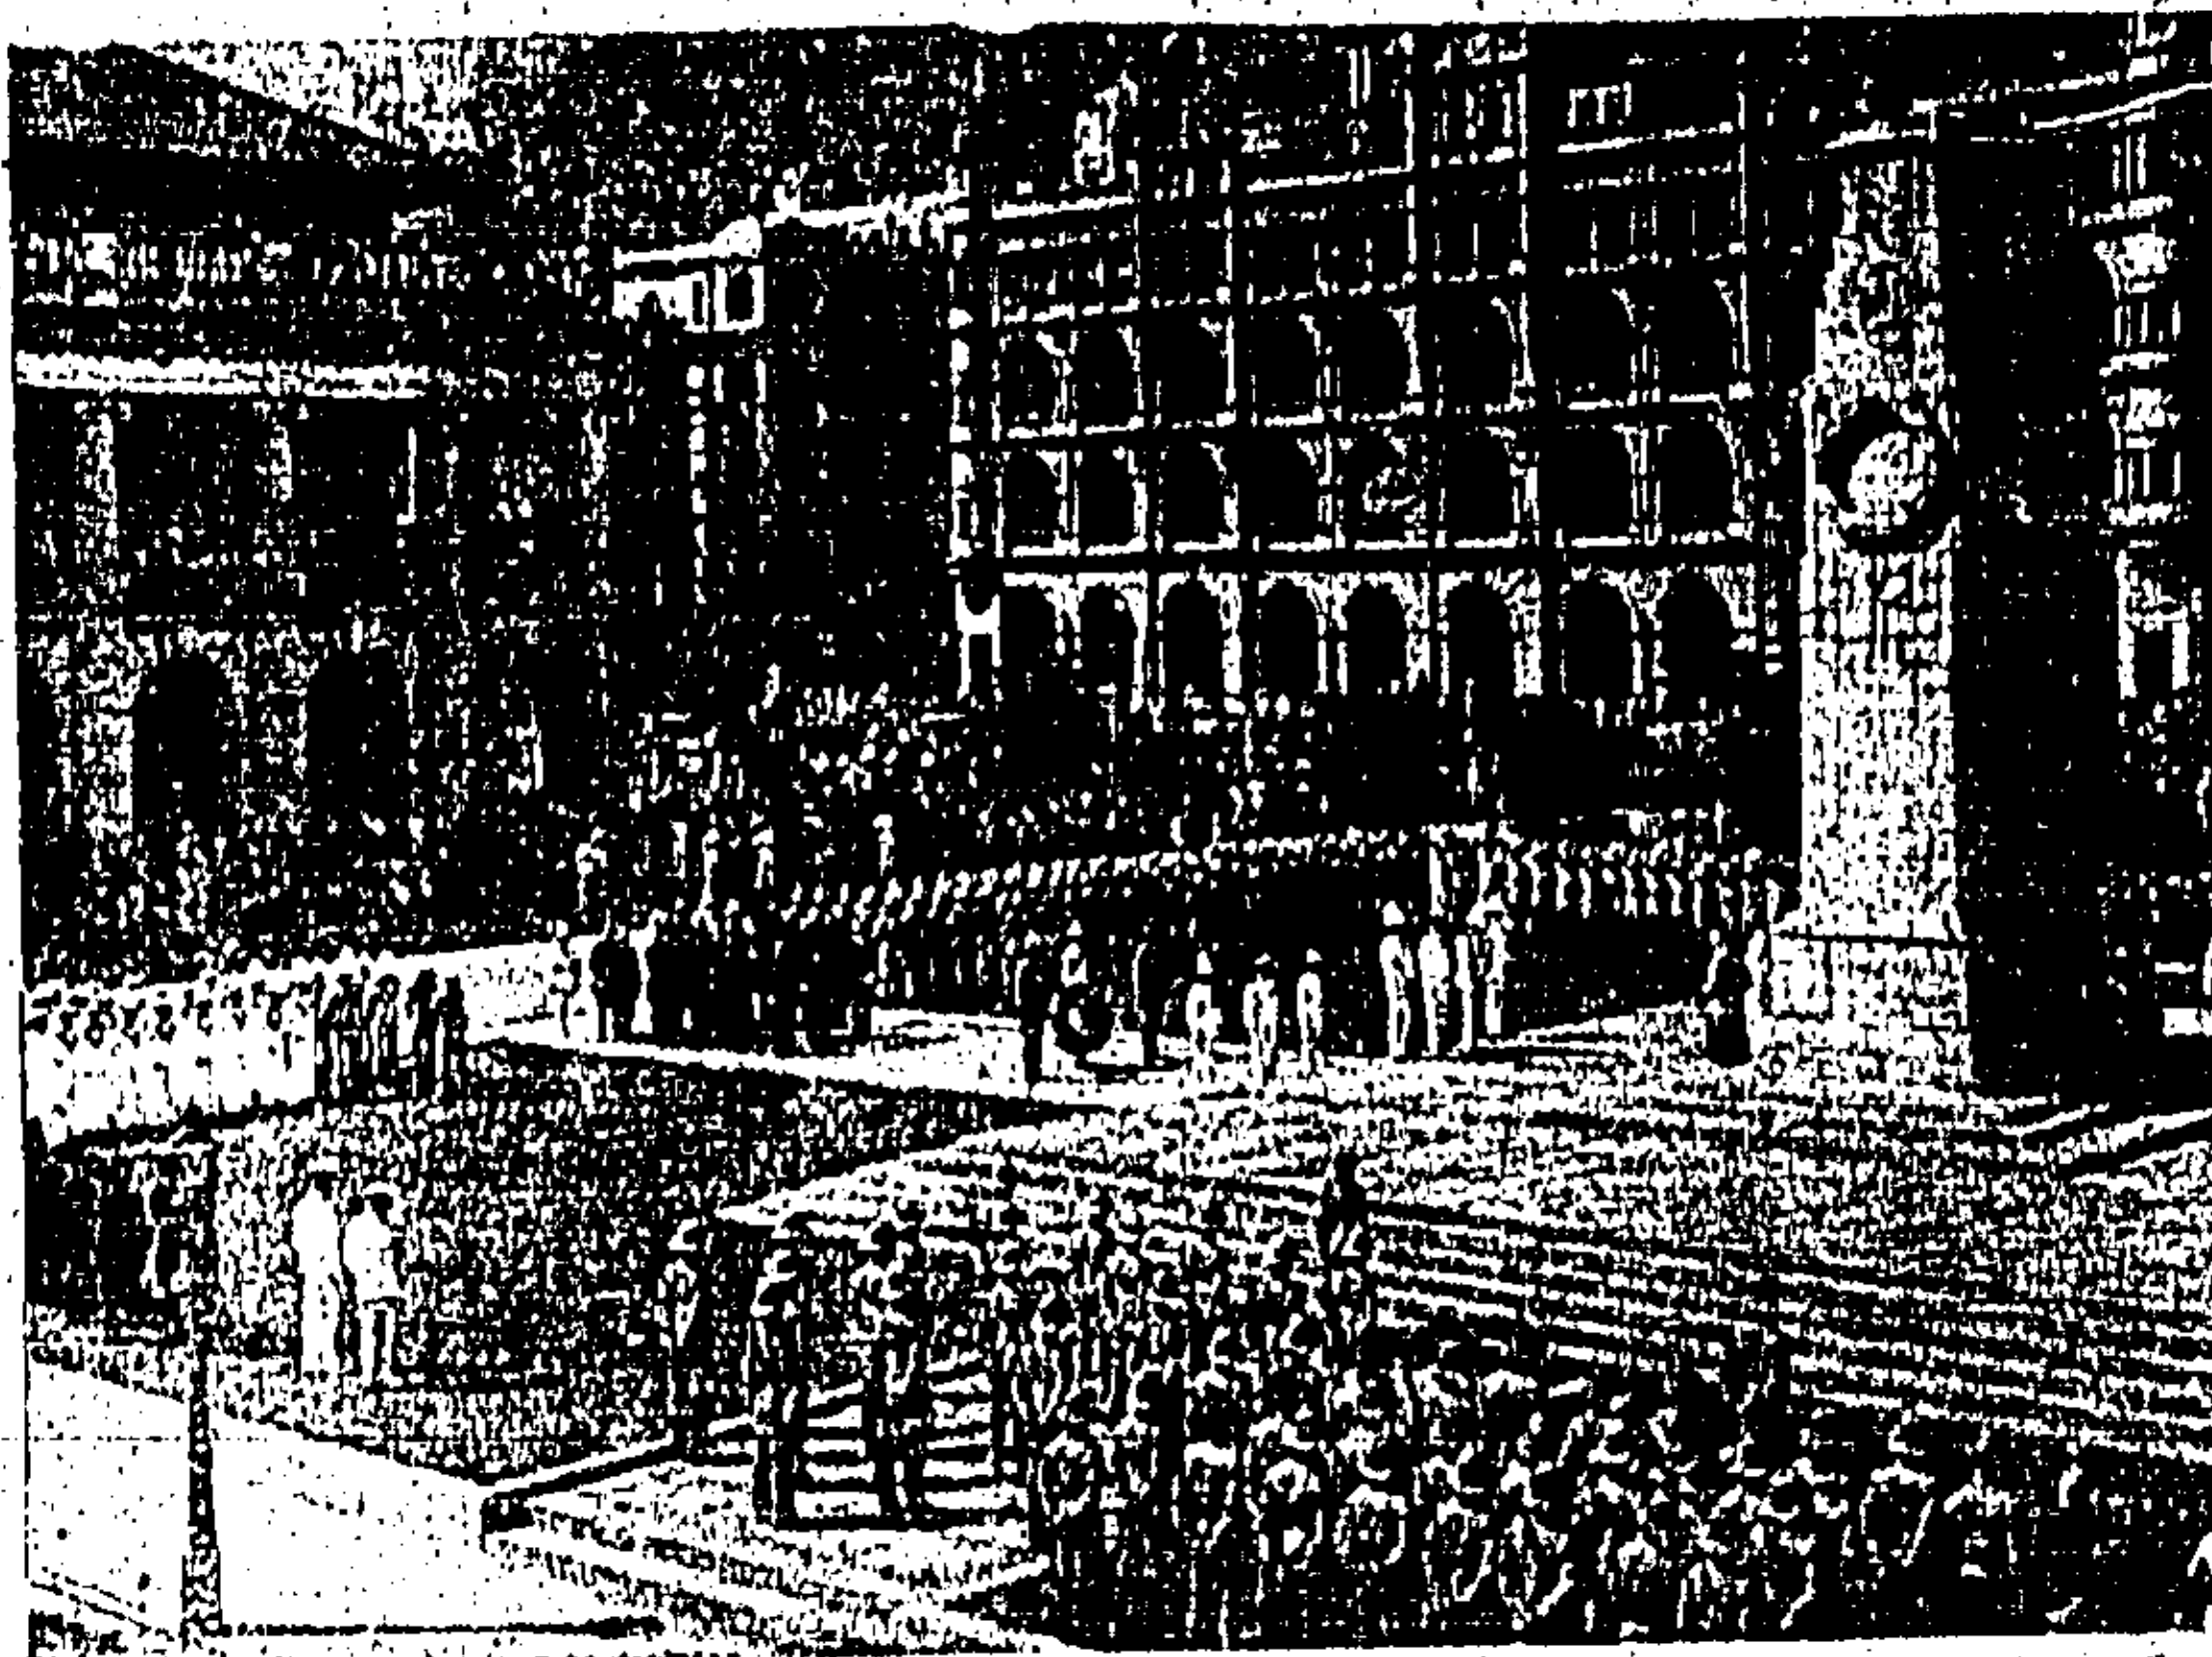

Shanghai, Nov. 13. The Ministry of Industry of the Nanking Government has drawn up a plan for the establishment of a big motor plant in China. The Ministry is invoking the aid of the Board of Trustees of the British Boxer Indemnity Fund in financing the project.

It is believed that certain arrangements have been reached with the Board, as the Ministry of Industry is sending an official, in the person of Mr. Huang Han-shui, to England to approach the Purchasing Committee of the Board of Trustees in connection with the supply of machinery.

Mr. Huang Han-shui is sailing for England to-morrow.—Central News Agency.

BOMB EXPLOSIONS IN AUSTRIA

Vienna, Nov. 9. Two more bomb explosions occurred in Austria on Wednesday, one at Kufach where a tin box filled with dynamite and metal slugs exploded in front of the police station, smashing doors and windows. The other went off near Hagenfurt but did little damage. Nobody was hurt. Fifty pounds of explosives are said to have been taken last night from a storehouse near Krems.—Trans-Ocean Radio.

SPANISH REVOLT NIPPED IN BUD

Revolutionary Suspects Rounded Up

Madrid, Nov. 9. Plans for a revolutionary uprising that may have led Spain into the most serious trouble she has experienced since the overthrow of the monarchy was believed to have been thwarted by the Government today.

Acting on instructions from the Government, the army took quick action in all areas to round up suspected revolutionaries and it is likely that army detachments will remain on November 19.

Prevention of the election of a new Cortes was the primary object of the plotters, officials said. Apparently they intended to prevent by force, if necessary, the taking of the vote on that day.

The Cortes was dissolved on October 8, when the new Government was formed with Senor Diego Martinez-Barrios as Premier. The Premier considered it a necessary move at that time in order to obtain a new expression of opinion from the electorate regarding the principles of the various parties.

Discovery of the alleged plot by the Government furnished the liveliest bit of news that has developed here since the International Press Conference convened. Delegates to the conference were pleased with the promptness with which news of the affairs was released.

The conference has so far done little with regard to resolutions.

The declaration of the Soviet delegate, M. Rosenberg, alleging that there was a world-wide propaganda plot against Russia and the statement of Mr. Chiu Cheng-ou that false news is being circulated about China, however, indicated the trend which the resolutions will take.—United Press.

PEKING DEMANDS TREASURES

CALLS FOR RETURN OF MUSEUM EXHIBITS

A petition has been sent by the Peking Municipal Council to the Executive Yuan at Nanking, demanding the return to Peking of the works of art from the museums and imperial palaces which were sent to Shanghai at the time of the Japanese advance in North China early this year. The document states that it was the desire of the National Government, as well as of Peking citizens, to maintain the predominance of Peking as the intellectual centre of China, and, therefore, the return of the treasures is essential for the attainment of this end.

YESTERDAY'S REMARKABLE FOOTBALL MATCH

R. ABBIT CRITICISES THE BARRACKERS

SHANGHAI LACK A FAST BOWLER

(By R. ABBIT.)

ON Saturday last the weather was perfect and the wicket looked to be very much the same. In point of fact it turned out to be excellent but it was a shade slower than one would have expected.

Owen Hughes was successful with the toss and elected to bat, an advantage that may be estimated at anywhere between fifty and a hundred runs.

Donald Leach is singularly unfortunate as I believe this is the fifth time running that he has lost the toss. The game started a little after the fixed hour and tiffin was not taken until a quarter past one.

A SHAKY START.

Before tiffin, however, there were a good many anxious moments for the spectators and we have to thank Teddy Fincher and Garthwaite for stopping what looked very much like the beginning of a rot.

Hayward filled the vacancy in our first pair left by Duckitt's omission, and he seemed to have lost none of his old style and shots when he suddenly picked a beauty from Isaacs and was bowled. Fincher too had several narrow escapes of a similar fate but his luck was in.

Scoring then slowed down but no further wicket fell until Leach went on and quickly got Pearce, L.W. and later defeated Williams though the latter had played some nice shots and seemed to be settling down.

Three were down for forty-two and things looked very bad when Garthwaite came to the rescue. He has steadily if slowly working into his batting form.

A GOOD STAND.

It was at this point that resolute batting gave the game a definite turn and as no further wicket fell before lunch Hongkong at least had not the worst of the position. Careful play after lunch improved the position, and forty-two runs in all were added.

It is of interest to note how sustained the excellence of the Shanghai bowling was. It was plausible, but the first time Garthwaite had a go he was out!

But the wicket was not followed by another at once. Owen Hughes was settling down when he was taken ill and retired for a rest. He looked pretty white but came round after a bit.

Minu had been promoted in the batting order and to the delight of the crowd came off. When he had made a very quick twenty-two Sinclair just got his hands under a low one at cover and the umpire quite correctly gave it out.

CONSOLIDATION.

Owen Hughes now returned and in a stand that realized over sixty put the home team in a good position. Fincher all along had been batting most steadily and the score steadily mounted save at a hundred and fifty when the Shanghai bowlers for about eight overs sent down some excellent stuff—to which Fincher and Owen Hughes put straight defensive bats.

It was imperative not to lose another wicket then. Yet some morons in the public stand elected to show their ignorance of the game by an attempt at barracking. I have not heard this before in Hongkong and I hope I shall not again.

A CURIOUS WICKET.

Just before two hundred was up, when everyone was expecting Fincher to get his century, a full toss from Madar went pretty high and got into the sun. Fincher missed it and was bowled.

Shortly after a curious incident arose—I have taken the trouble to ascertain the facts from all parties concerned. Wilson beat Owen Hughes with one that Mayhew took and swept off the balls. It seems that the general appeal had been for a catch at the wicket and was addressed to the bowler's umpire. He considered the ball had hit Owen Hughes' leg and gave him 'not out' for L.W.

But before this, when Mayhew had taken off the balls the square ley umpire had thought the appeal was to him for stumped. He put up his finger—and then took it down again when he found the appeal was to the other umpire.

But Leach does not miss much, and after they had all decided Owen Hughes was not caught or L.W. he mildly suggested a spot of stumping and the batsman went.

Curiously enough the umpire was in no doubt and spectators in the pavilion thought his foot had been lifted, no less than six people watching from the Club. Anneke windows square with the pitch were very surprised to see the stumping given. But that is cricket all over.

A SLOW FINISH.

Pereira had a gallant clump and the score was two hundred and thirty-two at five o'clock when stumps were drawn. It is definitely a moot point whether the batsmen should not have gone for the bowling about 4 p.m.—say when Fincher was out—in an attempt to collect a few quickly and then let Shanghai have twenty minutes batting. But anyway the side did well.

The bowling was very steady but they suffer from the lack of a fast bowler—and to be honest I have never seen Shanghai throw in so badly. Their ground fielding was good.

THIS MORNING.

By the time these lines appear in print we shall know if Owen Hughes will declare this morning—(he was not allowed to on Saturday night by the declaration law)—or will bat on in the hopes of a useful twenty or so from our last pair. Anyway he will probably not have the roller on the wicket a full ten minutes.

MORE RELIABLE FORM

IN HOME FOOTBALL

(By "The Pilgrim")

While Arsenal and Spurs continue on their magnificent way and Portsmouth and Stoke gradually decline, the form of the First Division clubs at last begins to show some sort of permanency.

There were shocks however, in the lower divisions where Chesterfield lost a great chance of bending the record run of victories by losing to the lowly placed Walsall, at Chesterfield of all grounds!

Coy Reherman gleaned another valuable point at Accrington and after 13 matches have still to win a match at home.

Despite a decisive win by three goals to nil against the Tynesiders at White Hart Lane, the Spurs-Newcastle engagement was not spectacular. I suspect that the London newsmen are beginning to feel their responsibilities at the head of the League with Arsenal and Huddersfield waiting to fill their shoes.

ON THE UP GRADE.

The Ilkeshury men are definitely on the up-grade after an anxious period during which Mr. Herbert Chapman had to call to his aid all the wiles and guiles of football technique to prevent a shambles.

Of all the veterans directing the attacks of class teams, perhaps Huddersfield's "Smithy" stands out. He played a great part in defeating the club's Wednesday visitors.

Harker's return to the field enabled Blackburn—Tovers to register their first away win of the season, Leicester being the unfortunate.

Higgs, perhaps the most consistent goalkeeper who has been seen of recent years in the International sphere, excelled himself at Portsmouth and it was due to his brilliant keeping and the support of the backs that Pompey turned it impossible to wipe off the arrears piled against them by the Brums in the early part of the game.

REVIVAL REVERSE.

Bury's promised revival suffered a severe setback at Nottingham Forest where the home team ran wild with a 7-2 thrashing which sent them up several steps in the League ladder.

Bolton and Blackpool, the two relegated teams of the Senior division and both challengers to the Grimsby.

SENSATIONAL RECOVERY

SHOCK FOR THE ATHLETIC

(By "Veritas").

The story of how the Lincolns yesterday retained their 100 per cent. league record after defeat had stared them in the face, deserves to go down in the annals of local football as among the finest performances even seen.

You may find, after weighing in the balance the exchanges and other features of the game, that the Lincolns were lucky to win. But even this conclusion will be qualified by the admission that their second half recovery was one of the brightest incidents in local football for many years.

The Chinese Athletics were, at half time, virtual winners. They were two goals to the good; they were playing exceptionally fine football and up to the half way stage were conclusively the better team.

For the first 35 minutes yesterday the Athletic played football good enough to beat South China at their best.

Great Fighters

The Lincolns' second half recovery was due wholly to their greatness as fighters. More than once in the past have they proved the old adage that a game is never lost until it is won, but never have they so brilliantly demonstrated it as against the Athletic.

In the first half the Lincolns played that type of football which just asked for defeat. Concentrating on the man, instead of the ball, they continually found themselves beaten by the speedy and skilful movements of the Athletic forward line.

During this period, Betts, who took Cork's place at centre-half, was practically worse than useless. His tackling resolved itself into a series of leaps into the air, followed by a slide. The Athletic forwards half a yard quicker on the ball were never worried by such tactics.

The temperamental Walsall again broke many pockets and hopes when they smashed Chesterfield hopes at Salter Lane by scoring twice without reply.

After 90 minutes, the match between Rochdale and York had to be ended off owing to bad light. York were winning by the odd goal in three at the time but, of course, no points or goals are recorded until they meet again in the postponed fixture.

A Little Excuse

It was practically all Athletic in the initial half. There was some excuse for the Lincolns. They had to try and settle down with the half back line somewhat disorganized by the absence of Cork, with Baldry adapting himself to the outside left position left vacant by Hocquard who was injured on Saturday, and with

INERTIA

POOR FOOTBALL AT SOOKUNPOO

FORWARDS FORGET TO SHOOT

A DISAPPOINTING CHARITY GAME

(By "Veritas").

There was nothing very entertaining about the Armistice Day match at Sookunpoo and the three or four hundred spectators must have left the ground completely disillusioned.

With both the Services and the Rest suffering from a bad attack of inertia, the exchanges left one with the impression that both sides had signed an Armistice, the chief terms of which were never to try very hard to score goals.

Approach work was permissible, but shooting, or any other action likely to place the goal in jeopardy was strictly not on the cards.

The Services won by the odd goal in five. The only astonishing thing was that they didn't finish three or four goals to the good.

Certainly if one considers their territorial advantages, they were worth such a margin; yet further reflection forces one to acknowledge that they made very few serious attempts to beat Wong Wing.

The same criticism applies to the 'losers' attacking quintette. Promising great things on the move, they went to pieces in front of goal.

Cast Iron Halves

An enforced re-arrangement of the Rest forward line did nothing to help things. And Duncan, the only reserve to turn up with his toes had to be brought in for Tam Kong-pak, who failed to make an appearance.

This meant Duncan going to inside left and Ernest Strang to inside right. Both, patently, out of position, could contribute little in the way of progressively constructive football, although Strang did score a neat goal.

But the Services always held the upper hand thanks to a cast iron half back line which dominated.

Only Blake, the young Kowloon left winger, making his first appearance in representative football could make any impression and he drew the best out of Purkins, and was often much too good for Allan.

Cork and McGuire were brilliant. Cork held the inside trier in a vice-like grip; McGuire refused to con-

Brilliant Heath

The Lincolns owed a big debt to Heath. He made three inspired saves in the first half and prevented the Athletic from crossing over with a winning lead.

Edmondson and Turner improved as the game progressed. A little bit shaky in the opening stages, with Turner prone to miskick, they slowly settled down and in the second half were practically invulnerable.

After being overrun, the inter-mediate also managed to get into their stride. Not until the Lincolns had scored their first squalling goal did Betts realise expectations at centre-half. But in the last quarter of an hour he did the work of three, and in the bargain showed how a penalty should be taken.

Robson was never impressive. He appeared to work on the theory that give Fung King-yu sufficient rope and he would hang himself. But Fung proved that he could take all that amount of rope and more and still remain a very effective factor in the forward line.

Master Tactician

Ridley, of course, again adopted the role of master tactician. When he possesses the ball he becomes a magnet and just draws the whole of a defence to him, willfully. And that last goal of his. What a peach! He scored it from his favourite position and it was a goal from the time the ball left his foot.

Higgins was a tireless worker. He just harassed the defence until it collapsed. There is nothing stylish about Higgins. You rarely see him flashing out classy passes to the wings. But you can always rely on him to be there or thereabouts when the ball is returned.

HARD FEELINGS.

Hard feelings between Bowen and Wong Mee-shun did nothing to improve the game which, at the best of times, was a poor imitation of first division football.

The Chinese led by the odd goal in three at the interval, Wong Mee-shun netting twice for the visitors and Santos replying for the Recreio. Wong helped himself to three further goals after the change-over, and Pau Ka-ping completed the scoring.

The standard of football in the closing stages deteriorated to a state bordering on the farcical.

Incompatible Leung

The Rest intermediates were not to be compared. Leung Wing-chai played his poorest game of the season. He was ruthless in tackling and removed most of the sting from the Hocquard-Ridley wing, but his passing was atrocious and, as an incompatible with his customary display as anything one could wish for.

Channing could never anticipate the movements between Langmead, Ridley and Smith, who the Rest had as easy passers up to the penalty area. Truly the Policeman's lot was not a happy one.

Apart from the impotency of the Services forwards before goal, the men to save the Rest from a very heavy defeat were Hill and Syd. Strang, and in a lesser degree Wong Wing.

Strang thoroughly enjoyed himself, and, to adopt social circles slang, "catcrashed" his way into almost every situation, particularly emerging triumphant. For sheer defensive play, Strang was the best player on the field.

Hill made quite a successful appearance. Hocquard never worried him, and with Ridley over-indulging in individualism, the Kowloon player found plenty of time to recover any lost ground. More often than not Ridley defeated his own ends by allowing himself to be crowded out after given perfect openings for first time shots.

Strang toyed with Snooks, who was a complete failure. Snooks was spoon fed by Purkins, Smith and Langmead. He flittered away his chances as though he had been selected for that express purpose.

Atrocious in The Extreme

Smith too, could make little headway until late in the second half when he put on a couple of neat goals.

The finishing work of the Rest forwards had nothing on that of the Services. It was atrocious in the extreme. The ball certainly did not run kindly for Howe, but the same inside or Tang on the right wing.

Attempts to walk the ball into the net had to fall against such a lively half back line and resourceful defence. But Allan and Morrison had their task very much lightened by the tactics of the opposing forwards, and Heath was rarely troubled.

The honours go to Blake, who gave the Rest a big lead in the first half, to those who had expressed the opinion that his form did not warrant inclusion.

With the experience of a season in first division football behind him, Blake should develop into one of the Colony's best left wingers. At the present he lacks polish, but he has determination in abundance, is extraordinarily fast, using his long legs to their fullest advantage, and can get the ball into the middle from any angle.

Deserves Encouragement

The fact that he held his own with the redoubtable Purkins is an eloquent testimony of his display. He is worthy of the right kind of encouragement by the Powers That Be.

Ridley opened the Services account in the first half, and there was no addition to the score before the interval.

Desultory exchanges continued until well in the second half when Smith put the Services further ahead, and within a minute had added another, benefitting from Langmead's play.

A final effort by the Rest to save the game lived through up. Strang warmed his hands through the defence and shot so hard that Blake could only partially save and Heath rushed in to finish off.

Almost immediately afterwards, Strang again obtained possession, and working through from right to left, he broke past Allan and beat Heath all the day with a very deceptive shot.

With the slightest bit of luck the Rest would have equalised in the last minute.

HOW MALAYA WON AN EXCITING MATCH

ALVIS IN FORM WITH BAT AND BALL

K.C.C. BAT WELL AND MAKE A SPORTING DECLARATION

350 RUNS SCORED IN A DAY

(By R. Abbit)

Thrills of all kinds were provided for the delectation of those who went to the K.C.C. yesterday to see their match with Malaya. The unbounded hospitality of the K.C.C. is well known, (and better known to none than R. Abbit), and these matches are always delightful functions. But yesterday there were added a sporting declaration after sparkling batting a match now won—now lost—now back in the balance, and finally a one wicket win off the second ball of the last over. Assez Bon.

The match between Malaya and K.C.C. started at eleven o'clock yesterday. It was perfect cricket weather. A fresh win was blowing from mid on to the pavilion and the pitch seemed perfect.

Teddy Fincher, who was captaining the K.C.C. side in Frank Goodwin's absence (owing to injury) won the toss and sent in Munn and S. V. Gittins to face the Malaya bowlers. There were thirteen extras out of the first nineteen runs and Croome was limping heavily. I was rather surprised to find him playing as he has damaged his knee (an old injury) on Friday. But as R. N. Hamilton, Jonkhan and Gill were not playing the Malayan resources were strained. The bowling did not seem to me to be at its best and the fielding, at first anyway, was rather slack. Munn played some beautiful shots off the fast bowler and at thirty Lewis relieved him.

THE FIRST WICKET FALLS.

The separation however came from the other end as at 37 Gittins, who had been playing nice cricket, played back a shade inside one from Alvis, and Croome had him behind the stumps. A run or two later the same bowler disposed of Munn with a good length ball which clean beat him.

However Hung and Mackay continued peacefully and seemed perfectly set, when at sixty six carefully scored not too good a ball from Lewis in short leg's hands. Alvis had by this time relieved Hung and Mackay patted him gently into first slip's hands. It was really a pathetic ending to a couple of nice knocks.

ANOTHER CHEAP WICKET.

E. F. Fincher never seemed very easy. E. F. Fincher, twenty runs were added, and one was just expected to see him open out and start scoring when he had a clip at an off ball from Dean. Lewis at second slip failed to hold it but Gibson dived down and held the catch. (84-7). But thrills were not over, as about the first time the newcomer Burnett connected with the ball he just cleared it over second slip's head and clear of third man. After that, though, both settled down and a good run was made. Lewis and Dean had a very long ball and when Willis relieved the batsmen were severely punished, especially by Burnett who bowled from the bowling green end. The batsmen were in sight of their 100, but the last ball of the left hander's first over bowled Burnett had made forty-two. 104-6-1-2. Next over Teddy Fincher might have been taken at slip off Alvis, but the chance was a wide one, at over, however, Stapleton tried out the same bowler and was taken the wicket. (170-7-40).

AFTER LUNCH.

The game was resumed at half past two when Burnett and Stapleton and Alvis, who opened with a wicket, and Speldewinde who bowled from the bowling green end. The batsmen were in sight of their 100, but the last ball of the left hander's first over bowled Burnett had made forty-two. 104-6-1-2. Next over Teddy Fincher might have been taken at slip off Alvis, but the chance was a wide one, at over, however, Stapleton tried out the same bowler and was taken the wicket. (170-7-40).

Cur-runs later further disaster all the K.C.C. as dex put Alvis long leg. Fincher called ball from mid on and quick return. Croome had balls off in a flash. 174-8-6. A big hit across the next ball. Today they declared the innings off, leaving Malaya 165 runs to go in two hours and thirty five minutes. An interesting position as C. had taken two hours and a quarter to get their runs.

MALAYA BAT.

The innings of the visitors opened sensationally as after Burn had ten a four through cover of the 1st ball a bye was run and then 5-1-0. In Burnett's 1st over Burn was badly dropped. Ernie Fincher at extra cover, next ball Morgan was l.b.w. to ch the same way as Gibson had in 11-2-4. The holding was not as good as I have seen it. Several catches were put down on both sides and only Alvis and E. lived up to their reputations. After the game there was a pleasant ceremony when His Honour Mr. Justice Lindell (who umpired at the end through the game) the President of the K.C.C. presented a Club flag to Mr. T. Croome the vice Captain of the Malayan team. In the absence of the Captain, Mr. R. N. Hamilton who I regret to say is and E. now seemed to get a and several boundary hits were made. E. had a lucky snick off Hung but next ball the bowler had him completely beaten, 65-4-11. A run later a further disaster befell Malaya as Croome was beaten by Burnett's swing and was caught at third slip. But then an excellent stand ensued. There was a bad bit of work at second slip which let off Willis when he had only made three. The pair were still together at tea and had punished Burnett severely. He was, I think kept on a couple of overs too long.

AFTER TEA. The hundred was hoisted after tea with Sergeant bowling, but at 105 the new bowler bent Willis who had played a gallant knock 106-6-20. Forty runs had been added.

The new-comer Lewis, a left hander, proceeded to dig himself in and runs continued to come. Alvis sent the 130 up and completed his own fifth with a nice four through the cover.

Kowloon wanted a wicket badly and next over they got it as Alvis turned round to a bad ball of Burnett's on the leg and snicked it to Jex 131-7-61. The outgoing batsman had played a very good innings which curiously enough consisted of ten fours and eleven singles. It seemed likely that Kowloon would win at this point but Lewis showed no signs of getting out and Charlton seemed quite comfortable and pulled Willis Hung who had bowled fifteen consecutive overs—for two fours. Burnett was kept on though he hardly looked like getting a wicket and it is difficult to see why Sargeant was not tried as he had broken up the former stand. E. F. Fincher was tried for Hung at the Pavilion end but he was not a success and Hung returned after two overs to bowl three long hops to Lewis who missed the lot of them.

Next over he met with success as Charlton hit out at an off one and was smothered taken by Teddy Fincher at slip. 160-8-18. A FINE FINISH. Speldewinde got a leg ball which he cranked to the long leg boundary and Malaya wanted a five to win with two wickets to go. Lewis then hit a good three to cover and had the bowling of Willie Hung. The first ball grazed the off peg—just a coat of paint in it. Three balls later he was l.b.w. and amid intense excitement Bill Dean went in and scored a single. Next over he just cleared mid on and the game was won. With two minutes to go. And Burnett not brought in Sargeant closer at mid on the catch would have dropped into his hands. But this sort of thing does happen.

GENERALLY SPEAKING. It was a really good match. At first the Malayan bowling was a bit slack and their bowling looked strong—but they improved very much under the early K.C.C. batsmen all played quite nicely, but then got out when they should have been set. The honours go to Stapleton and Burnett. Teddy Fincher made a very sporting declaration. Of the Malayan bowling Alvis showed a real deal of promise. Willis Dean was full of glee. Still Willis was dead end and I fear his side is still troubling him.

For Malaya the earlier bats with the exception of Burn and Alvis broke down badly. But for the later who played a great knock the side would have got an awful hiding. Lewis played a most useful innings and if I were the Malayan captain I should definitely play him for Speldewinde even though he is not a left hander. Charlton was bright too—but it was by the lack of bowling changes that the game was lost. I know there were only two real bowlers. Willis Hung bowled like a good knock, strong wind and Burnett was excellent at first, but judicious and a quicker changeover was called for.

The holding was not as good as I have seen it. Several catches were put down on both sides and only Alvis and E. lived up to their reputations. After the game there was a pleasant ceremony when His Honour Mr. Justice Lindell (who umpired at the end through the game) the President of the K.C.C. presented a Club flag to Mr. T. Croome the vice Captain of the Malayan team. In the absence of the Captain, Mr. R. N. Hamilton who I regret to say is and E. now seemed to get a and several boundary hits

NAVY OUTPLAY CLUB

BRILLIANT RUGBY DISPLAY

(By "Line Out").

The Navy fielded a very strong side on Saturday when they beat the Club at Happy Valley in a rugby match by three goals four tries and a penalty goal (30 points) to a goal and a try (8 points).

The winners showed all-round superiority and gave a wonderful exhibition of rugby. Their backs were given plenty of chances which they were not slow to take once they had settled down.

The Club managed to keep on terms in the first half, Lammer making two fine runs down the wing to touch down between the posts. On one occasion McLellan unaccountably missed the kick, but the other try was converted by Robertson.

The Navy scored through Forbes (twice) in the first half, Buckley converting one of the tries. The second half was an entirely different story. From the start the Navy pressed, and hard as the Club fought, they were outplayed by a finely balanced team.

The Navy obtained the ball in almost all the light scrums, and the backs played a magnificent open game. During this half St. Clair Ford, scored three tries, Munn and Slater one each and Shaw clinched a goal penalty goal.

Moutrie was forced to retire through injury in this half which handicapped the Club forwards, but the Navy pack heavily outweighed the Club and heeled the ball quickly when ever they were held.

With such a side as the Navy turned out on Saturday there seems no doubt that they are certain of winning the Triangular Tournament this year. When at full strength they can call upon two internationals in St. Clair Ford and Evans, and in addition four Navy "Caps," were playing on Saturday.

Tall Cricket Scores

BATSMEN IN FORM

An undefeated ninth wicket partnership by Lieut. Eaden (47) and Lieut. Commander Stephenson (29) which realised 71 runs, enabled the Royal Navy to gain victory by four runs over the Volunteers in an all-day match yesterday.

Taking first use of the wicket, the Volunteers totalled 163 for the loss of eight wickets when they declared, Beck, the Interport fast bowler, knocking up a valuable half-century. Harley (24), Brownling and Stewart (26 each) also helped towards the total.

The Navy replied in shabby manner and at the fall of the eighth wicket had only 96 runs on the board. Eaden and Stephenson got together and some bright cricket was witnessed.

C.B.A. BEAT CHINA LIGHT. Dismissing Shields, Mitchell and Crofton with successive deliveries, N. Whitley gained a "hat-trick," bowling for the Central British Association in their friendly fixture against the China Light and Power Recreation Club at King's Park yesterday afternoon. The C.B.A. won by 31 runs in a low scoring match.

CENTURY BY MAJ. BONAVIA. A delightful knock for 103 by Major Bonavia, the Shanghai cricketer, was greatly responsible for a score of 161 runs (for seven wickets, declared) by the Royal Army Medical Corps in their friendly match against the Civil Service Cricket Club at Happy Valley on Saturday afternoon. W.I. Edmonds claimed three wickets for 35.

The Civil Servants replied with 105 runs for eight wickets, Strang 36 and J.P. McGowan (31) being top scorers. Capt. Gailin bowled well for the Medicals, capturing six wickets for 47.

H.M.S. BERWICK BEAT R.A.S.C. H.M.S. Berwick entertained the Royal Army Service Corps at King's Park on Saturday and won by four wickets. Batting first, the soldiers could only total 92, against splendid bowling by Richards (four for 25). Whitley withstood the attack and hit 30.

H.M.S. Berwick had replied with 124 for the loss of six wickets, when stumps were drawn. Larkin (47 not out), Williamson (32) and Johnson (27) flogged the Corps bowlers, the only successful one of whom, Whitley, took four wickets for 51.

Y.M.C.A. DEFEAT THE K.I.T.C.

C.B.A. SCORE SIX

At King's Park on Saturday the Y.M.C.A. defeated the Kowloon Indians Tennis Club in a fast friendly encounter by 2 goals to 1. Brown and Baldwin scored for the "Y." in the first half, without reply from the Indians.

In the second half the Indians played a much better game and Noronha scored a goal.

C.B.A. WIN EASILY.

Playing a friendly game in place of their Mamak fixture, the Central British Association defeated the 9th Battery, R.A., at King's Park by six clear goals on Saturday.

The Battery held the C.B.A. in the first half when only one goal was scored through Francis. Williams (2) scored for the winners broke through to score five more goals through Johnson (3), T. Whitley and Halford.

H. Q. LINCOLNS BEATEN.

In a friendly hockey game at Shamshuipo on Saturday the details of the Argyls defeated Headquarters Wing Lincoln by 4 goals to 1. McGaw (2), Boyd and Kelly scored for the Argyls and Trowl replied for the Lincolns.

MAMAK MATCH.

At Soekunpoo on Friday the 12th Battery R.A., secured two points against the Royal Army Medical Corps in a Mamak Tournament encounter, winning by 3 goals to 1.

Mr. Flowerdew (1) and Gunner Williams (2) scored for the Battery, and Sergeant Lane netted for the Medical Corps.

LADIES' CONTEST
St. Andrew's Defeat H.K. Ladies

The St. Andrew's Club Ladies gained a very creditable victory over the Hongkong Ladies Hockey Club champions in the Cacer Clark Cup competition, by five goals to two on the Marina ground on Saturday afternoon. M. Woolley, the Saints' skipper, played a great game at centre-forward and netted all five goals, four of which were registered in rapid succession in the second half.

Hongkong led at the interval by two goals to one scored by J. Dalziel and J. Churchill.

Hongkong were without the services of B.M. Pope, who is indisposed, and did not seem quite at home on the fast sand ground. The teams were:

Hongkong Ladies:—M. Bird, C. Robertson, R. Hebbing, M. Valler, J. L. Lowe, E. Bell, J. Dalziel, E. Bonnar, J. Churchill and E. Selby.
St. Andrew's Ladies:—A. Chubb, C. White, E. Landolt, M. Churn, J. Wong, I. Woolley, I. Gittins, I. Rogers, M. Woolley, K. Grose and F. Wong.

Y.M. Men Beat Ladies.
At King's Park on Saturday afternoon the Y.M.C.A. men's team defeated the Ladies' team by 6 goals to 1.

S. Fowler (2), Smith (2) and C. Dalman scored for the men, while Mr. Rea netted the ladies' solitary goal. J. Weller, the ladies' goalkeeper brought off several fine saves and S. Dalziel played excellently at centre half.

It was his tenacity which allowed him to score a brilliant goal. Baldry played better on the left wing than he has done for two years on the right. He got his centres over first time, and although not always finding their mark, they kept the Athletic backs on the move.

Guinness did not get into his stride, but Harding in the second half was a decided success. He discovered a neat trick to round up lung-fung, Mak Sui-hon and he put his whole heart in his work.

Whole Hearted

This, in fact, was the essence of the Lincolns' second half reconstitution. Their indomitable will power and perseverance triumphed over all other circumstances.

The chief impression left by the Athletic was the smartness of the inside forwards. Au Kim-fung, Au Ping-ming and Ho Ka-keung easily carried off the honours. They were well supported by Fung Kiang-yau and Li Hung-cheng. Never at any stage could this forward line be lightly treated. They demanded close attention and the highest respect.

After a fine start, the half backs fell away, Ho Chai-yung and Ip Tang-fai on the wings lost control, and Lei Kwok-chiu played a lone game in the middle practically right through the second half.

The backs had periods of inspiration and depression. Higgins worried them, and in being forced to concentrate on him, continually lost sight of the dangers of Ridley in possession.

Li Kwok-ki cannot be blamed for the defeat. He had no chance with any of the goals, and a dozen times stood between the Lincolns and goals.

The game was played at a rare pace. Interest never waned, and there were flashes of extremely good foot ball in both teams.

LEADING NAVY BOXERS

TO APPEAR IN HONGKONG

ALTERNATIVE BOUTS

The first programme of the Hongkong Boxing Association's 1933-34 season will take place on December 2 in the Leo Theatre if the building is obtainable.

The contests will probably be one of 15 rounds, two of eight rounds, two of six rounds, and two of three. If this arrangement is impracticable, there may be one bout of six rounds, and three of four rounds.

Some of the Navy's leading boxers will be available this winter, including the following:

SEAMAN BARRY.

Seaman Barry, rated as England's third light weight, fights at 140 lbs. From 1931-32 he held the Light-weight Championship of the Royal Navy and Royal Marines and only five months ago he added the Junior Welterweight Championship of China to his laurels at the expense of Raul Talan.

"Knock Out" Talan as he is styled, had previously beaten Jack Creighton, but he himself could only last two rounds against the whirling tactics of Seaman Barry.

Going on form, there should be a great future for Barry in the ring, for in 1928 he drew with Seaman Watson the present contender for the world's title. In the same year he divided honours with Dom Volante who has ranked high in the lightweight list. Barry issues a challenge to all fighters up to 140 lbs. for any side stake.

SEAMAN FRAGGOTT.

Seaman Fraggott, winner of 160 fights out of 170 appearances in the ring, turns the scale at 145 lbs., and has a brilliant record of performances against men of the highest grade. He was Welterweight Champion of the West of England in 1932 and met Sexton whose amazing loss of form in his last championship fight was a direct contradiction of his real abilities.

Fraggott put up a game fight against Harry Mason and did creditably in his bout with Stoker Reynolds, Head, Dick Bart, and Dixie Brown, the South African knock-out fighter.

Seaman Fraggott is anxious to meet any man up to 100 lbs. for any side stake.

TIM FOLEY.

Tim Foley, who weighs 130 lbs. and is present Heavyweight Champion of the Colony, has had 130 fights and during the last five years has only twice been defeated.

He fought a great fight at home with Pettifer and lost to the King's Cross giant by the narrowest of margins. Foley owes much to Don McCord with whom he was once engaged as a sparring partner and his determined and aggressive style are a reflection of the methods taught in the South African camp.

In the All-England open tournament staged at Crystal Palace two years ago Foley was stamped as a class fighter by his achievement in reaching the final. In the same year he held the Heavyweight Championship of West of England and still holds supremacy in the same class in the Royal Navy and Royal Marines.

SEAMAN TAYLOR.

Seaman J. Taylor, who weighs in at 145 lbs., has missed titles by fractions and is due to gain distinction in his next appearance in the ring. He was in the final of the Royal Navy and Royal Marines welterweight championship last year and 12 months previously fought a drawn bout with the holder of the South American title. When the Station Champion was serving with the Mediterranean Fleet, Taylor met him and lost very narrowly.

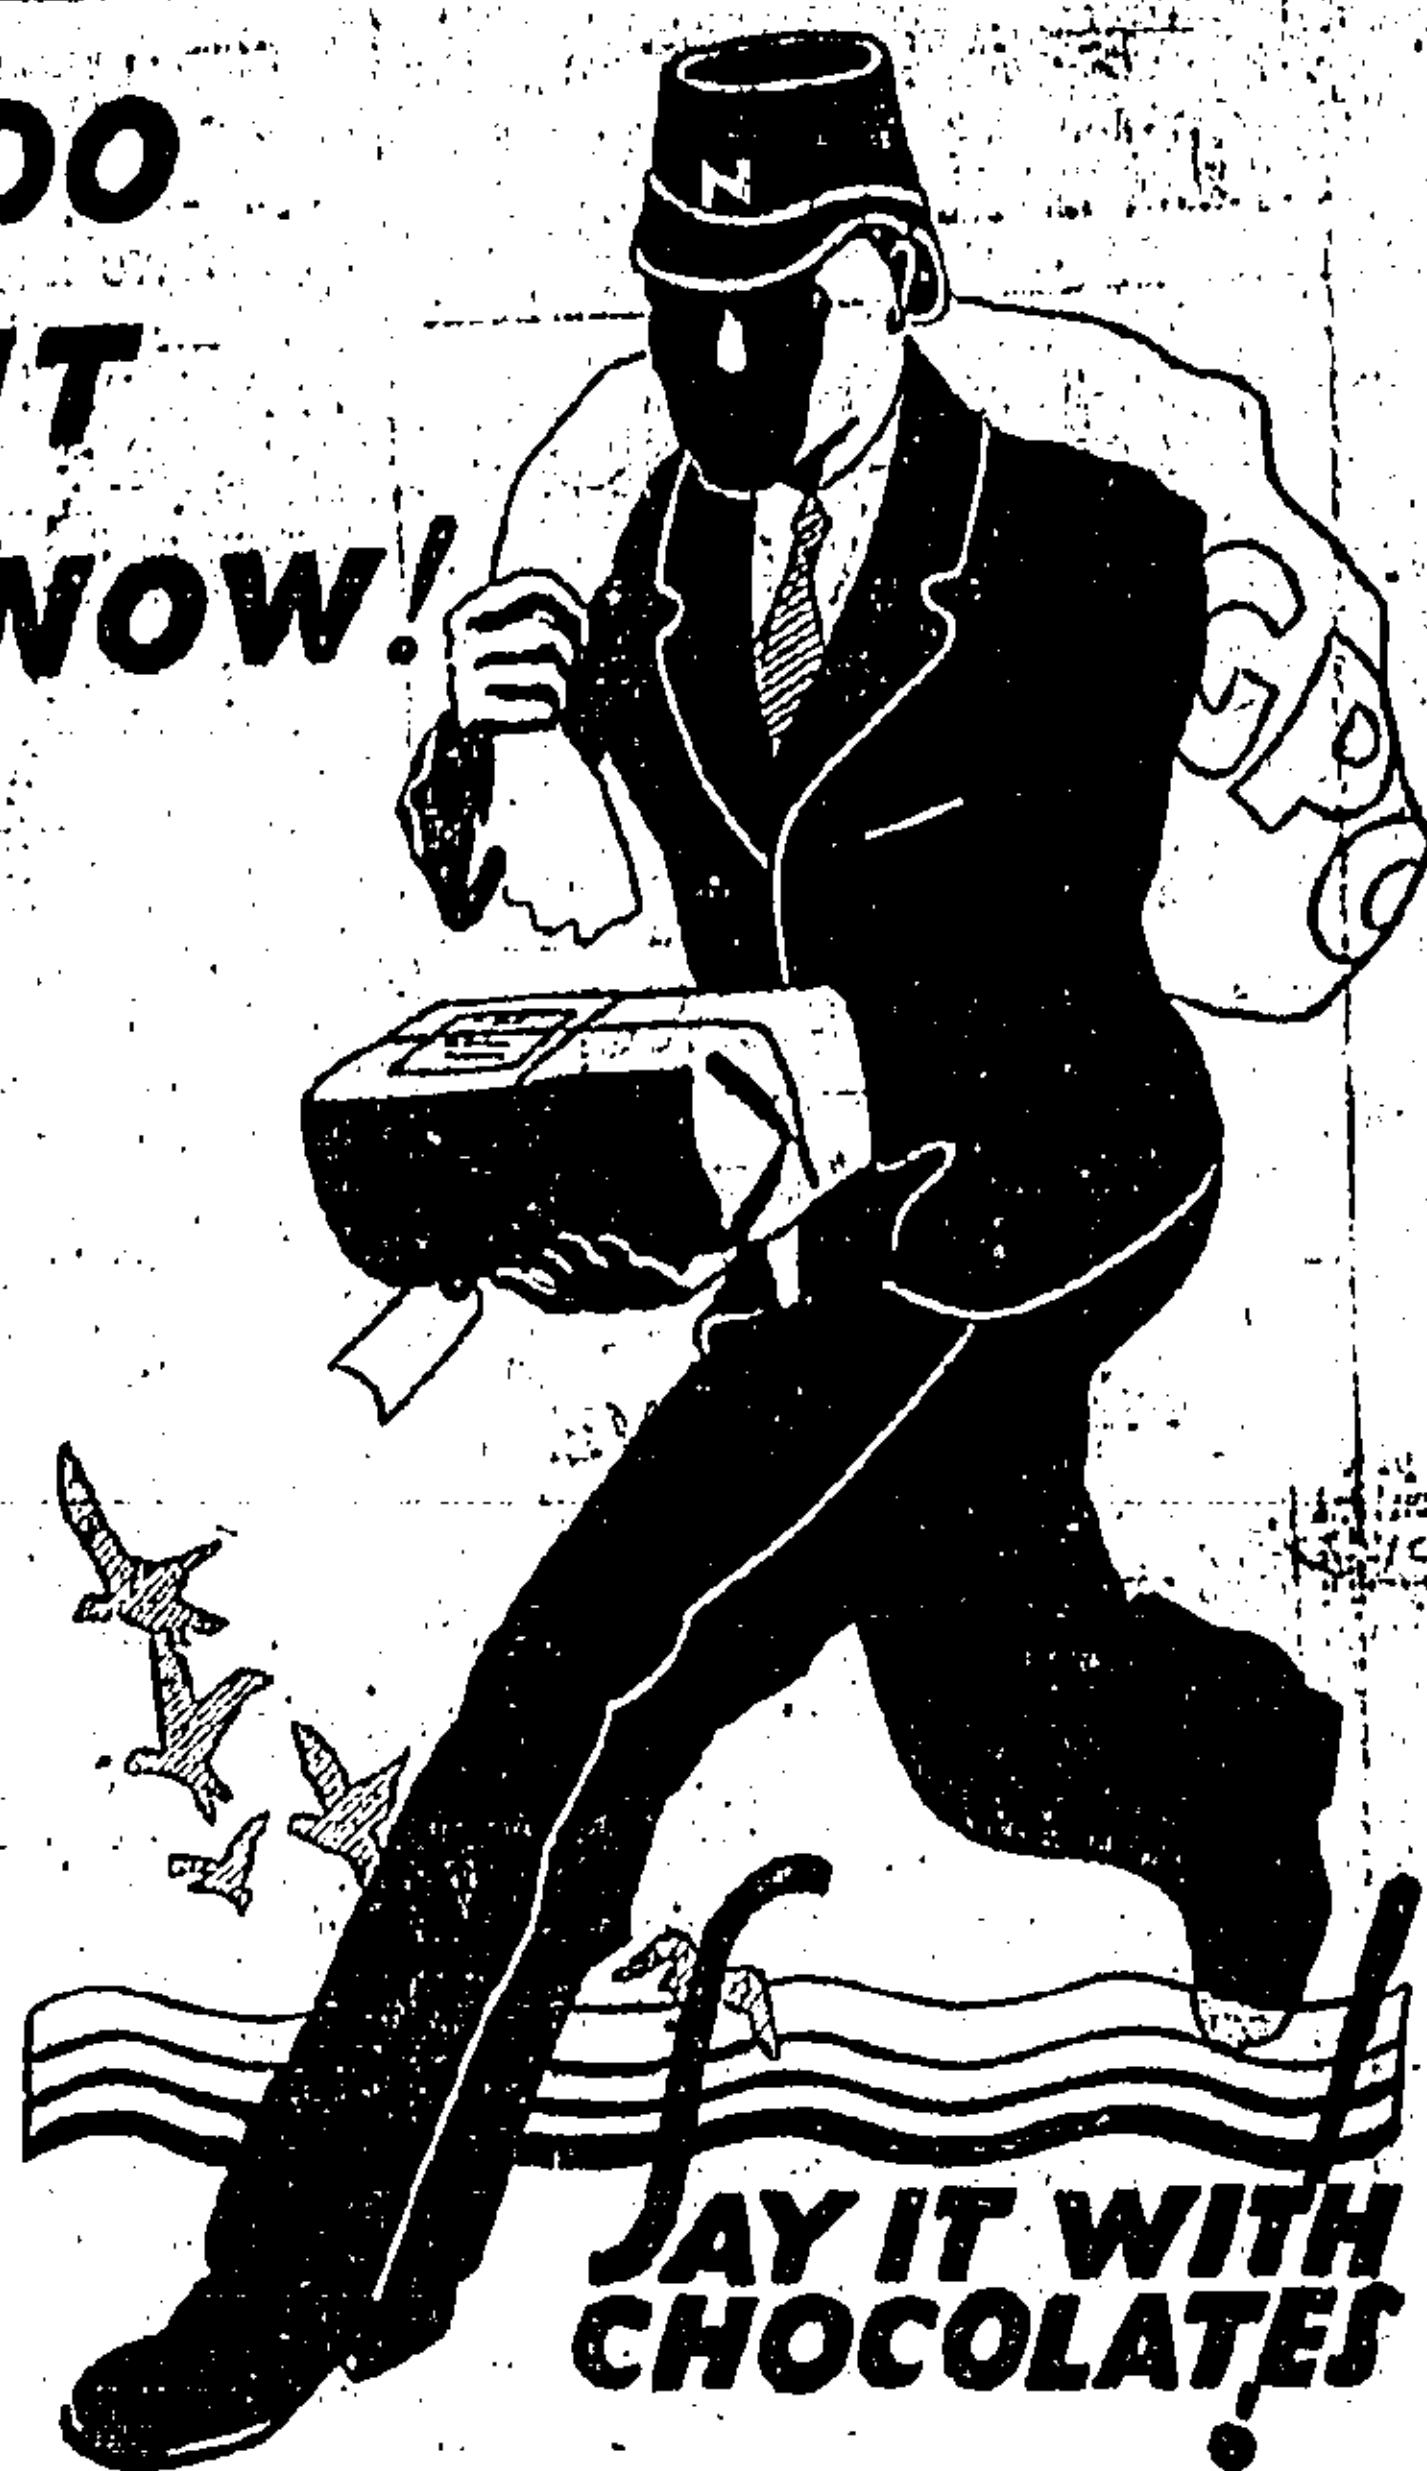

He will fight any boy up to 162 lbs. SEAMAN IALITHAM
Seaman Ialitham is another fighter of merit who is desirous of meeting an opponent up to 170 lbs. His record is not yet available and he has not yet fought in the Colony but he has a reputation for clean hard hitting, and will be worth watching.

JASPER CLARK CUP

The results of the Jasper Cup, played at Fanning, yesterday were as follows:—

NESTLÉ'S

BOARD DISSOLVED

REPORTED FRICTION WITH FARM ADMINISTRATION

Washington, Nov. 12. The Farm Administration has dissolved its Food Industry Advisory Board, which comprised an unofficial group representing distributors and processors.

While it is officially explained that the Board had been dissolved by mutual agreement, and no important differences exist, it is reported that some members of the Board do not sympathize with the Administration's delays regarding plans for Codes and Agreements, of which there are over 600 awaiting action.—Router.

NO CURRENCY DUEL.

President Regards Bonds As Good Investment.

New York, Nov. 11. The United States Treasury is most concerned regarding the further fall in the dollar, according to Washington correspondents. On the other hand, President Roosevelt is philosophic and is not alarmed at the daily swings of the market. It is reported that he regards government bonds as a good investment.

Wall Street reports state that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has resumed the selling of dollars in exchange for foreign gold. This is taken to mean that the Corporation desires further and immediate depreciation of the dollar.

A currency duel between Great Britain and the United States is not at present imminent, according to the Washington correspondent of the New York Times. Quoting an authoritative source, the correspondent states that Britain will remain passive for at least as long as the commodity prices are rising and the swinging movements of the dollar work against making trade commitments.

The British economist, Sir William Beveridge, has urged a substantial stabilization of the dollar in relation to gold as a remedy for the economic ills of the United States.

Speaking at the Pilgrim's Dinner, Sir William recommended the formation of an impartial committee to examine the whole United States banking system in order to make investments safer.

He also proposed the free use of Federal credit to lower the interest on all kinds of debts.—Router.

CUBA SLAUGHTER

HEAVY CASUALTIES IN DISORDERS

Havana, Nov. 12. Over 200 persons have been killed since the revolt of November 8 and hundreds have been wounded or are in prisons and hospitals.

Hospitals are crowded over capacity, but as far as can be ascertained there have been no British casualties.

Although the revolt has been virtually quelled, the public is still inflamed and shooting continues throughout the city, snipers having installed themselves on the house-tops.

An earlier report that the city was returning to normal was a little premature. Nearly 1,000 rebels have already surrendered, however, and are in prison awaiting court-martial.—Router.

CHINESE RESTAURANT MORTGAGE CASE

Appeal Before the Full Court

The Full Court of Appeal consisting of the Chief Justice, Mr. J. R. Wood, Mr. P. Grant Jones, Judge of the Supreme Court of China, and the Puisne Judge, Mr. R. E. Lindell, sat at the Supreme Court today to hear an appeal against an order made by Chief Justice Wood in May of this year. Appellants were Au Wing-ki, Au Wing-yun of 26 Des Voeux Road Central, Victoria, and they were represented by Mr. H. G. Sheldon and Mr. Leo D'Almadra, jnr., barristers, instructed by Messrs. T'so and Hodgson.

Chu Yun-chi, widow, of No. 1, Wood Rd. Victoria, the respondent, was represented by Mr. Eldon Potter, K. C., Mr. P. C. Jenkins, K. C., and Mr. H. C. Macnamara, instructed by Messrs. Woo and Nash.

In May of this year, the Chief Justice on the motion of Chu Yun-chi, set aside an order previously granted by him extending the time for registration of a mortgage and further charge between the Chinese Restaurant, Ltd., on the one side, and Au Wing-ki and Au Wing-yun on the other. Today's appeal was for the reversal of this setting aside and for costs. The matter arose from the mortgaging of certain property by the Chinese Restaurant to Au Wing-ki and Au Wing-yun to secure repayment of $350,000 in June of 1928. In June, 1931 the Company further charged their property to the mortgagees to secure $72,500. In each case no step was taken, through inadvertence, to conform with the registration of the deeds within the time required by the Companies Ordinance, but Messrs. T'so & Hodgson applied for and obtained an order extending the time for registration. An application to set aside this order was successful and it was set aside as a nullity and also as an order obtained from the Court without the full exhibition of all material facts.

MR. SHELTON'S SUBMISSION. Mr. Sheldon setting out the points in the Chief Justice's judgment which he traversed, submitted that if a solicitor was engaged to carry out work, as Messrs. T'so and Hodgson were engaged to carry through the mortgage, etc., they were retained until that job was finished and in this case they were solicitors of the appellant until the registration was made, even though that was done after the five weeks mentioned in the Ordinance. The solicitors, who through inadvertence omitted the registration, could have applied for an extension of time on their own account. Apart from their rights as persons affected, and apart from their rights as acting for the mortgagees, they had a fiduciary relationship which made it their duty to make the application.

Referring to the "M. I. G. Trust Case" which arrived from the English Appeal Courts as an authority a short time ago, Mr. Sheldon said he relied on that case for his appeal although His Lordship the Chief Justice apparently dissented from it.

He further submitted that no material facts were undisclosed when the matter was before the Chief Justice.

If respondent was an unsecured creditor, she had no legal rights as against a secured creditor, he contended.

Mr. Potter said that if the previous order for an extension was a "nullity" that point, as far as the M. I. G. case was concerned, would not help Mr. Sheldon at all. The hearing is proceeding.

EASY SUCCESS IN ELECTION

BERLIN SCENES

BERLIN, NOV. 12.

IF FIGURES INDICATE ANYTHING, HERR HITLER SCORED A COMPLETE TRIUMPH IN TODAY'S CLEVERLY STAGE-MANAGED GENERAL ELECTION.

Ninety per cent. of the voters who went to the polls recorded support for the Hitler programme. In many cases the queues at the polling-booths were so long that the voters had to wait for hours.

Storm troop brass-bands dashed from booth to booth in motor-lorries entertaining the crowds, and all restaurants and beer-houses did a wonderful business, most of the voters celebrating the occasion.

WHOLE COUNTRY CELEBRATES

A whole host of Germans living outside German territory came to Germany to vote, but the ex-Kaiser remained at Doorn, though his second son, Prince Eitel Friedrich was the first voter at Potsdam, followed by the Crown Prince and other ex-Royalties.

SUPPORT OBVIOUS.

At eight o'clock this evening it was already evident that over ninety per cent. of the electorate had voted practically solidly for the Government.

Out of 225,900 which had been counted up to that stage in the Reichstag election 217,100 went to the Nazis and 8,800 were invalid. Out of 250,700 referendum votes, 240,000 said Yes, 7,600 said No and 3,100 were invalid.

HUGE VOTE.

By nine o'clock it was already obvious that Hitler was being backed by over thirty million Germans, as compared with 17,000,000 during the last Reichstag election. The most striking feature was that the twelve millions, who voted Socialist or Communist on March 6, have apparently gone Nazi, justifying Hitler's boast that he has annihilated Marxism and Bolshevism in Germany.

TOTAL GROWS.

At 11 p.m. the votes counted totalled 25,377,901 in the Reichstag election, distributed as follows:

For the Nazis 23,538,575
Invalid 1,794,326

In the Plebiscite vote, of 25,780,241 counted, 24,205,998 said Yes, 1,157,035 said No, and 417,208 were invalid.

30,000,000 MARK PASSED.

At midnight, the pro-Hitler vote had passed the 30,000,000 mark. The figures were:

Total votes: 35,064,403
For Hitler: 32,370,337
Invalid: 2,694,016

Every voting paper that did not record support for Hitler was, apparently, invalid. In the plebiscite vote, at midnight, 35,346,009 people had polled. Of these votes

30,159,446 said Yes
1,616,400 said No
588,163 were invalid.

FRENCH RUMOURS.

The Berlin correspondent of the Paris paper Le Journal, reported that work of the administrative and constitutional reform of the Reich is rapidly approaching its conclusion. There is ground to expect that the Third Reich of Hitler will definitely be constituted on November 30, according to the correspondent, who adds that Chancellor Hitler intends to re-form his Cabinet as follows:

Chancellor Herr Adolf Hitler
Vice-Chancellor Herr Rudolf Hees
Foreign Affairs Herr von Papen
Finance Dr. Pappe
National Defence Gen. von Fritsch
(now Bavarian Premier)
Chief of General Staff Gen. von Blomberg
Reichswehr Gen. Reichenau
Air, Reich Police, and President of Reichstag Gen. Goering
Cable Herr Goebbels
(Ministry of Propaganda, under its present form to be abolished)
Justice Herr Franz
Commerce Herr Rubezahl
Economy Dr. Schmidt
Supplies Dr. Berne
Interior Herr Frick
President of Leipzig Supreme Court Dr. Gurtner

This re-shuffling of the Cabinet would serve at one and the same time in the unification of Germany and the rallying of the Reichswehr to the principle of the centralised state personified by Herr Hitler.

ARMY IMPORTANCE.

Hitherto, as a matter of fact, the Reichswehr and the General Staff were kept apart from the new regime, while now, with the appointment of Gen. von Epp, himself a Nazi to the post of Minister of National Defence and Gen. Reichenau, sympathising with National Socialism, to the post of the Minister of Reichswehr, there becomes ensured not only the possibility of an effective unity of command of the army, but the possibility of a transformation of the army as soon as it is made possible by political conditions.

The correspondent concludes by saying that "such are the new bases of the German army which is getting ready to strike."

THE SOCIAL EVIL. RICKSHA PULLER GIVES WARNING OF RAID

"Three months' hard labour. You are lucky not to get six," retorted Mr. Hamilton in the Central Police Court on Saturday, when sentencing Siu Fat, 44, ricksha puller, on a charge of obstructing the Police. Defendant pleaded he was waiting for his fare.

Detective-Sub-Inspector Baker said that at 12.30 a.m. he was raiding sly-brothels in the Wan-chai area. During the course of the raids he proceeded to 85, Spring Garden Lane. While going up the stairs to the second floor, he heard a voice giving warning of his approach. He saw the defendant knocking at the door, repeating the warning. He found the floor was a sly-brothel.

Li Sam, who admitted being the keeper of the floor, was fined $100 or two months. In prosecuting Ho Ho, a woman, for keeping a sly-brothel at 101, Jaffee Road, second floor, S. I. Baker said the place had been raided eight times. It had very grimy doors and this was very dangerous in case of fire. At least three Europeans would be burned while the keeper and the girls would be safe away. He could not compel the landlord to take down the iron grille, and he had made application to the Fire Brigade before, but they would not have anything to do with it. A fine of $100, or two months, was imposed.

Fears for the safety of St. Paul's are again being expressed. An order may be made prohibiting the erection of new buildings near the cathedral.

Rome, Nov. 7.

The changes in the Italian Cabinet made by Premier Benito Mussolini are being followed by shifts and transfers in the Italian diplomatic service. Of particular interest in the report that Signor Dino Grandi, former Foreign Minister and now Ambassador to London, will be sent out to the Far East on a special mission.

Commenting on the cabinet changes, the Tribuna writes that "a new phase is being entered—the unified co-ordination of the armed forces in the administrative, financial and technical domains, just as with all other institutions of the regime which must be organically and spiritually co-ordinated."

Premier Mussolini now personally holds the five principal portfolios in the Government.

U.S. "BUY NOW" CAMPAIGN

NOT PROGRESSING VERY WELL

Parma, Idaho, Nov. 6. In a speech to-day, Senator William E. Borah said that the "Buy Now" campaign of the recovery programme was not progressing at all, that on the contrary it was receding. He added that "the brazen programme of exploitation through high prices" should be stopped.

Senator Borah declared that he had gone on record for the restoration and the enforcement of anti-trust laws.

VIENNA CINEMAS TO CLOSE

AMUSEMENT TAX PROTEST

Vienna, Nov. 7.

As a protest against what they term the intolerable burden of the amusement tax the cinema owners at a meeting to-day announced that all picture palaces will close on November 24, the employees already having received notice. All attempts to induce the Social Democratic administration council to moderate the unbearable burden of taxation have so far been fruitless.

SHANGHAI ROUTED BY HONGKONG BOWLERS

In 18 minutes. The score was 10-2-8.

SMART RUN OUT.

In the next over, Madar drove Beck to extra cover, and Pereira, running from mid-off, gathered the ball and threw in. The batsmen were attempting a third run, and Beck broke the wicket with Madar just out of his crease. Madar's wicket fell at 12; he having made four.

With a four off Beck, Booth took the score to 20, which was reached in 30 minutes. Leach deservedly punished a loose one from Garthwaite for a four, and in attempting a short run, was nearly sent back. Minu fielded the ball well and threw in, hitting the wicket, but Leach had already been sent back by Booth. He just scrambled home.

MINU COMES ON.

Garthwaite was bowling short and did not trouble the batsmen at all. They made runs fairly easily off him, Booth sending him to the Queen's Road boundary for a four and a single. In the next over, Owen Hughes took him off, and put on Minu, who was also short, giving away two two's to Booth who had now reached double figures.

The 40 was reached in 44 minutes, and Leach got into double figures in 24 minutes with a two off Beck, whom he hit for another two with the last ball of the same over.

Minu improved in his second over, and gave away only one run—a lucky snick by Booth to fine leg.

PEREIRA'S FIRST WICKET.

Showing signs of losing his length, Beck was taken off and Pereira was given the ball. He met with almost immediate success for Booth played his third delivery into E. C. Fincher's hands at third slip. Booth had been batting well for his 18 runs, and was at the wicket for 34 minutes. The score board read 46-4-18.

Next man in, Sinclair did not stay long. He made a single and in Pereira's next over, was bowled, the ball just taking off the leg ball without disturbing the stumps. The score was 48-5-1.

A single to Jenkins, the new comer after the ball had gone for a bye, hoisted the 50 reached in 61 minutes.

In Minu's over before lunch, Leach hit a four and the interval was taken with the score at 54.

Leach had made 17 not out and Jenkins one.

AFTER LUNCH.

Pereira opened the bowling after lunch to Jenkins (1), who scored a two off the second delivery, and a four off the fourth. Pereira was short, but was too fast to be taken liberties with.

From the other end, Leach (17) faced Minu, who had hard luck in not taking Leach's wicket. Leach attempted a drive but the ball went between Hayward and Owen Hughes in the slips, and went for a four to reach his 20.

In the next over from Pereira, Jenkins was hit in the stomach. Another four by Leach off Minu sent up the 70, reached in 75 minutes.

Minu's bowling after lunch had improved, and although he was giving away more runs than his club mate, he was just as dangerous.

LEACH SCORING.

Leach reached his 30 with a drive to extra-cover off the fast bowler. He had now been batting for exactly an hour.

In attempting to drive Minu, Jenkins failed to get over the ball properly, and sent a catch to Pearce, holding at cover-point, who took the ball over his head for a good catch. Jenkins had helped to take the score from 48 to 75. His own score was eight. Going in next, Mayhew hit a short one from Minu for a four and was dismissed off the next ball. He played forward to the left-hander, and was beaten by the break, edging the ball to Hayward at first slip. The score-board now showed 79-7-4.

ANOTHER WICKET.

After playing Pereira patiently for four deliveries, Leach lashed out, and hit the fast bowler over square-leg's head, but only two runs accrued. He took a single off the last ball, and in the next over, hit Minu for a four.

Another wicket fell before long. Leach joined Leach, and facing the fast bowler, swung at the first one, but missed. He swung again, but this time, he touched the ball to first slip, where Hayward took a fine catch. The score was 86-8-0.

With a hard smack past cover off Minu, Leach took his score to 40 and the side's score to 90, in 98 minutes.

KEEPING THE BOWLING.

Leach was now trying to do all the scoring. He took a sharp single off Minu's last ball in order to take over the bowling of the fast bowler as Tommy Madar, who was at the other end and had been rather shaky in the first over.

Although he might have run two short ones, Leach refused to let Madar take the bowling. He would not take singles.

Pearce, at cover point checked Leach's attempt to take a single off Minu's last ball by anticipating the shot.

Madar was shaky against the fast bowler, and was lucky not to have got out in one over from Pereira.

LEACH MISSED.

Leach had another escape in the next over off Minu. After lifting the left-hander to the public stands for a four, he tried to do the same with the next ball. He edged it to Hayward at first slip, but the fielder failed to hold the catch. Hayward injured his finger and had to go in.

Madar, now taking the bowling from Minu, was clean bowled with his score at two. 99-9-2.

With Wilson in, Leach attempted to hit everything. He reached his 60 in 91 minutes, and incidentally hoisted the three figures. He lifted several balls perilously near the fielders, but they all dropped clear.

Wilson did not survive long. He attempted to hit Minu and was stumped by Dunkley before he opened his account.

LEACH'S EFFORT.

Shanghai's innings closed at 2.03 p.m. with the total at 103. Leach and 53 not out. He played a captain's innings in every sense of the phrase. He hit out when runs were needed and there was no hope of the other batsmen staying in. He was restrained when wickets were falling fast around him, and somebody was needed to stop the rot. He was at the crease for altogether 85 minutes, and had eight fours among his scoring strokes.

Pereira and Minu bowled unchanged after lunch, the former taking three wickets in all and the latter four.

The Hongkong fielding was up to the standard of the previous inter-port.

HONGKONG BAT AGAIN.

The Shanghai team went out on the field again at 2.21 p.m. and Hongkong sent out Fincher and Hayward, as in the first innings. Isaac started the bowling from the Supreme Court end to the K.C.C. man, who played a "maiden," and Wilson had the ball from the Naval Yard end. Off Wilson's first over, Hayward and Fincher each took a single.

Isaac was bowling well and Fincher was very cautious while playing him, but Wilson did not seem to be coming off the pitch as fast as he had been doing in the first innings.

A glance to the pavilion for a four by Hayward off Wilson sent up the 10 which was reached in 13 minutes.

FINCHER OUT.

Fincher scored his first boundary off Wilson by a cut past Sinclair at second slip. He made a single in the same over, and taking the bowling, Hayward had a narrow escape when he played a ball to the slips but it fell short.

Apparently orders had been given to the batsmen to score runs, for Fincher could be seen to be trying to force the pace.

With the score at 20, Fincher tried to pull a short one from Isaac, but did not connect properly, sending the ball up to Sinclair Isaac.

LESSON SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST. SCIENTIST, HONGKONG.

"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

The Golden Text was: "The earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God" (Romans 8:19).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "There was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews: The same came to Jesus by night, and said unto him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him. Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit" (John 3:1-6).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Earth has little light of joy for mortals before Life is spiritually learned. Every agony of mortal error helps error to destroy error, and so aids in the apprehension of immortal Truth. This is the new birth going on hourly, by which men may entertain angels, the true ideas of God, (the spiritual sense of being)" (p. 548).

LOANS TO COTTON FARMERS

at short for an easy catch. Fincher had made eight. 20-1-8.

SUICIDE-SQUAD?

In the next over, Jenkins went on for Wilson, and Pearce pulled him for a single. To Hayward, he had a regular field. He had nobody in the slip, but had four men at a distance of about seven yards to the batsman and another man outside. These opponents formed a semi-circle round Hayward, who failed to score.

Jenkins had the same field for Pearce, but the batsman took a single off the first ball sent down to him by this bowler. Hayward guided the ball in the direction of the public stands for a two and sent up his 10; reached in 26 minutes.

Four byes off Jenkins enabled the 30 to be hoisted, the innings having now been in progress for 34 minutes. Pearce obtained his first boundary with a hearty square-cut off Isaac.

Today's Contract Problem
Here's a hand in which

Solution in next issue. 20

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

The following hand is a good indication of the championship play that often is called upon to fulfill a dangerous contract.

In a rubber bridge game, neither side vulnerable, Mrs. Green Fenley, Jr., of Cincinnati, received the hand with the 150 aces. Here's how she bid and played it.

The Bidding

South West North East
Pass Pass 1 no trump 2 spades
Double Pass Pass 3 hearts
Pass Pass 3 no trump Pass

South's double of two spades shows that is the suit with which he would have responded if East had not bid it before him. Mrs. Fenley's bid of three no trump was rather optimistic.

The Play

East opened the king of hearts and continued hearts, North refusing to win until the third round. Two small spades were discarded from dummy.

A small club was won in dummy with the king and a club returned, in the hope of breaking the club suit. But East showed out, discarding a spade.

Declarer won the trick with the ace. A small diamond was led and won in dummy with the queen and the king of diamonds returned. East dropped the jack. Declarer then led the queen of clubs and East let go another spade.

East practically was now marked with the king and xx of spades and two good hearts, so the declarer returned the nine of diamonds to his ace and East dropped the ten of spades. The eight of hearts then was played, throwing East in the lead with the nine.

East cashed the good three of hearts, but was forced to lead from the king-jack of spades into the declarer's ace-queen, and three no trump was made.

CHANG HSUEH-LIANG
LUNCHES WITH THE PREMIER

London, Nov. 11.

Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang and his wife lunched with the Premier, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald at the Chequers, to-day.

The private function, which was entirely informal, was inspired by the friendship formed between the Premier's son, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald and Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang during the former's visit to Manchuria in 1928.—Reuter.

Centrally situated, and with unequalled facilities and service, there seems no reason why, in the future, the latest addition to the Colony's meeting places should not retain the popularity it gained on its opening day.
Much credit is due to the management, not only for providing this more easily accessible lounge in the Gloucester, but for the smooth manner with which arrangements on the opening day of the comfortable lounge chairs, were carried out.

JURY "VIEWS THE BODY"

UNUSUAL PROCEDURE THIS MORNING

The unusual course, in Hongkong, of viewing the body of a deceased prisoner in the 'Gaoi' Mortuary was adopted by Mr. Balfour, sitting as Coroner in the Central Magistracy this morning when an inquest into the death of a male prisoner, Chan Kam, aged 33, was held.

The Coroner, together with the Chief Warder (Mr. Buchanan), Dr. Griffith (Victoria Gaol medical officer) and the jury, comprising Messrs. A. H. Chambers, (foreman), J. E. Rocha and Fung Lu-chung, viewed the body in the Victoria Gaol morgue.

At the inquest hearing, the Chief Warder stated the deceased was sentenced to a fine of $150 or two months' hard labour for keeping a sly-brothel. He was admitted to Victoria Gaol on October 6 and the same evening was transferred to the gaol hospital. He died at 11.23 last night. He identified the body this morning in the presence of the medical officer.

Dr. G. V. A. Griffith said the prisoner was under his care in the prison hospital from October 5 until his death. He was suffering from valvular disease of the heart, generalised dropsy and nephritis and was practically moribund on admission. He rallied a little under treatment but again relapsed and became progressively worse and died last night.

Death, in this opinion, was due to cardiac failure following on the valvular disease.

The Coroner asked the Chief Warder if the body was ready for inspection.

Chief Warder Buchanan:—It is your Worship, but it is not usual

ACCUSED MAN IN COURT

Arrested over the week-end, Yu Chun-hoi, aged 30, of Peking City, living at the Fuk Kui Boarding House, appeared before Mr. Hamilton in the Central Magistracy this morning, charged on the following counts:

Theft of a gold finger-ring set with diamond, valued at $2,000, a platinum ring set with diamonds, valued $600 and a gold jade necklace, valued at $200, from Mr. J. D. Lloyd, 400, The Peak.

Found in a dwelling at 409, The Peak.

The defendant pleaded guilty to the first charge, but denied the second and third, saying he went there to look for friends.

Defendant was remanded for 48 hours in police custody.

to see it. This is the first time, I think.

The Court adjourned and a visit was made to the mortuary. On returning the jury returned a verdict of "Death by natural causes."

SCENE IN POLICE CELL

"She was not only noisy in the cells, but I thought she was going to die once when she swallowed her own tongue," said Sub-Inspector Dredge when Ma Lai Loung, 26, married woman, was charged before Mr. Balfour, at the Central Police Court this morning, with obtaining goods to the value of $34 from the Sincere Company by falsely purporting she was authorised to do so in the name of Mr. Ma Tim-shing of the Sincere Co.

Defendant claimed that complainant was her husband. Detective-sergeant McRobble said defendant went to the Sincere Company store and ordered goods to the value of $34 and represented that she was authorised by Mr. Ma Tim-shing of the Sincere Co. to collect the goods in his name. She also asserted that he was her husband. Mr. Ma had stated that the S.C.A. had decided she was not even his concubine. The defendant has a husband in Panama and has two small children in Shanghai.

His Worship:—If you say the complainant is your husband, you must bring forward something to prove that.

Defendant:—The marriage was in the newspapers.

Referring to his Worship, Sergeant McRobble said the defendant was offered substantial bail in the sum of $300. The police had to send her to hospital last night, as she was very noisy in the cells.

His Worship referred the case to the S.C.A., allowing defendant bail of $50.

CATHEDRAL ALTAR

MAN'S SUDDEN MENTAL DERANGEMENT

There was a distressing scene in St. Barnabas' Roman Catholic Cathedral, Nottingham, shortly before the celebration of High Mass recently.

A young Irishman left his seat, rushed up to the sanctuary, and disarranged the altar.

Albert Billson, a varger, who went to prevent him was knocked down in front of the altar, and members of the congregation went to grapple with the man, who made a terrific fight. With one member of the congregation he rolled under the choir stalls.

Police were called and the man, who was stated to have become mentally deranged, was strapped to a stretcher and taken to a Police

Law Institution.
